4,000 CHINESE DEFEATED BY SMALL FORCE

Air Fleet Bombs Fleeing Troops.

BULLETIN.

LONDON, Nov. 7 (Saturday).—(AP)—A Reuter's dispatch from Tokio this morning said it was reported there, but not confirmed, that the Japanese consul at Harbin, Manchuria, informed the Harbin American consul Chinese reinforcements were moving toward Anganchi from Manchuli, Hailar, and Harbin and apparently intending to renew the attack on the Japanese near the Nonni river.

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

TOKIO, Nov. 7.—[Saturday.]—A three day battle between Japanese and Chinese forces at the Nonni river bridge in Heilungkiang province, Manchuria, ended yesterday when the Japanese, with reinforcements from Taonan and aided by airplanes, made a strong counter attack and drove the Chinese from their positions, which the Japanese occupied before noon.

The counter attack began at 7 a. m. and was vigorously pressed. By 11:30 the Chinese ranks had broken and they were streaming north toward Anganchi. Planes flying low and dropping bombs contributed greatly to demoralize the Chinese, both during the fight and the retreat.

Chinese Lose Heart.

The Chinese seemed to have lost heart before the battle was resumed yesterday, for a Japanese pilot reported that they began moving troops and material toward the railroad preparatory to retreat, before the Japanese attack was fully launched. The pilot said the Japanese forces seemed miserably few compared with the solid bodies of infantry and cavalry the Chinese had stationed at strategic points.

Japanese casualties are estimated at 200 since the beginning of the engagement.

Night and reinforcements, for which the exhausted Japanese infantry had been praying after two days of fighting, came together on Thursday when a fresh battalion arrived from Taonan. The Japanese in the field there numbered three companies of infantry, less casualties, and one company of cavalry, probably fewer than 300 men all told.

Hold Back 4,000 Chinese.

They were worn out with resisting for two days 4,000 Chinese infantry and cavalrymen, supported by 30 guns and entrenched in a strong, prepared position. The Japanese, however, had the advantage of their airmen, who showed skill and daring. Also, the Japanese code forbids surrender.

With the arrival of reinforcements the men in the firing line were relieved to get some sleep so that they might be fit to fight again at daybreak, and preparations for an attack were made. The flares of Very lights and other such devices being scarce, the night was relatively quiet.

Japanese Win Powerful Position.

In retreating the Chinese surrendered a powerful position to a numerically far inferior force, leaving the Japanese masters of all the territory south of the Nonni and Sungari rivers as far as Kirin, 300 miles distant.

The official dispatch says the Chinese were not pursued beyond Tahsin. Fresh instructions have been sent to the Japanese commander ordering the Japanese not to go beyond a line twelve kilometers (about 7½ miles) north of Tahsin, which is about half way between the Nonni river and the Chinese Eastern railway, in which Russia owns a half interest.

About 2,000 Japanese reinforcements, en route from Changchung to the Nonni river, were halted at the points their trains had reached when the news of the Chinese retreat was received, and they will not proceed further.

NAME DARBY DAY IN U. S. CHARGE OF MAIL FRAUD

Darby A. Day of Chicago, and Jerome B. McCutchan of St. Louis were indicted yesterday by the federal grand jury at Kansas City on charges of using the mails to defraud.

The charge is based on the division and sale of 37,540 acres of cut over timber in southeast Missouri. The land involved belongs to the Gideon-Anderson Lumber company and the Himmelberger-Harrison Lumber company.

Reports were that the governmental action has a background in a Chicago organization of Day and McCutchan. It is said they exchanged this company's stock for large tracts in southeastern Missouri, and then floated deeds, mortgages, and notes on the land.

Steals 8 Silver Foxes; Lack of Hat Traps Him

Joseph Savoir, 32 years old, left the Skidmore fox farm at Marinette, Wis., a week ago. At the same time nineteen sheep and eight silver foxes, the property of his employer, disappeared. Authorities at Marinette told police here that Savoir never wore a hat and that he might be found around Chicago and Racine avenues. Sergt. Benjamin Ryan, with this clew, traced Savoir to 1076 North Hermitage avenue. In a garage there were the foxes, which the fugitive admitted having taken from the farm. He denied, however, that he had stolen any sheep.

Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Thaddeus H. Caraway, forceful United States senator and Democrat of the first rank, died suddenly tonight in a hospital here. Death was caused by closing of arteries which feed the muscles of the heart. He was 60 years old.

Arkansas' junior senator underwent an operation Oct. 29 and his recovery appeared certain. At no time was his physician alarmed at his condition.

Laughter and happy conversation with his wife preceded by only a few minutes his sudden complaint of "terrible pains." Mrs. Caraway stepped from the room for a moment and returned on the call of the nurse to find her husband asleep in death.

G. O. P. Plurality Restored.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—The death of Senator Caraway leaves the Democratic side of the senate with 48 members in its ranks for the time being. The Republicans, due to the recent death of Senator Dwight W. Morrow of New Jersey, now number 47 and there is one Farmer-Labor member. It is assumed that before congress convenes on Dec. 7 both these vacant seats will be filled and the lineup restored to 48 Republicans, 47 Democrats, and one Farmer-Labor member.

Senator Caraway's successor will be appointed by Arkansas' Democratic governor, Harvey Parnell; a Democratic choice is therefore taken for granted. Gov. M. F. Larson of New Jersey, a Republican, will be in office to name Senator Morrow's successor, despite the Democratic victory last Tuesday.

CAREER COLORFUL ONE.

Thaddeus H. Caraway, junior senator from Arkansas since 1921, had a colorful career in the senate. A notably partisan Democrat, he took an active part in denouncing the Teapot Dome scandal, fought for American entrance into the league of nations, was chairman of the lobbyist investigating committee, fought for drought and unemployment relief and criticized large Republican campaign expenditures.

Senator Caraway, noted for his vitriolic, rough-and-ready speech, was ever a storm center. He adhered to the farm bloc and at times was found lined up with the Progressive-Republican group, although he often voted against them.

Born in Springhill, Stoddard county, Mo., on Oct. 17, 1871, Senator Caraway was the son of a country doctor, a confederate veteran. Feuds surviving from the hatreds of the civil war were still rife in that section and in one of them Dr. Caraway was assassinated, leaving a widow and three children, the youngest aged 6 months, the future senator. The mother had not more than $25 and a bitter struggle for existence followed.

By the time he was 7 Senator Caraway was a farm hand. A few years later he became a railroad section hand and later was a farm tenant and share cropper. He studied at night and attended the common schools across the river in Tennessee. He worked his way through Dickson college, graduating in 1896. For a time he was a book and patent medicine salesman and a school teacher.

Admitted to Bar in 1900.

He then studied law, was admitted to the Arkansas bar in 1900 and hung out his shingle in Lake City in that state. Later he moved to Jonesboro, Ark., his home when he died.

In 1912 he was elected to congress from the First Arkansas district and was reelected three times. In 1920 he was elected to the United States senate as a Wilson Democrat.

RISE IN SECURITIES, COMMODITIES WORTH 12 BILLION DOLLARS

New York, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Gains in quoted security and commodity prices since the low levels—largely reached early in October—have resulted in a staggering appreciation of paper values. Wall street statisticians calculate the total as probably in excess of $12,000,000,000. While these are "paper" values, it is pointed out that they are the basis of bank loan collateral, and the appreciation has, undoubtedly, greatly strengthened the general financial structure.

The appreciation in the values of stocks listed on the New York Stock exchange alone since the bottom reached on Oct. 5 has been roughly $6,000,000,000. There has been a less staggering, but substantial appreciation of bond values.

In agricultural products, the two leading cash crops are cotton and wheat, and commission house statisticians calculate that the portion of each crop actually in the hands of the farmers has appreciated in quoted value some $100,000,000 since the recent lows.

In world trade, the upturn in silver metal has a real significance. It is estimated that there are some 15,000,000,000 ounces of silver in the world, largely in the far east where it is used as currency. This metal has enhanced in quoted value some $1,250,000,000.

Two Terrorists Seized as They Lay Explosive

A police squad trapped two dynamite bombers early this morning on the roof of a nonunion bakery at 1502 South St. Louis avenue, just as they were about to set off a bomb made up of six sticks of dynamite. They shot and captured one of them, and also caught the other.

The prisoners are:

Joseph Siegel, 29 years old, 3406 West Roosevelt road, a broom maker. He was shot in both ankles.

Roy Rapp, 27 years old, 321 North Avers avenue, a lather.

The capture of the bombers in the act was the first arrest of its kind in six years, according to Walter G. Walker, attorney for the Chicago Employers' association. Mr. Walker aided the police squad in the arrest. He is coöperating with the Secret Six in breaking up bomb rings.

Police in Wait for Terrorists.

The object of the bombers was the bakery of Joseph Becker. For some time Becker has been resisting the efforts of the Bakers' union to organize his employés. The consequences were of the usual sort, sluggings, window breaking, and a stench bomb. The bomb was thrown Oct. 30 and that day Becker appealed to Attorney Walker for assistance. The attorney notified the police and Sergt. Michael Toohey, bomb expert, and his squad were assigned.

Since Oct. 30 Toohey and Detectives Edward Winkle and Frank Grady concealed themselves nightly in the rear of the bakery, watching for an expected bombing. Last night, as usual, they hid in the rear. This time Attorney Walker was with them.

See Explosive Placed.

Shortly after 1 o'clock this morning their vigil was rewarded. They saw two shadowy figures steal into the alley and behind the bakery.

As they watched the pair climbed a stairway to the roof. The rear of the building is only one story high, but the front is double. Becker and his wife live in the front upper section. In the lower rear is the large oven, valued at thousands of dollars.

Within a few moments the two men reached the low roof, directly over the oven. Sergt. Toohey watched them lay down a small bundle. Then he rose from his hiding place, signaling to Winkle and Grady.

"Put up your hands," Sergt. Toohey called out. At the same time he fired a warning shot.

Bombers Flee; One Shot.

The bombers turned about, startled. Instead of surrendering they started for the edge of the roof. One leaped to the ground. He was Rapp. He ran into an adjoining yard, but was nabbed by Winkie and Grady. The second bomber, Siegel, ran down the stairway which he had ascended a minute before, but Sergt. Toohey stopped him with two shots. Both took effect, one in each ankle. Siegel fell to the ground, yelling he would surrender.

With both men in custody, one of the detectives and Attorney Walker hastened to the roof of the bakery. They found the bundle of dynamite sticks. A fuse, about 10 feet long, stretched from the bundle to the stairway. The dynamite sticks were 8 inches long. Had they been exploded, they would have wrecked the building and probably killed Becker and his wife, Sergt. Toohey declared after an examination.

Grill Captured Bomber.

Fillmore street police were notified and Sergt. Robert Sullivan and a squad raced to the scene. They took the wounded bomber, Siegel, to the Bridewell hospital. Sergt. Toohey took Rapp to the Fillmore street station.

There he was questioned by Attorney Walker and police, but his statements were not divulged. In his pockets were found numerous union cards from Elgin, Aurora, Wheaton, and Joliet. These communications suffered from bombings in recent months.

"This is a wonderful arrest," said Attorney Walker this morning. "Rapp and Siegel were caught red handed. We didn't wait until they touched off the fuse, for considerable destruction and possible loss of life might have resulted. We hope to smash the bombing ring in Chicago, and this capture will help to do it."

Sergt. Toohey, who led in the capture, is considered an expert on bombings in Chicago. This morning's arrest was the first of its kind in six years, and it was Toohey who caught the last bombers. This capture occurred at 3637 Fullerton avenue, on Nov. 25, 1925.

Aquitania Delays; Avoids Starting on Friday, 13th

New York, Nov. 6.—[Special.]—The Cunard line will hold the Aquitania in port until early next Saturday morning to avoid departure for Cherbourg and Southampton on Friday the 13th, according to announcement today.

RALPH CAPONE GOES TO PRISON FOR TAX TERM

Al's Brother Surly as Train Leaves.

Ralph Capone is well on his way to Leavenworth penitentiary to become the first of his notorious family to enter a federal prison. At 3 a. m. today he will begin serving a three year sentence for income tax fraud.

The older brother of Alphonse sat hunched at a Pullman car window last night as a Burlington train sped over the western Illinois prairies toward Kansas. He was manacled to Salvatore Molinari, a narcotic law violator and one of the sixteen other government prisoners in the felon shipment.

No Friends at Station.

The train left the Union station at 6 p. m., crawled between the caissons of the new postoffice, which will be completed when Ralph returns, and moved westward. Capone sat motionless and surly, contemplating, perhaps, the absence of sentiment at his departure. His family had said goodby in his county jail cell earlier in the day, and there were no friendly faces at the station to wish him luck. There were, however, a throng of the curious and a dozen photographers. One of these came too close to Capone and was rewarded by a curse and a savage kick on the shins.

At Cicero, the train slowed momentarily. Capone straightened in his seat and gazed at the lights of the suburb. There, he may have thought, was the cause of all his troubles, for the illegal profits he concealed from the government and which led to his downfall came, in goodly part, from Cicero enterprises. There he had seven accounts in the Pinkert State bank under his own and fictitious names, and their discovery, through the long and persistent investigations of United States Attorney Johnson's aides, sent him to prison.

Crowd at Aurora Station.

On to Aurora, the first stop, went the train. As it was braked to a halt, a swarm of townspeople, advised by radio of the gangster's coming, rushed to the first coach behind the baggage car, where the prisoners rode. The vanguard caught a glimpse of the swart, hawk faced Capone, but it was momentary, for he slammed down the shade with a curse and pulled away from the window, as far as his handcuffs would allow his movement.

Flying once more through the night, Capone raised the blind and became more peaceful. He beckoned Deputy Marshal William Thompson, his keeper.

Wants to Eat in Diner.

"I'd like to eat in the diner," he said.

"Can't be done," Thompson replied, shortly.

"Well, then I'd like to have some food sent in for me and the boys." He swept his unchained hand to include the heterogeneous assortment of criminals about him. Then came a "Capone" gesture.

"I'll stand the check," Ralph added.

"I may let you do that," Thompson told him. "Wait a while."

Al Still in Jail.

Ralph left his brother, Al, in a county jail cell where he remains while he and his lawyers decide their next move in fighting an eleven year sentence for income tax fraud. No efforts to obtain Al's release on bail have been made in the United States Supreme court, the attorney general's office reported yesterday.

Ralph goes to prison to join his gang's treasurer, Frank Nitto (alias Nitti) and Sam Guzik, another Capone hoodlum. Before long, Mr. Johnson hopes Al himself and Jack Guzik, will also be behind the government's bars.

By Christmas, if his appeal is also denied by the country's highest court, as was Ralph's, it is probable that State Representative Lawrence C. O'Brien, north side Democratic legislator, will likewise enter Leavenworth for an 18 months sentence on an income tax charge. County Assessor Gene G. Oliver has appealed a three year sentence, and Chris P. Paschen, building commissioner in the former city administration, is awaiting trial.

Holds Conference in Jail.

Ralph and Al had an hour and a half's farewell conference just prior to the former's departure from the jail for the Union station. Warden Moneypenny instructed his first deputy, George Gibson, to allow the meeting at 3 p. m. Ralph was taken by Gibson from a jail basement cell to an upper tier where his brother is quartered. They were alone until 4:30, when Gibson took Ralph back for his baggage and thence to the jail courtyard. There, shivering slightly in the November twilight, were the sixteen other prisoners and all were loaded in the United States marshal's van for the ride to the train.

Ralph found himself in the especial charge of Deputy Marshal Thompson, who commands the seven guards accompanying the prisoners.

Ralph's mother, his wife and his two sisters saw him for the last time until his return to freedom earlier in the day.

Wife and Mother at Jail.

Mrs. Capone was an early visitor, arriving at the jail at 10 o'clock, and remaining half an hour. She left weeping. The early afternoon brought the mother and the sisters, who passed newspaper cameramen swiftly, shielding their faces with their purses.

When the party of prisoners reached the station it separated. Deputy Thompson taking Capone through the baggage tunnel to the train platform to avoid attention from the crowd that filled the vast rotunda at that hour. The others marched in double file past the crowds and down the platform to the train steps.

Ralph was convicted by a jury in April, 1930, in the same court his brother was given similiar treatment, that of Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson. He was found guilty on one indictment of two counts charging attempts to defraud the government with false statements and concealments of assets in connection with a $1,000 offer in compromise. Another indictment on which he was also found guilty charged willful failure to pay income taxes and with concealing facts in the offer in compromise.

The years involved were from 1924 to 1929, and the government testimony disclosed that Capone deposited $1,871,000 in seven accounts under his own name and various aliases, at the Pinkert State bank, Cicero. The estimated unpaid tax was more than $200,000.

Capone represented himself as an insolvent race horse man in his offer to compromise. His sole assets were an interest in two horses, he declared. The testimony showed that at the time he made the offer he had $25,000 on deposit in the bank.

CHINESE GROUP PLEDGES AID IN DRIVE ON ALIENS

Assistance of the Ning Yung Benevolent association, which claims as members 80 per cent of the Chinese residents of Chicago, was pledged last night to the campaign of the federal government to get rid of aliens who have entered the United States illegally.

M. W. GARSSON. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

A meeting in Won Kow restaurant at 21st place and Wentworth avenue was attended by Quang Quok Wah, president of the association, and a committee of Chinese; Murray W. Garsson, special assistant to the secretary of labor; Dr. S. J. Wu; C. Seto; H. L. Tetlow; N. Rebach, and T. H. Ambrose, immigration officials.

The Chinese told Mr. Garsson that they desired to stop the wholesale raids in Chinatown, such as those which resulted in the arrest of forty-two men last Saturday. Mr. Garsson said that he welcomed the aid of the organization, but that unless smuggled aliens were reported and gotten out of the country he would have to continue raiding. He added that it had been learned many Chinese, entering Canada and posting $5,000 bonds to guarantee they would go back to China, were forfeiting these bonds and entering the United States by airplane.

A KENTUCKIAN TURNS QUIZZER AT DREISER QUIZ

He Asks Reforming Author a Few.

Harlan, Ky., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—Theodore Dreiser, who won a noted place in the reviews on the literary pages with his pen and a place on page one of the newspapers when he slapped Sinclair Lewis and fought the movie magnates in court, today began his reform of the economic situation in the Kentucky coal fields.

Mr. Dreiser appointed himself chairman of a committee of investigation into the troubles between the operators and the miners in the Harlan mines. To help him in the hearings he appointed John Dos Passos, New York radical writer; Samuel Ornits, author, and James Rumford Walker, magazine writer.

They Dread the Publicity.

The four of them agreed they would give full hearings to all sides. They realized it might lead to some publicity, deplorable as that might be but, to make the best of the bad situation, they invited editors far and wide to send staff correspondents along.

Before venturing west of the Hudson river Mr. Dreiser wired to Gov. Flem Sampson of Kentucky:

"I shall hold you personally responsible if anything happens to me or any of my party."

The governor replied by detailing National Guard officers to accompany the party and to protect them every hour.

Dreiser Is Suspicious.

Among the witnesses called at the first hearing today was Herndon Evans, editor of the Pineville Sun.

Pineville is near the Harlan fields and a number of operators live there, so Mr. Dreiser apparently was of the opinion that Mr. Evans might be prejudiced. He so expressed himself and then questioned Mr. Evans about his religion and his politics and finally asked Mr. Evans what his income from the Sun was.

Mr. Evans said it was between $50 and $75 a week and Mr. Dreiser remarked it was not his idea of equity that a country editor should get that much money in a district where miners worked for $30 to $50 a month.

"May I ask you some questions?" said Mr. Evans.

"Certainly," said Dreiser.

"You are the author of a very successful book, 'An American Tragedy,'" said Evans. "What were your royalties from that this far?"

About $35,000 a Year.

"Certainly $200,000, perhaps more," said Mr. Dreiser.

"What is your average yearly income?"

"Approximately $35,000.

"Do you give any of it to charity?"

"No," Mr. Dreiser replied.

"Does that represent your ideas of equity?" asked Mr. Evans, but Mr. Walker, as secretary of the inquiry, said there were miners waiting to be heard.

Mr. Dreiser held up a recess to add that he contributed to the Civil Liberties union and "other similar organizations."

Dreiser said there were thirteen members of his family "and they were not very shrewd and couldn't take care of themselves."

"I am trying to take care of five of them," he said, and estimated he spent between $5,000 and $6,000 a year on his family.

Sighs for Good Old Days.

One of the witnesses heard today was Jack Scalf, a miner. He said he went to work in the mines at the age of 9. He is now 24.

Asked by Dreiser what his wages had been Scalf said:

"In 1918 I made as much as $500 a month, and when I got my $500 I went on a big spree until it was all gone."

He said he employed two other miners part of the time and paid them himself, but said he often made $500 clear.

Other witnesses testified they were compelled to take their pay in company scrip, good only at company commissaries. Later they admitted they took scrip only when drawing pay in advance of work.

Caleb Powers, a driver, said he was arrested several times on the charge of "criminal syndicalism." He said he was freed when he promised to stay away from union headquarters. His wife said six deputy sheriffs raided her home. She said all were drunk and referred to them as "John Henry's thugs." John Henry Blair is sheriff of Harlan county.

PINEVILLE AIMS TO DO SOME INVESTIGATING IN MR. DREISER'S TOWN

Pineville, Ky., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Mayor James Walker of New York, two railroad presidents and the manager of a New York hotel were called upon tonight to aid a group of Pineville citizens who say they will investigate the slaying of children on New York streets.

The group calls itself "The Society for the Protection of Defenseless Children." The visit would be in return for Theodore Dreiser's "Committee for Defense of Political Prisoners" now here. The Pineville citizens asked Mayor Walker to give "assurance that you will use all your power to expedite the investigation." The date for the society's visit was set as Nov. 20 and the committee asks protection.

The telegrams were signed by Antoinette Lowe Hutchinson as president of the executive committee of the society. She is president of the Pineville Woman's club.

JUDGE QUIZZES MURPHY, HE OF ROLLS-ROYCES

Tries to Get $925 Owed to Closed Bank.

James H. ["Rolls Royce"] Murphy took the witness stand in Judge Michael Feinberg's court yesterday afternoon. He had been summoned because he owed $925 to the West Central State bank, now in the hands of receivers. The judge is trying to find assets with which to pay depositors who lost thousands when the bank failed.

JAMES H. MURPHY.

Mr. Murphy gained his nickname a decade ago, when his Rolls-Royce automobile cut a figure in domestic litigation. His wife, Mrs. Meta Murphy, sued him for divorce, naming most of the Follies chorus of 1920 as co-respondents. After a long hearing Mr. Murphy turned over property valued at $466,000, agreed to pay $225 a month in addition, and was a free man.

The Murphy who took the witness stand was not the resplendent Murphy of 1921. He turned upon the judge a mournful gaze.

"No More Rolls Royce."

Judge Feinberg, who has been conducting the hearings on a "How-much-will-you-give-what-will-yo-take" basis, began briskly.

"Where's your Rolls Royce?" he asked Mr. Murphy.

"Gone," said Mr. Murphy, sadly. "I am now driving a Ford."

"Where's your business—the Murphy Feed company?" inquired the court.

"I'm out of the business now," replied the witness, sighing. "A new corporation, the Murphy Grain company, has been formed. The stock is owned by my son, James Jr., and my former wife."

"Where do you work?"

"I work for them—the son and his mother," answered Mr. Murphy. "They own all the stock."

More About New Business.

"When was this new grain corporation formed?" asked the judge.

"Eight months ago," said the witness in a low voice.

"How much salary do you get as an employe of your son?"

"About $50 or $60 a week," replied Mr. Murphy.

"Have you an automobile that you use in your business?"

Murphy confessed reluctantly that a Lincoln car was at his disposal.

Further details were elicited. It was revealed that Mr. Murphy suddenly resigned as president of his corporation eight months ago and turned over five trucks and an automobile to a brewery which was a customer, and that his son had then bought the trucks and automobile back for $14,000. It seemed, the judge remarked, to have been a complicated and somewhat unusual transaction.

Asks Payment on Account.

"Murphy," said the judge, "I'm getting pretty tired of chasing down elusive trails. Don't forget we have a record here of everything you say. Now, how much cash can you give me on this $925 debt."

"I haven't a dime, your honor," insisted the witness.

"I'm going to give you fair warning," continued the judge, "that if you put me to the trouble of getting a lot of witnesses and I find you haven't told me the truth I'll do with you as I did with Abe Krecum."

Krecum was sentenced to jail for perjury in connection with the same hearing.

"I'm willing to stand by what I've said," insisted the witness.

"Where's your Rolls Royce?" demanded the judge.

"They took it away from me," said Mr. Murphy. "They took a lot of things away from me."

"Who?"

"A judge and an attorney," said the witness with some show of spirit.

"I thought I was the only one engaged in taking things away from people," commented Judge Feinberg.

Stirs Laughter in Court.

"I didn't know you at that time," said Mr. Murphy amidst a roar of laughter. Even the crowd of depositors in the courtroom were seeing the brighter side of life for a moment.

"Have you married again?" asked the judge.

"No," said Mr. Murphy firmly.

"Well, now, you haven't lost any of your former habits, have you?" asked the judge. "You step out in the evenings with that Lincoln, don't you?"

"I have lost certain of my habits," said Mr. Murphy, not explaining which ones.

"Murphy, you're putting me to a tremendous effort to get $925 out of you," said the judge. "But I'll stick to it. It is remarkable at these hearings that property has always been conveyed from father to son, or husband to wife, or cousin, or uncle or nephew. Every one who ever had a dollar hasn't it now, but it's always still in the family. I'm warning you a second time. Think it over for a week and come back next Friday."

The judge ordered all persons concerned to be subpoenaed, including the former Mrs. Murphy. It will be like old times for Mr. Murphy next Friday.

WARSHIP BLAST TOLL MOUNTS TO FIVE DEAD; BOARD INVESTIGATES

San Pedro, Cal., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—Toll of the disasters which struck two fighting units of the United States battle force yesterday stood at six dead and 22 injured today.

Clarence E. Swift, Los Angeles, seaman first class, U. S. S. Colorado, died today of wounds received where a five inch anti-aircraft gun on the ship burst. Four men were killed outright yesterday, the victims including Lieut. Ralph Bradford Jr., 32, Pontiac, Ill.

J. J. Plummer, Winchester, Ky., chief petty officer and turret gun captain, U. S. S. Maryland, died from effects of being crushed in a 16 inch rifle turret pit on the battleship while training recruits.

The injured of the Colorado accident now are aboard the hospital ship, Relief, where two are reported dying. They are Seaman R. O. Duff and H. J. Hinton.

Two navy boards opened investigations today. One of the first acts of the court of inquiry was to view shell and gun fragments collected from all parts of the Colorado. This revealed that when the anti-aircraft gun burst, a hail of deadly steel swept across the decks of the big battleship and gave death or injury to every man in its path.

Officers concluded that a premature explosion of the shell in the anti-aircraft gun was responsible for the disaster.

C.B. Munday, Ex-Lorimer Aid, Reported Indicted for Theft

Charles B. Munday, who was released from the Joliet penitentiary in 1921 after serving eleven months of a three year sentence as a result of the William E. Lorimer bank failures in 1914, was reported named in three true bills voted by the grand jury yesterday charging an embezzlement of $20,000.

A fourth true bill, it was reported, charged conspiracy against Munday and his secretary, Camilla Romano, 25 years old. The charges arise from the conduct of Munday's Chicago agency of the State Mill and Elevator company of Grand Forks, N. D., a state owned company.

Charge Records Are Juggled.

As Chicago representative of the company, according to reputed testimony before the grand jury, Munday received 25 cents for each barrel of flour he sold. It is charged that he got $20,000 more than his commissions by juggling accounts.

It was stated by prosecutors that from 1928 until last spring, when he was discharged, Munday was the local representative of the North Dakota concern. He carried on his business in the Transportation building under the name of the C. B. Munday company.

Witnesses who appeared before the grand jury yesterday were E. C. Jackson, a North Dakota auditor, and L. Spencer, general manager of a mill concern. After signing an immunity waiver, it was reported, Munday went before the jury and denied the charges.

Recalls Lorimer Failure.

The Lorimer-Munday banking house closed in June, 1914, with approximate deposits of nearly $6,500,000. The La Salle Street Trust and Savings bank and its affiliates, the Northwest State bank, the Ashland-Twelfth State bank, and the Illinois State bank, all closed.

After the crash a six year battle in the courts followed. Lorimer was acquitted, but Munday, who was vice president of the defunct La Salle bank, was sent to the penitentiary on a charge of wrecking the bank.

Application for parole on behalf of Munday was made at the earliest possible legal opportunity. He was released on Nov. 15, 1921, supposedly on account of ill health.

SEA GOING TOWEL HUSBAND'S CLEW IN DIVORCE SUIT

A bath towel bearing the label "U. S. Lines," and a "Guide to Paris," were the clews that caused I. Jerome Harris of the Morrison hotel to suspect that his wife, Bessie, went abroad last summer instead of to Maine to visit her parents. This was his testimony in his divorce suit before Judge Joseph Sabath yesterday.

Later, he explained, he went to Washington, D. C., and there discovered that his wife had obtained a passport under the name of Mrs. Allen Golinkin, and with Golinkin, president of the General Outdoor Lighting company, made a voyage to France in July. His wife, he said, did not deny his accusation and he agreed not to contest his divorce. He was given $910 in a settlement of the furniture in their home. Judge Sabath entered the decree and awarded the custody of his seven year old son, Kenneth, 15 years old.

Golinkin is being sought on an attachment signed recently by Chief Judge Trude when he failed to pay $400 back alimony to his wife, Mrs. Mabelle Golinkin, 3228 Sheffield ave., who is suing him for separate maintenance. Golinkin appeared in court to seek a reduction in the $60 per week alimony payments, but this was refused and the writ issued when he failed to pay up the following day.

Story of Marriage Confirmed

Gloria Swanson May Be Tried on California Bigamy Charge

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Whereabouts of Gloria Swanson, an acknowledged "queen" of Hollywood, was still undisclosed tonight, while the movie colony avidly speculated as to whether she might be open to bigamy charges for marrying Michael Farmer, Irish sportsman, in New York, Aug. 16.

Her divorce from the Marquis Henry de la Falaise is not due to become final until tomorrow.

The actress and Farmer were traced to various places in California today but could not be located.

District Attorney Buron Fitts expressed the opinion tonight that any action against Miss Swanson for "jumping" her interlocutory divorce decree would be up to authorities in New York where she was married, and not those of California.

Judges Define Bigamy.

Three Superior court judges, however, said that marriage of a person whose interlocutory decree has not become final is defined as bigamy under California law.

"Such an offender," Judge Emmett H. Wilson said, "cannot be prosecuted in California, of course, unless he returns to live here. If he were to return here, and not live with the other party to the marriage, of course, no law would be violated, as the ceremony performed in another state would not be violation of the laws of California. It would be perfectly proper, however, for authorities of the other state to file charges."

Judge Fletcher Brown said, "If a person with only an interlocutory decree of divorce is not married no one is, and if a married person goes through a wedding ceremony with another he certainly has commited bigamy. Several circumstances constitute a defense, however."

Attorney Doubts Liability.

Denying he had any knowledge, other than newspaper reports, of the Swanson-Farmer marriage, Milton Cohen, who represented the actress in her divorce proceedings against her titled husband last November, expressed opinion that no liability of bigamy is involved in her case.

"In other cases of similar nature in which I have been interested," he said, "other lawyers with whom I have consulted hold with me that the bigamy laws are not violated unless such persons live together as man and wife.

"Miss Swanson and Mr. Farmer have never assumed this relation in California. They have maintained separate residences here.

"I have not heard from or communicated with her directly for some time. Recently she requested me to file the final decree when it became due. This will be done on Monday. Her presence is not necessary when this is filed in court.

"The only person who might be in a position to embarrass Miss Swanson in event reports of her marriage are true would be her former husband, and I am quite positive he is too much of a gentleman to do such a thing as that."

BROTHER GEORGE LEADS DRUGGANS INTO A SLUMP

He's Seized by Police as a Pickpocket.

The hoodlum aristocracy of the Terry Druggan clan suffered a slump in its social standing last night, all because of Brother George.

George and his playmate, Edward [Lefty] Slanek, 1942 West Jackson boulevard, were chatting at Lake street and Crawford avenue when they were noticed by Lieut. Edward Kelly and Sergt. Arthur Wachholz. Kelly is in charge of the pickpocket detail, and he and Wachholz were on the lookout for individuals in that category.

As Kelly and Wachholz watched, they saw Druggan and Slanek mingle with a crowd of workmen and women boarding a street car. Druggan and Slanek also saw the policemen. They edged out to the open and ascended to the elevated platform. Kelly and Wachholz followed. Druggan and Slanek descended to the street. Kelly and Wachholz followed and seized them.

A Matter of Names.

"Names, please?" asked Lieut. Kelly.

"Mine's Novak," answered Slanek.

"And mine's Roberts," informed Druggan.

"Slanek," corrected Slanek.

"Druggan," rectified Druggan.

Lieut. Kelly questioned the men as to their actions. Finally Druggan burst out in unexpected frankness.

Cannon Is a Pickpocket.

"A Druggan a cannon?" questioned Kelly in surprise.

A cannon in hoodlum phraseology is a pickpocket. It was at this point, detectives asserted, that the clan of Druggan suffered its social slump, for the difference between a ranking beer baron such as Terry and the lowly admitted position of a pickpocket such as George is considerable.

As Kelly and Wachholz started to take Druggan and Slanek to the station, Druggan urged a halt. He studied the clothes of his captors.

"I think you fellows need new fall outfits," he suggested. "Let us go and we'll dress you up."

Other Offers Declined.

Kelly and Wachholz declined the offer. Druggan then invited them to a saloon at 18th street and Blue Island avenue where, he said, he would find "five bills" for them. In hoodlum language five bills mean five $100 notes. Again Kelly refused. Druggan, he reminded him, was wanted for questioning in connection with the murder of George Wilson at 14th and Lincoln streets a month ago, and was also wanted for questioning by Judge Michael Feinberg about certain bank debts.

Further suggestions of Druggan were unavailing. He and Slanek were taken to the Fillmore street station and locked up.

Police Sergeant Shot as He Puts Auto in Garage

Sergt. Frank Demski, assigned to the Shakespeare avenue station, was shot in the back with a shotgun while in the rear of his home at 2423 North Mozart street, late last night. He was off duty. At the Alexian Brothers hospital it was said the wound was not serious. Sergt. Demski had been hunting and was driving into his garage when he stopped to question three men in a parked automobile nearby. One of the trio fired. Police said the gunmen probably were robbers.

GIRL WONDERS WHICH BOX CAR IS LEGAL HOME

The Shakespeare avenue police need help in determining where Genevieve Smith, 19 years old, should live.

She was taken into custody yesterday in a box car on the Milwaukee railroad tracks at Kostner avenue. Other residents of the car were six Mexican laborers. One of them is Michael Ortez.

"No," said Genevieve, who was wearing trousers and a khaki shirt, "this isn't my real home. I really should be living in another box car about a block away. That's where my husband, William Kopcynski, lives. But I like Mike better than Bill, who is 42 years old, and so I like this car better than the other one."

Michael and William were arrested, too. William declared that he had married Genevieve in a church, but he couldn't remember where it was.

The police would like to know which is Genevieve's legal box car. She says she has to live in one or the other, as her grandmother, who lives at 2834 Drake avenue, had ordered her away from her house.

PLANT ELM TREE TODAY IN HONOR OF WASHINGTON

An elm tree will be planted behind the Ida Noyes hall, 59th street and Woodlawn avenue, at 11 o'clock this morning as part of the national bicentennial George Washington celebration which is to be officially observed next year.

The planting will be by the Chicago chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Miss Jane B. A. Okeson, chairman of the conservation and thrift committee of the chapter, will direct the ceremony. Mrs. Samuel Williams Earle, a descendant of Roger Williams, will deliver the principal address. The benediction and invocation will be given by the Rev. Sam T. Lenters.

As part of this morning's ceremony Mrs. Raymond W. Stevens, regent of the Chicago chapter, D. A. R., will dedicate a Wakefield memorial marker alongside the elm tree, in recognition of Washington's birthplace.

7,000 Plants on View

Chicago's chrysanthemum show opens today in Garfield park conservatory where visitors will be able to see 7,000 potted plants from 8 a. m. to 10 p. m. daily until the show closes Sunday, Nov. 29.

The show house has been laid out in the form of an immense formal garden, with pergolas, garden seats and hanging baskets utilized to emphasize the number and size of the flowers. Although many blossoms are just opening, some of the individual plants have as many as 600 flowers. The larger ones that have been pruned for size are expected to have blossoms with a spread of more than 20 inches as they mature.

$900,000 ISSUES OF PUBLIC BONDS GO A-BEGGING

Cook county forest preserve commissioners discovered that there were no bids for $500,000 worth of 4 per cent bonds when they met yesterday. It was the second time that the series had been offered without takers. The bonds were part of the $2,500,000 bond issue authorized by the last assembly.

A similar lack of bidders was discovered yesterday for the $400,000 bond issue of the sanitary district. The bonds were offered at 4½ per cent interest. The proceeds of the refunding issue were to be used for the construction of a north side sewage disposal plant.

The trustees authorized the chairman of the finance committee to negotiate a private sale.

R. T. CRANE SENT TO A HOSPITAL; NERVES COLLAPSE

New York, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Richard T. Crane, president of the Crane company, suffered a nervous breakdown today and was taken from the Carlton house to the doctors' hospital.

Members of his family said Mr. Crane had worried over his son Cornelius' health and that he probably would remain in the hospital for some time to rest. Hospital authorities declined to discuss his condition.

SPANISH CORTES EXPELS DEPUTY IN BRIBERY SCANDAL

Foreign Chief's Right Hand Man Loses Seat.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Nov. 6.—Two cleanups were attempted in Madrid tonight and one succeeded. The successful venture occurred in the constituent cortes, where, after the stench of filthy lucre had been detected today for the first time, disinfection began immediately in a wild secret session. The net result was the expulsion of Emiliano Iglesias, leader of the radical Republican party, who was charged with bribery.

Iglesias, henchman of Foreign Minister Lerroux, was accused of offering 25,000 pesetas [about $2,200] to a member of the commission delving into the scandals of the monarchist régime to save the skin of Juan March, tobacco monopolist, and one of the richest men in Spain.

The bribe, it is alleged, was offered to prevent the prosecution of Senor March on charges of illegal business transactions in Morocco during the dictatorship of Primo de Rivera. Iglesias declared the money was given him to found a radical Republican club and not for purposes of bribery.

While the deputies cleaned house, Catholic youths did their best to clean out a theater where the republic's elite gathered for the opening play by Ramon Perez de Ayala, famous novelist, now Spanish ambassador to London, satirizing life in a Jesuit college.

The play was a dramatization of Ayala's novel, "...ad Majorem Dei Gloriam," translated "To the Greater Glory of God." It was billed as a "true picture of life in a Jesuit school"—anti-Jesuit but not anti-religious.

Nearly 100 young men, many of them aristocrats, tried to break up the performance. Fifty of them were dragged out of the theater and 15 taken to the bastille. The first two acts were played amidst tumult. Women fainted during the riot.

LIFE OF CRIPPLE SAVED IN HOME BY LEGAL WRIT

Deputy Sheriff George Borovay called late yesterday at 2136 West 25th street, the home of Joseph Marousek, 60 years old, a paralytic cripple, to serve him with a foreclosure notice, and thereby saved his life. He found Marousek almost dead from gas, which police say had been turned on with suicidal intent.

Marousek, an amateur fiction writer, has been an invalid for some time, and moves about in a wheel chair. Yesterday he wrote seven farewell letters, three to his relatives, three to newspapers, and one to the general public. Then he wheeled himself alongside the gas range and opened four burners.

When Deputy Borovay arrived there was no response to his knocks on the door. Two friends of Marousek, Louis Caplan and Jack Rollins, helped the deputy smash in the door, and they found the crippled writer unconscious in his wheel chair. An inhalator squad revived him, and took him to the county hospital.

ENDS LIFE WITH BULLET.

Tony Bockrich, 40 years old, a grocer, shot and killed himself yesterday at his home in McCook, near Riverside. Members of the family said they were unable to advance a motive for his act.

LEAGUE CALLED AGAIN TO SEEK PEACE FORMULA

Geneva Plans Drastic Action Against Japan.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 6.—Yielding to the urgency of the Manchurian situation, Aristide Briand, president of the league of nations council, in a letter to the league secretariat at Geneva today, asked that the council convene in Paris Nov. 13 to consider once more means to avert war in the orient.

The date set by Briand is three days earlier than the date the council set when it adjourned on Oct. 24, helpless to accomplish anything in face of Japan's defiance. However, even the date of Nov. 13 is already provoking considerable criticism in some circles here as not soon enough.

Briand called the meeting in response to the appeal of the Chinese delegation to Geneva asking the league to intervene following the outbreak of warfare in Manchuria in the last two days.

League Plans Drastic Action.

GENEVA, Nov. 6.—(AP)—The possibility of a concerted withdrawal of diplomatic representations from Tokio as the next move in the Sino-Japanese conflict was considered by league of nations leaders tonight in planning for the next meeting of the council in Paris on Nov. 16.

The legal section of the secretariat, under orders from Secretary General Sir Eric Drummond, was studying Article 15 of the league covenant to determine whether the member nations could be asked to remove their ambassadors and ministers in the event that Japan continues to reject measures of arbitration. This article deals with sanctions of a military and economic nature to be invoked against an aggressor nation.

It is understood that this examination also envisages the practicability of levying an economic boycott against Japan, but such action remains in the background for the present.

Plan Three Alternatives.

When the council reassembles a three-fold program will lie before it, according to league authorities.

First, a supreme effort will be made to induce Japan to adopt a conciliatory attitude toward China and restore the status quo in Manchuria in accordance with the league's recommendations.

Failing that, the next proposal would be a declaration calling for all members and probably all Kellogg pact signatories to remove their envoys.

If Japan is still adamant, the council would consider ways and means of putting a boycott into operation.

No Action by U. S.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6.—Secretary of State Stimson announced today that the United States' policy in the Manchurian crisis remains unchanged in the face of new and more grave developments which find Japanese troops penetrating further and further into Chinese territory in Manchuria.

"The policy of the government," Mr. Stimson said, "remains unchanged, namely, of acting independently through diplomatic channels and reserving complete independence of judgment as to each step, to coöperate with and support the other nations of the world in their objective of peace in Manchuria."

As this statement was being issued, William C. Forbes, American ambassador at Tokio, was making new representations to the Japanese government in behalf of peace in the orient.

Nature of Action Secret.

While no information as to the nature of the Forbes action was made public, it was indicated that the Japanese government had again been urged to honor her obligations under the Kellogg anti-war treaty.

Whether the United States associated itself with the league in urging the Japanese government to withdraw its forces from Chinese territory by Nov. 16 was not made clear by state department officials. It is understood, however, that the United States has again urged Japan to evacuate her troops.

GUNMEN KIDNAP A ST. LOUIS FUR MAN FOR RANSOM

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Alexander Berg, 57, president of the Hill Fur company here, was kidnaped tonight by two gunmen, his Negro chauffeur, Albert Pike, reported to the police. Pike said the two man entered the Berg limousine when he stopped it for a traffic light. In St. Louis county, Pike said, the gunmen ejected him from the machine.

Two hours later Mrs. Berg received an anonymous telephone call from a man who said her husband "is being held."

Mrs. Berg said the man who telephoned her suggested that she not worry.

"Your husband is being held," she quoted him as saying. "He is well cared for and will not come to any harm. Don't worry about him. You will get a note in the morning explaining to whom you are to give the money."

When they ejected him, Pike said, one of the men said, "Walk up that road and don't look around. When you get back in about fifteen minutes you will find the machine." When he returned about fifteen minutes later, Pike said, the automobile, unoccupied, was standing in a ditch on the side of the road.

alrymen, was dispersed in a fierce battle. The Chinese casualties were 30 killed and six taken prisoner. Two Japanese were wounded.

The Japanese announced today that 12,000 Chinese laborers previously engaged in the Chinese arsenal and other government industries are being repatriated to Shantung province, in China proper. The expense is to be borne by the Japanese army and the South Manchuria railway.

The Japanese military headquarters here today issued a long statement generally denying the declarations of Dr. Alfred Sze, Chinese delegate to the league of nations, regarding the alleged seizure by the Japanese of Chinese salt taxes and customs administration in Manchuria.

The Japanese statement said the salt revenue is being handled the same as previously, the portion belonging to Manchuria being handed to the local Chinese communities, while the portion earmarked for the payment of interest and amortization of the Chinese foreign loans being remitted to the Nanking treasury.

Russia Appeals for Aid to China.

MOSCOW, Nov. 6.—(AP)—"Workers and oppressed people in all the capitalistic world" were urged today by the communist internationale to lend active support to the "Chinese proletariat" in their conflict with Japan over Manchuria. The executive committee of the internationale issued the appeal on the eve of the 14th anniversary of the October revolution.

"This war against the working masses of China," the statement read, "is a war against us and a step toward war against the soviet republic. Organize mass revolutionary barriers against that war for a united, independent soviet China.

"The leaders of all capitalistic countries are wandering about in search of an outlet, afraid of complete bankruptcy before the mounting proletarian revolution. The class fight is becoming more acute. The imperialists have already begun war in the Far East in the hope of attaining this outlet."

Outlines Soviet Policy.

Vyacheslaff Molotoff, president of the council of people's commissars, made a two hour "report to the proletariat" tonight, in the course of which he declared the soviet government's peace policy so far as the Manchurian situation is concerned remained unchanged. He reiterated the denial made recently by Acting Foreign Commissar Karakhan to the Japanese ambassador that the soviet government was lending any assistance to China.

"Whatever position other nations may take toward China," Molotoff said, "the soviet union continues true to its policy of respecting international agreements and the independence of China.

Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Stolz were hosts to more than 200 friends and relatives last night at their residence at 5010 Drexel boulevard, in celebration of Dr. Stolz's 70th birthday anniversary. Dr. Stolz recently was awarded the degree of doctor of Hebrew law by the Hebrew Union college of Cincinnati.

MONEY RAIDS ON JAPAN MENACE GOLD STANDARD

TOKIO, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Asserting that the outflow of gold from Japan had reached alarming proportions, financial and banking authorities of the empire today called upon the people to do their utmost to help maintain the gold standard in the face of the threatening situation in Manchuria.

A meeting of the heads of all Japan's leading banks was held at the residence of Premier Wakatsuki. Finance Minister Inouye also attended. They adopted a resolution which said that after Great Britain's abandonment of the gold standard Japan's outflow of the yellow metal "assumed alarming proportions, causing much discussion of the resumption of the gold embargo."

[In the last thirty days $75,000,000 worth of gold has been shipped from Japan to the United States, according to San Francisco compilations. Of this amount $23,500,000 arrived in the California city yesterday.]

GRANTS CHANGE OF VENUE FOR STATE AUDITOR

Grand Jury Inquiry Into Bain Banks Begun.

State Auditor Oscar Nelson was granted a change of venue yesterday by Circuit Judge Ralph J. Dady at Waukegan. Mr. Nelson's scheduled trial on charges of conspiracy and misfeasance in office in connection with the failure of the Waukegan State bank last June 17 was transferred to the court of Circuit Judge Edward D. Shurtleff in McHenry county. George Woodruff, chairman of the board of the former National Bank of the Republic, and Norman O. Geyer, former president of the Waukegan bank, who are co-defendants on the conspiracy charge, were also granted changes of venue.

STATE AUDITOR OSCAR NELSON.

Judge Dady overruled motions in behalf of the defendants to quash the charges. State's Attorney A. V. Smith of Lake county said he would ask an early trial. The request is to be presented to Judge Shurtleff on Nov. 16, when he will sit in Waukegan to hear arguments on a motion to quash an indictment charging conspiracy against William H. Miller, vice president of the former National Bank of the Republic, a fourth defendant, who made no request for a change of venue but asked a change of judges. The fifth defendant, John Murray Connors, former vice president of the Waukegan bank, is to be tried by Judge Dady. His motion to quash the indictment will be heard next week.

Judge Explains Decision.

In sending the cases of Nelson, Woodruff, and Geyer to McHenry county, Judge Dady said his decision was made in the interest of securing a fair and impartial trial. He said he considered McHenry county particularly good for the case because the cost of moving the trial would be small and because there had been only one bank failure in the county.

Attorney George W. Lennon, representing Geyer, objected to the selection because McHenry county adjoins Lake county. He said he feared that sentiment there would be similar to that of Lake county against the bank officials and Nelson. After consultation with Attorney Albert Fink, representing Nelson, Lennon withdrew his objection.

The indictment charges the officials and Nelson with conspiracy to keep the bank open after it was allegedly insolvent. Geyer is also charged with accepting deposits after the bank was insolvent.

Defense attorneys took exception to Judge Dady's ruling on the motions to quash and were given thirty days to prepare bills of exceptions. The court ordered State's Attorney Smith to file a bill of particulars on the first four counts of the conspiracy indictment within ten days. Defense attorneys indicated they will reopen arguments on motions to quash when the case comes before Judge Shurtleff.

Jury Probes Bain Banks.

The Cook county grand jury opened an inquiry on the conduct of the twelve closed Bain banks yesterday afternoon. State's Attorney Swanson announced that all Bain enterprises as well as the banks are to be investigated.

John Bain, head of the banks and financial houses under investigation, underwent a gall stone operation in the German Deaconess hospital in the morning. Dr. Frank M. Phifer reported that Mr. Bain was in remarkably good condition, denying reports the banker was near death. John H. Bain, son of the banker, who was to have appeared before the grand jury, was excused until Monday because of his father's illness.

Assistant State's Attorney Henry E. Ayers questioned 12 employés of various Bain banks. He refused to disclose their names, but said he was seeking information on the business methods of the banks. He also obtained a transcript of the proceedings before Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg, who has been searching for assets of John Bain, Inc.

Three witnesses appeared before the grand jury. Joseph Doran, subreceiver for the Armitage State bank, and Harry T. Jensen of the bank's real estate department were dismissed after brief questioning. Ervin Larson, assistant cashier of the bank, who was held to the grand jury by Superior Judge William J. Lindsay on testimony that he had changed a customer's bond for another in a Bain enterprise, was before the grand jury for more than two hours. He signed an immunity waiver.

Hugh Leslie, cashier of the Brainerd State bank, another Bain enterprise, who was also held to the grand jury by Judge Lindsay on a similar charge, was reported to have refused to sign an immunity waiver. He went before the grand jury, but came out of the jury room almost immediately.

The jury's investigation will be resumed Monday. Assistant State's Attorney Ayers said he will study the transcript of the proceedings before Judge Feinberg and question more Bain employés today and tomorrow in preparation for the Monday session.

Meanwhile John Bain, head of the closed banks, was in the German Evangelical Deaconess hospital resting from a major operation performed yesterday morning for an internal ailment. Late last night rumors were circulated that he had died. Dr. Frank M. Phifer, the banker's physician, issued the following statement to counteract the reports:

"Mr. Bain's condition is satisfactory considering the major operation he underwent this morning. Another bulletin will be issued in the morning."

Gas Heat in Homes Up 25 Per Cent, Company Says

The use of gas for home heating purposes has increased 25 per cent since the inauguration of the natural and manufactured gas mixture, the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company announced yesterday. At the present time approximately 3,000 homes are being heated by gas in the Chicago area. While a much larger increase had been expected, company officials stated many possible consumers had been lost for this year due to the late season when the Illinois commerce commission made a rate ruling.

We can use several high calibre young men with executive and merchandising experience. They must have excellent references. Applications will be held in strict confidence. Apply by letter to the superintendent

BRITISH PLANES BOMB SHIP; HIT IT 80 OF 100 TIMES

Explosives Dropped 5,000 Feet.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 6.—How a bombing squadron of the British royal air force "demolished" the pre-war battleship H. M. S. Centurion in a bombing test recently was revealed tonight. The percentage of hits scored by the squadron on the zig-zagging Centurion 5,000 feet below was 80 per cent. The tests also proved conclusively that the bombs will penetrate any decks which are not heavily armored.

The bombing was carried out by squadron No. 101, the only royal air force squadron equipped with a twin engine type of day bomber. New instruments and apparatus were used.

A new type of bomb release, which avoids even a slight delay between the operator's action and the actual release of the bomb, was employed. This new secret device removes the delay productive of error in the ordinary bomb dropping apparatus.

An automatic device which keeps the airplane at a level keel was also successfully introduced. Bombing experts point out that it is necessary for the plane to be brought to an even level with the target to insure a better hit.

That the squadron was able to score such a high percentage of hits is considered even more remarkable due to the fact that the area of the Centurion is considerable less than that of the present day battleship. According to air force officials, the demonstration proved that the squadron could have scored 100 per cent hits on modern battleships.

The tests afforded no indication of the casualties which would be suffered by the attacking squadron. Bombs to have penetrative effect must be dropped from great heights and it has been proven that planes flying high are easier targets than low flying craft, which almost defy the gun trainer.

Off for Movies

John Monk Saunders, author of "Wings," "Nikki and Her Pals," and other air stories, arrived yesterday on the Advance Century of the New York Central and departed a short time later for Hollywood. He was accompanied by his wife, Fay Wray, motion picture star.

JAIL MOTORIST WHO DROVE WITH FAULTY BRAKES

Gets Ten Day Term for Negligence.

Joseph Miechalyka, 4624 North Meade avenue, was sentenced to ten days in the county jail yesterday because he operated an automobile with faulty brakes. The formal charge, heard by Judge Padden in the Traffic court, was reckless driving.

The evidence brought out that on Oct. 14 Miechalyka was driving east in the 5100 block of Diversey avenue. A bus ahead of him stopped for passengers. He swung his car to the left to pass the bus.

West bound on Diversey was an automobile driven by Edward J. Dunne, 5038 Diversey avenue. He saw the Meichalyka car turn out from behind the bus straight at him.

Other Car Is Stopped.

Dunne slammed on his brakes. They were in good condition. They held. They stopped his car. Meichalyka slammed on his brakes. They didn't hold. The automobiles crashed.

"It wasn't my fault," Meichalyka pleaded with the judge. "I could have avoided the accident, but my brakes weren't working."

"Not your fault?" Judge Padden echoed, rising from his chair. "I don't know of any more dangerous form of criminal negligence than driving without good brakes. Why didn't you have your brakes fixed?"

"I don't know," Miechalyka shrugged his shoulders, "I just never got around to it."

"It's too bad you are such a busy man," the court ended the case, "I'm sentencing you to ten days in jail."

Plan to Test Brakes.

The Chicago Motor club yesterday obtained permission from the Lincoln park and the west park boards to conduct "safety lanes," free brake testing stations, in their jurisdiction next week. A request for similar permission was addressed to the south park board. The exact time and place of the tests will be announced later.

The police of the city and of the three park districts have been ordered to examine for mechanical defects every automobile involved in an accident and to prefer charges against drivers whose vehicles are dangerously inefficient.

Judge Padden during the day also assessed a $1,000 fine upon George B. Krug, owner of an excavating business at 6331 South Chicago avenue, who has charged with failure to provide city vehicle tags for eleven of his trucks.

PILOT KILLED AS NEW TYPE PLANE CRASHES IN TEST

Jumps, but Parachute Does Not Open.

Niles, Mich., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—Merrill Lambert, 25, of Carrollton, O., fell to his death this noon at the Niles airport when he jumped from an experimental type airplane at an altitude of about 4,000 feet and did not use his parachute. Whether he tried to open the chute, or was stunned by hitting part of the plane when he jumped, was not determined.

Lambert was testing the plane on its first trial flight when its performance evidently alarmed him and he climbed from the cockpit to jump. The plane crashed and was destroyed. It was a Herrick vertoplane, made by the Heath Aircraft corporation, and designed to embody principles of both the conventional airplane and the autogyro. It had an air cooled Poyer radial motor.

It had two sets of wings, the upper set so designed that they could be revolved. This wing when rotating was expected to allow the plane to rise or lower vertically on the autogyro principle.

Rotor Fails to Function.

After taking off with the plane's upper wing fixed in the conventional position, Lambert released it as a rotor at 4,000 feet, according to observers. It remained attached only by the center section. The rotors turned, but immediately began to slow up and as the plane began to settle Lambert jumped.

What is supposed to have happened to Lambert, according to spectators versed in aerodynamics, was that he found the two fixed rotors, composed of the released upper wing, developed a heavy torque that tended to turn the plane over. Realising he would not be able to land the plane under these conditions, Lambert had no recourse but to jump. It was presumed that the rotating wing, which was turning the plane over, struck him as he left the ship and stunned him so he was unable to open the chute.

Lambert held the world's altitude record for planes weighing less than 440 pounds. He went up 18,500 feet here in a one seated Heath plane, of the parasol type.

Another Test Pilot Killed.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—E. C. Ritchie, a test pilot for the Glenn L. Martin Aircraft company of Baltimore, was killed today when a plane he was demonstrating for the navy department crashed at the Anacostia naval air station.

Ritchie's clothing caught on the tail of the plane when he attempted to make a parachute jump to safety after the wings had dropped off during a power dive. He was literally dragged through the air for 6,000 feet.

The plane was undergoing its final demonstration before acceptance by the navy for testing. It was a Martin diving bomber, type BM-1, powered by a 525 horsepower Pratt and Whitner hornet engine.

Wings Carried Away.

According to witnesses Ritchie had taken the craft to an altitude of 8,000 feet and nosed it over into a dive. Almost immediately, watchers said, the wings carried away. It was not until the plane was within a few hundred feet of the ground that they discovered the pilot caught on the tailpiece.

The navy department termed the accident due to "structural failure." The wings, it was stated, were unable to stand up under the terrific strain of the power drive.

Ritchie was formerly a navy lieutenant, having left the service less than a year ago.

Every new plane must be given a manufacturer's demonstration before acceptance by the navy. It was said here today that it is not unusual for failures in the craft to occur during these tests, but that the pilots were usually able to escape in parachutes.

Two Killed at Waco.

Waco, Tex., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—Edward Ockander, 24, and J. G. Lancaster, 35, were killed here today when their Fairchild 21 biplane, powered with a Kinner motor, crashed. The accident occurred at the East Waco airport.

REPORT JACOBS WILL OFFER CUT IN POLICE FORCE

A reduction in the number of uniformed patrolmen in the police department was reported yesterday to be among the recommendations being made by J. L. Jacobs, efficiency engineer, in the preparation of the city's 1932 budget. The abolition of some of the 54 police captaincies is reported to be another recommendation.

Jacobs' finding is said to be that there are not sufficient station commands for all the captains, and that about ten of them are superfluous. His recommendation to reduce the number of patrolmen is reported to be based upon the fact that the number of men traveling beats is being increased by police reorganization plan.

In the fire department Jacobs has recommended, according to the reports, the abolition of one of the higher ranks in the uniformed force, and the reduction to the grade of firemen of another rank of fire officials.

The Last of a Municipal Experiment

Heap of ruins, which was all that remained of city garbage incinerator plant at 95th street and Bennett avenue yesterday after chimney was dynamited.

BLAST FINISHES COSTLY TRIAL IN CITY OWNERSHIP

$219,000 Incinerator Never Used.

A charge of dynamite sent a 200 foot monument to one of Chicago's municipal ownership follies crashing to the ground yesterday. The tall smokestack which was razed was all that remained of a garbage incinerator near 95th street and Stony Island avenue. It cost the city $219,341 in 1914, and was never used.

The plant was put up to make a "showing" just before an election. It was never beyond the structural steel stage. For many years the tall stack and the skeleton of steel were a lonely landmark in the midst of the cattails bordering Lake Calumet. Several railroad lines entering Chicago pass near the point as they skirt the lake, and the abandoned plant was one of the first sights thousands of travelers had of the city.

Fluke Gives City $800.

The steel was torn down a year ago, and the city got $800 from the wreckers who dismantled it. That was a mistake, however. The wrecking company thought that a competitor had bid $750 for the privilege, whereas in fact the other company was going to charge the city $750 for the job. The successful bidders tried to renege, on the ground that they had been misinformed, and the city had to go into the courts to enforce the contract.

Recently police reported that children playing about the tall stack were in danger. Yesterday employes of the department of public works put a charge of dynamite at the base of the stack and toppled it over on the prairie.

$11,950 Cost of Stack.

The stack, which was 11 feet in diameter at the base, cost $11,950 to build. The bricks will be given to owners of surrounding lands for filling purposes. The city still owns 115 acres of land on which the plant was situated. The land originally cost $15,068. During the period of booming real estate prices it was valued at $1,000 an acre, but it would bring far less than that today, city officials said.

Hoover Names Lindbergh to Air Advisory Board

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6.—(AP)—President Hoover today named Charles A. Lindbergh a member of the national advisory committee for aeronautics. The committee, responsible to the department of commerce, is a semi-official body numbering in its membership leaders of service and civilian aviation.

HOOVER ANGERED BY NEWS LEAK OF WIFE'S MICROPHONE LESSONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—The White House buzzed fretfully today over what, it seemed, was the latest news "leak"—press stories telling how Mrs. Hoover sought to improve the recording of her voice in the talkies by practicing before a microphone.

Secret service men were ordered to circulate among newspaper correspondents and news reel cameramen in an effort to learn how word of Mrs. Hoover's vocal experiments had got out. It was reported that no talking pictures would be allowed of Mrs Hoover's radio talk to 4-H club members tomorrow.

There were also reports that the news reel photographers might be barred from the White House for a time.

Mrs. Hoover's practice sessions at the microphone were held because on recent occasions when she has spoken for the talkies her voice has not recorded clearly.

BEN THE WELCHER FOLDS HIS TENT AND STEALS AWAY

Ben [The Welcher] Marden closed shop yesterday at the Continental Gold Coast club, 19 Cedar street, moved out his glittering furniture and to all appearances, quit business. Last night when Sergt. James Dwyer of East Chicago avenue station tried to serve the nightly summons charging Marden with failing to procure a food dispensing license, he found the place dark.

If he has closed, Marden has just "beat the gun," for United States Attorney E. Q. Johnson moved yesterday to padlock the club with a permanent injunction for a prohibition violation. A temporary injunction will be asked this morning, based on the assertion of Policeman Walter E. Gregory that he bought two drinks of liquor there a few days ago.

Marden's lawyers have told Mr. Johnson that he will be presented in court Monday on the dry charges.

Gunmen Rob Drug Store; Lock Clerks in Basement

Three gunmen menaced the manager and three clerks in the Liggett drug store at 1601 Howard street last night and stole $550. The clerks, Betty Ludwig, 5518 Winthrop avenue; Catherine McCabe, 1604 Berteau avenue, and Hazel Whitman, 1142 Granville avenue, were locked in a basement room. The manager, Walter Day, 2116 Birchwood avenue, was forced to open the store safe.

M. BOGOSLOWSKI FOUND GUILTY OF EXTORTION

CRIMINAL COURT.

Morris Bogoslowski, extortion, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary by Judge Harry Fisher.

Frank Lloyd, Harold Shell and Matt Evans, larceny, sentenced to 1 year each in the Bridewell; Edward Laske, larceny, sentenced to 1 year in Pontiac reformatory and Martin Manual, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary by Judge Rudolph Desort.

Morris Bogoslowski, long a familiar figure in the prisoner's dock, but hitherto a stranger to penitentiary gates, was found guilty yesterday of extortion by threat by Chief Justice Fisher of the Criminal court and sentenced to serve from one to twenty years at Joliet.

Judge Fisher overruled all motions by Attorney Michael Romano, representing Bogoslowski, for stay of sentence and bond pending appeal and ordered the prisoner taken to prison at once.

Bogoslowski was charged with being the leader of a ring which preyed on physicians and succeeded in extorting money from some members of the profession.

The weapons used were bombs, several of which were exploded at physicians' homes and threats, that if payments were not made that the extortionists would circulate rumors that the physicians they victimized were abortionists.

Bogoslowski and two companions, Charles Fried and Joseph Hadad, were captured on Sept. 24 in the Temple building, 77 West Washington street, when they called there in an alleged attempt to collect a $2,000 bribe from Dr. Elmer D. Howe, 6701 Greenview avenue. Dr. Howe's home had been bombed twice in the preceding fortnight.

ENDS LIFE BY HANGING.

Jacob Walkowicz, 48 years old, 1062 Fry street, a laborer, hanged himself yesterday at his home.

along the lake front tomorrow afternoon.

Russel Boardman and John Polando wired from Cleveland they would arrive at Chicago airport today to take part in the charity show. They flew nonstop from New York to Turkey last July, setting a new world's distance record of 4,999 miles.

Miss Maude Irving Tait, society girl of Springfield, Mass., who flies a Gee Bee for sport, yesterday wired she is taking off this morning to fly to Chicago. Miss Tait won the aerol trophy race for women pilots at the national air races two months ago in her Gee Bee, and tied the American women's speed record.

Balchen on Way Here.

Bernt Balchen wired from New York that he planned to take off early this morning in a Laird biplane to fly to Chicago, bringing his manager, Fred Benham. Balchen was Admiral Byrd's pilot on a trans-Atlantic flight and on two polar expeditions.

Casey Jones, vice president of the Curtiss-Wright Flying services, also wired from New York he was leaving for Chicago. Casey is one of the Early Bird pilots—those who flew before 1914—and is expected to show Chicagoans some crazy flying, as well as entertain them on the public address system over which every one of the visiting pilots will speak.

Mrs. Phoebe Fairgrave Omlie plans to take off at Memphis this morning for Chicago in her red and yellow monocoupe, in which she has won several score national races.

Herndon and Pangborn Start.

Hugh Herndon Jr. and Clyde Pangborn, who flew around the world and nonstop across the Pacific from Japan to the United States, last night landed in Albany, N. Y., en route to Chicago. Herndon is bringing his bride, formerly Miss Mary Ellen Farley of Loudonville.

John Livingston plans to fly from Aurora today to prepare to fly his sensational little plane tomorrow afternoon. Livingston has won more places in national air races than any other man.

Eddie Stinson, a flyer of years ago who grew from barnstorming to the presidency of his own airplane factory, will appear in one of his own planes. E. M. (Matty) Laird, a Chicagoan who also started out barnstorming and now builds racing planes, will demonstrate the stunts one of his planes can do.

Woman Stunt Pilot to Fly.

Art Killins of the Stinson airport, a regular performer at national air races, and Betty Lund, one of the best women stunt pilots, will do their bit. Lou Reichers, pilot, and Bernarr Macfadden, publisher, will fly to the air show in Macfadden's plane, reputedly the fastest two seater in the world.

George Haldeman is flying from Wheeling, W. Va., and Mrs. Ruth Stewart and Miss Debie Stanford are coming from St. Louis. Haldeman is experienced in ocean flying, while Mrs. Stewart and Miss Stanford plan to take off on their first ocean flight later this month.

Walter J. Hunter, of the endurance flying Hunter brothers, who is a member of the Caterpillar club by virtue of a 200-foot jump with a parachute at Cleveland recently, will be present.

James Haizlip, racing pilot of St. Louis, is expected to attend the air show, in spite of recent injuries suffered by his wife, Mae Haizlip, also a well known pilot.

Maj. Wadsworth, commander of the Enna Jettick blimp, wired Maj. Schroeder he will arrive at Chicago airport this morning at 10 o'clock in the blimp, in order to participate in the charity show.

Miss Jahncke, Mother Arrive.

Mrs. Ernest Lee Jahncke and Miss Adelé Jahncke, wife and daughter of Assistant Secretary of the Navy Jahncke, arrived at Chicago airport yesterday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock on an American Airways plane from New Orleans. Miss Jahncke will christen planes of the American Airways on the Chicago-New Orleans route, "La Salle," in honor of the French explorer, at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow morning at the airport.

The assistant secretary of the navy is expected to arrive in Chicago from Washington today for the ceremony, and to attend the charity air races in the afternoon over Grant Park. Mrs. Jahncke and her daughter will return over the American Airways to New Orleans.

Another prominent visitor at the charity show will be William P. MacCracken Jr., former assistant secretary of commerce, who will arrive in Chicago today.

Boat to Race Plane.

Plans were made definite yesterday for the ten mile race between Art Jacobs' championship outboard speedboat racer and the baby amphibian just completed by the Curtiss-Wright organization. Walter H. Beech, president of the Curtiss Airplane company of St. Louis, is bringing the baby amphibian to Chicago today.

W. K. Bliss, general manager of the Century Air Lines, announced he was receiving full cooperation of all the air lines operating in and out of Chicago for their participation in the parade of giant air liners that will open the show at 2 o'clock sharp. Their arrival over Grant Park will be heralded by a fifteen minute aerial bombardment. Following the parade of air liners more than 100 sportsmen pilots of Chicago will fly over the park in a single file parade several miles long.

In rapid succession more than twenty famous flyers will fly over the park, give their exhibitions of skill, stunting, and speed flight. Seven Douglas observation planes, Hornet powered, of the 33d division aviation, Illinois National Guard, under command of Lieut.-Col. M. D. Mann, will give three separate exhibitions of military tactics.

Maj. Schroeder announced that today will be the last chance for Chicagoans to buy stickers for their automobiles which will allow them quick access to Grant park for the air show.

Aviation Notes

The longest airway in the United States, operated by United Air lines from New York to Chicago and the Pacific coast, now has intermediate or emergency landing fields at an average of every 35 miles. The route is 2,786 miles long. Supplementing these safeguards are beacon lights ten miles apart and lighted emergency fields.

Entries are being taken for the fourth annual All American air races, to be held Jan. 7 to 9 at Miami, Fla.

Secrecy surrounds the construction of two flying boat type autogiros in the Aviam Weymann factory near Paris, France. The boat giros are being built for the French navy, which believes they will replace dirigible airships for war time use.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Poland, Nov. 6.—Anti-Semitic disturbances today spread from universities to high schools. Students beat up Jews and pupils of Jewish appearance. Nineteen were taken to hospitals, bringing the total injured to 40 in Warsaw alone. Women were beaten, dragged in the streets, and their clothes torn off, while in Saxon park women and children were attacked by students, assisted by hoodlums.

Jews organized themselves in self-defense and wounded several students. Only the arrival of police detachments in armored cars prevented further bloodshed.

Mme. Lukasiewicz, Catholic wife of the dean of Warsaw university, was mistaken for a Jewess because of her dark hair, and was severely beaten. The university was immediately closed and the minister of the interior informed Jewish deputies that any further rioting will be promptly dealt with.

Ask Bankruptcy Against Lake Shore Athletic Club

An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in the United States District court yesterday against the Lake Shore Athletic club on behalf of three creditors with nominal claims of $1,000. The petition alleged that the club had permitted a judgment for $2,000 to be entered against it in the Municipal court. Foreclosure proceedings were instituted against the club recently in the state court.

S THIS A GRUDGE IGHT ON VETS? U. S. DRYS ASKED

he government was asked yester- y whether it is proceeding to pun- individual members of the Ameri- n Legion for the stand the Legion ok against prohibition in the recent nvention at Detroit. The prosecu- n of Charles L. Wiley, a Legion- e, for conspiracy in the federal urt after he had asked leniency for a home-brewing janitor, brought out s question.

In a letter to Ames W. W. Woodcock, ief of national prohibition enforce- ent, Col. Ira L. Reeves, manager of e east central division of the Cru- ders, an anti-prohibition organiza- on, tells how Wiley, a business man th a fine combat record, was held n a charge of conspiracy on the ords of Assistant United States Dis- ct Attorney Walter E. Wiles.

Legion Men Indignant.

"There is indignation," says the tter, "among the Legionnaires and hers who appear to believe Assist- nt District Attorney Wiles to be a end of Clarence True Wilson and the rohibition Board of Temperance, Pro- bition, and Public Morals, and that Dr. Wilson's means of retalia- n because of the action recently ken of the national Legion conven- on.

"I am therefore asking your per- ission to allow us access to the rec- ds of your office covering those ters between the date of the Legion nvention and the present time in der that we may discover if it is ue true that more veterans of the rld war have been prosecuted since e Legion took its decided stand on e question of prohibition."

Prohibition on the arrest of Wiley ere to be presented at many Legion eetings, Col. Reeves said. A discus- on of the case is scheduled for the usiness next Monday of the Adver- sing post.

Meets Cold Response.

Col. Reeves said he asked Prosecu- r Wiles for complete information on e government's position in the pros- cution of Wiley and Boleslaw Lidike- ics, the janitor in the case. He was referred to Assistant United States At- orney Victor E. La Rue, who hung up e telephone receiver in the midst of e conversation, he said. Then, he added, he talked to United States At- orney George E. Q. Johnson who re- fused to discuss the case.

"Tut, I understand Mr. Johnson as had several conferences about e case with a representative of the American business men's prohibition ssociation, a collection outfit for the Anti-Saloon league," said Col. Reeves. I made the request as a citizen and was denied. There seems to be con- iderable nolleus in this case."

Spits, Says Attorney.

Attorney Stephen A. Day, son of the late Justice William R. Day of the United States Supreme court and secretary of state in President McKin- ley's cabinet, who was employed yes- terday to represent Lidikewicz, said in his view there was a nolleus in the case.

"Some one caused Lidikewicz's ar- est as a matter of spite," he charged. "I am trying to get the facts of an incident in which he was compelled to put an end to a noisy party in which ome policemen or prohibition agents were participants. In retaliation, the prohibition agents and policemen earched his basement home at 3901 Euclid avenue without right or war- ant.

"It was never contemplated that he government would begin a cam- aign of invasion of homes until it ad completely ended commercial boot- legging. Has that time arrived?

"The foreign born man sold no eer; what he made was for home onsumption. What was seized was said to be 4 per cent beer, but no tests were made, as I understand the situation. The agents and police de- cided that point by their sense of mell.

"Before I can take any legal steps told him I must obtain all the facts. I am told that when asked to plead guilty or not guilty he said to the judge 'If it is wrong to make home brew then I am guilty.'"

Attorney Day, who was a recent candidate for congress at large and who is being urged to run for con- gress in the elections next year, said he would confer with Attorney Wil- liam G. Dunn, who was retained by the Crusaders, to map out a plan of action.

SALOON SPRAYED WITH BULLETS; TWO ARE KILLED

Detroit Rum Runner, Bar Owner Feud Victims.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—Joe Rivett, notorious down river liquor runner, and Charles Tear were killed tonight when three gunmen walked into Tear's Wyandotte saloon and opened fire with machine guns and a shotgun. A third man, John Pelky, was wounded and is expected to die in Wyandotte General hospital. Thirty hours previously Rivett had been exonerated by a coroner's jury for killing a liquor runner.

Witnesses said that Rivett came into the saloon with Pelky. Five minutes later the slayers entered and opened fire on Rivett.

Leaps Over Bar.

Police are working on the theory that Rivett was shot by gangsters in reprisal for the slaying of Joe Evola, who was killed by Rivett in a saloon shooting several weeks ago.

Tear was behind the bar and leaped over it with a revolver in his hand when he saw Rivett fall. The assailants then turned their fire on him and he fell.

Rivett had drawn his own pistol when he saw the men, but was not given an opportunity to use it. Pelky also had drawn his gun and was the last of the trio to be shot.

3 Men Enter Saloon.

When the three men entered the saloon, Tear was behind the bar with Steve Messer, bartender. Rivett and Pelky were in front of the bar drinking beer, police said.

The three gunmen confronted the men and immediately opened fire. Tear was shot in the head. Rivett's jaw was shot off. Pelky, shot in the body, was taken to the Wayandotte General hospital in a critical condition.

Wyandotte police immediately started a search for Messer, the bartender, who escaped the gunfire of the three machine gunners.

Ward Leader Forms a Savage-for-Governor Club

Thomas Lindskog, former Brundage leader in the 49th ward, announced last night the formation of a Howard P. Savage for Governor club in that territory. He is president and the roster of officers includes George Sugarman, Cornelius C. Cole and Thomas P. Meyers Jr. Among the directors are William G. Knox, Lloyd D. Miller, and A. B. Rand.

STORM BREWS OVER MOUNTING NEW YORK TAXES

City's Uncollected Levies Total $121,000,000.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 6.—[Special.]—This state and city have their tax woes. In the face of a rising tide of unpaid and apparently uncollectable taxes, both the state and New York City budgets have grown like Jack's bean stalk, and a storm is brewing over increased assessments and impending rate raises.

CHARLES W. BERRY. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

The state is faced with a deficit of $30,000,000 to $60,000,000, depending on where you get your figures, and New York's budget for 1932 has been set at $700,000,000. Of this amount that Tammany proposes to spend $631,000,000 must be raised by taxing real estate and personal property.

Increase of $14,000,000.

This represents an increase of almost $14,000,000 over the last budget and somebody has to pay. Real estate authorities have estimated that the end of 1931 there will be $121,000,000 of unpaid taxes on the city rolls and New York will be that much nearer bankruptcy.

From upstate comes word that at least 7 of the 62 counties in the state are in serious financial difficulties because of failure to collect back taxes. Their plight will be taken up in another story, as this article concerns New York City's tax dilemma.

These Taxes Uncollected.

To begin with, consider the trend in the following table showing the city's income from real estate and personal property since 1920, together with the amount standing uncollected at the close of each year:

Year—	Income.	Unpaid taxes.	Percentage.
1921	284,146,624	34,303,636	12.06
1922	288,229,823	30,256,120	10.49
1923	296,275,993	30,747,611	10.37
1924	312,350,584	32,946,196	10.51
1925	327,183,025	34,177,085	10.44
1926	360,448,540	40,306,767	11.15
1927	401,358,319	50,792,797	12.49
1928	441,337,774	63,023,616	14.09
1929	466,766,093	72,892,369	15.56

Warns Against Increases.

Peter Grimm, speaking for the New York Real Estate board, in a warning against any tax increase said:

"It is not merely a matter of the inability of real estate owners to pay increased taxes. They can barely pay the excessive taxes now being levied. It is the staggering fact that the amount of unpaid taxes now on the rolls of the City of New York which are drawing penalty interest of 7 per cent are higher than they have ever been in the history of the department, totaling $121,000,000."

Controller Charles W. Berry, however, today produced a set of figures which, while failing to refute Mr. Grimm's $121,000,000 delinquent total, had a slightly more cheery outlook. Mr. Berry warned of the possibility of a tax rate increase above the present 2.57 basic rate, but insisted reports of a "tremendous increase in the amount of uncollectible taxes next year were exaggerated. Mr. Berry said there were less delinquents than usual, "considering the depression."

Controller More Optimistic.

"The levy on real estate for 1931," the controller said, "is $509,987,914.87. The first half of the levy payable in May was therefore $253,493,957.43. At the close of business Nov. 4, payments on the first half amounted to $219,896,000. This is over 87 per cent of the first half. The second half was not due until Nov. 2 and payment can be made without interest until Nov. 30. The receipts for the second half to the close of business on Wednesday amounted to $20,069,836 compared with $20,514,278 on Nov. 4, 1930.

"The total taxes outstanding on Dec. 31, 1930, including the uncollected amount on account of the 1930 tax levy aggregated $201,929,496. Included in this amount was $77,746,174 of personal property tax which indicated that the real estate taxes uncollected aggregated $124,183,321. As I have stated there has been collected this year the sum of $80,072,757 of these real estate taxes."

"The controller in a report to the board of estimate dated Oct. 2, 1931, shows that of the uncollected real estate taxes $36,300,000 is estimated to be uncollectible and, including an appropriation to be made in the 1932 budget, that this amount has been and is to be provided for. Therefore of the outstanding real estate taxes of 1930 and prior years, the amount deemed to be collectible is $87,810,564."

Mr. Berry's figures, therefore, appear to place the amount of uncollectable taxes at $36,372,757.

Owners of real estate have found it increasingly hard to pay their taxes and these unpaid bills are eating into the annual income out of which Tammany hopes to pay its budgets. There have been no economics under the Tammany rule. The city has run further and further into debt until the debt service amounts to 31 per cent of what the city spends in its budget.

Economic law cannot be diverted and unless the tide of unpaid taxes is stemmed or economies are effected, New York City gradually will move into bankruptcy, economists warn. At the present rate of debt service progression the credit of the city is likely to be seriously affected within a few years.

DINNER, DINNER, DINNER WILL BE KEYNOTE OF GRANDI VISIT TO U. S.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister, and Signora Grandi will spend a busy four days in Washington, according to the timetable given out by the state department tonight. They will arrive in New York Nov. 16 and proceed immediately to Washington. There will be the formal call at the White House, a dinner given by the secretary of state, a White House dinner, and one given by the Italian ambassador. On Nov. 20 they will go to Philadelphia and attend a luncheon given by the mayor. Nov. 21 and 22 will be spent in Baltimore as the guests of the ambassador to Italy and Mrs. J. W. Garrett. On Nov. 23 they will return to New York.

BOGAN DEFENDS PART TIME STUDY PLAN FOR WORKER

William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools, defended part-time schools yesterday and declared that the costs have been exaggerated and the results minimized. He spoke before the education group meeting of the Illinois Vocational association which opened a two day convention in the Hotel Sherman.

"Unfortunately the public believes that its sole duty in education has been accomplished when it provides educational facilities for those who need these facilities least," he said. "No expenditure is too great for the education of the professional classes and others who might with comparative ease provide education for their children at their own expense.

"The working child is not so fortunate. Society places an educational menu before him and calmly announces that he may take it or leave it at the limit of the compulsory school period. When he leaves it society even begrudges him the eight hours a week of education required by law in some of the larger and more enlightened cities of the country.

At the banquet last night, Dr. Charles A. Prosser, president of Dunwoody institute, and Dr. Andy Hall, chief of the department of public health of Illinois, spoke. Miss Frances Swain, president of the American Home Economics association, presided.

DUCE'S EMISSARY SAILS TODAY FOR CALL ON HOOVER

Grandi Gets Orders from Mussolini.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Nov. 6.—As Premier Mussolini's personal emissary, Foreign Minister Dino Grandi, accompanied by his attractive wife and a staff of nine, will sail from Naples tomorrow noon to return at Washington a visit paid here last summer by Secretary of State Stimson.

Plans of the international disarmament conference next February and a special elaboration of the Italian point of view in the naval armament controversy with France will form the chief topics of conversations between Grandi, President Hoover, and Stimson, it was indicated today. An Italo-French accord last March was sidetracked at the last minute, and a preliminary settlement of this problem is considered as essential to the success of the conference next February.

Visit Ends Cycle of Visits.

Sig. Grandi's visit to the United States is regarded as the conclusion of a cycle of personal interviews between statesmen which have characterized international politics this summer. In political circles these visits are stressed as a concerted development of a policy of closer collaboration between the United States and Europe.

Mussolini's government, in fact, claims to have been the first to proclaim that collaboration with the United States is fundamental to any international policy of reconstruction for Europe. This idea was voiced at Geneva when efforts were made to organize the so-called "United States of Europe."

Italy's immediate acceptance of the Hoover moratorium and the Mussolini-Stimson understanding, which flowered into Grandi's armament holiday proposal at Geneva, are also cited as marking the coincidence of the views of Rome and Washington. The similarity of ideas in Mussolini's speech at Naples with those expressed by Senator William E. Borah recently is also put forth as showing that coincidence.

Shares Hoover's Views on Crisis.

It is stressed that Sig. Grandi shares completely President Hoover's views that one of the chief factors in the present economic crisis is the heavy financial expenditure on armaments, together with international distrust based on the fear that armed countries may want to use their dangerous tools. It is said no program of the contemplated discussion has been planned and that no outright formulas are to be expected as an outcome of the visit.

Sig. Grandi's departure will be as unceremonious as Stimson's arrival last summer. The foreign minister had a final discussion with Premier Mussolini today.

CLUB WOMEN ACT TO CUT COST OF SCHOOL SYSTEM

Demand Limit on Use of Power Machines.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

The problems of just where to call a halt on public school expenditures and what direction to take in future curriculum making has taken a more definite form through the action of the Woman's City club in opposing the use of power driven machinery in the schools for children under 16.

MRS. H. A. TYLER. Barhaff-Richter Photo.

Mrs. Harvey A. Tyler, chairman of the public schools committee of the club, had some observations to make yesterday on this subject, which is to be brought to the attention of the board of education in the form of a resolution by the club.

Attacks Use of Machines.

The resolution calls attention to the fact that jig saws, emery wheels, wood and metal lathes, and laundry machinery, are operated in the public schools by children 16 years of age and that the state child labor laws forbid the operation of all power driven machinery by children under sixteen.

"There is no inspection of the machinery in the public schools by the state department of labor to insure a condition of safety for the operators such as is required of all workshops, mills and factories," says the resolution, "nor do the children injured by machinery in the public schools receive the benefits of compensation due children under the Illinois workmen's compensation act.

"The cost of purchasing power driven machinery for the school workshops is far in excess of the cost of equipment of any other departments in the school system."

Asks Protection for Pupils.

"The club women call upon the board of education in the interests of economy and safety to "give the school children the same protection afforded the children in industry by observing the standards set by the Illinois child labor law and the city ordinance of the city of Chicago, designed to protect their health, life and limb, and by discontinuing the use of the power driven machinery in our public schools."

The last phrase here, referring to the discontinuance of such methods of education, is the hornet that will stir the advocates of "education in preparation for life" and those who would go back to the simpler elements of citizenship training.

"I would sell all the power driven machinery and keep it out of the schools, except for the courses in advanced training," said Mrs. Tyler, who has spent four years in watching the methods and the sprawling processes of education in Chicago and its ever increasing expense. "I see no educational value in it for young children. And I would stop building these huge, expensive buildings. The ideal of education is the small class. I should like to see more attention paid to the elementary schools, and the best teachers sent there at salaries equal to those in the higher grades. I should like to see a 12 months' school year with a very flexible curriculum.

For Educational Background.

"What seems to be lacking is an educational background to direct these things. We have just been grabbing things here and there, every new idea pushed forward by a minority group. I suppose the Woman's City club is guilty of just this sort of pressure. We really should have great planning. We have the brains and the professional knowledge here in Chicago to do this. The children need it. Why cannot the resources of Chicago schools be utilized? Why spend $100,000 to go to Columbia university for this sort of thing?

"We have got to decide on a goal some time and at this time, when there is such urgent need of economy, the way seems clear toward simplification of the curriculum. We have brought up the issue not in an abstract form, but as a definite objection to power driven machinery.

"The standard equipment for the junior high school shops, the print shop, electric shop, and woodworking shop, costs $5,288 for each school.

Report on Empty Rooms.

"In connection with the propaganda for a new bond issue of $50,000,000 for new school buildings, I should like to submit a report which was made to the board of education on Aug. 31 last, showing that there are 365 vacant rooms in the elementary schools. With 48 pupils to a room the use of these rooms would just about take care of those it has been thought necessary to house in portable school buildings.

"I believe the new buildings can be dispensed with at this time, that we should keep the children longer in the elementary schools.

"Take the matter of these dictaphones that have been recently put into the schools. We have visited four schools where they have been installed and found only one teacher that thought they were of any value in education. The children can learn the use of them in about thirty minutes. What was behind that expense at this time? I do not know, but I have watched the board meetings long enough to know that there is a lot going on behind the scenes and the grandstand speeches."

CAR LINES BUY $1,850,000 IN TAX WARRANTS

$820,000 More Available to Pay Teachers.

The Chicago Surface Lines yesterday bought $1,850,000 worth of 1930 and 1931 tax warrants from the city and the board of education. All except $205,000 of this sum will be available for pay rolls of the city and schools.

The surface lines made the purchase from their reserve for taxes, and the tax warrant purchases were so apportioned that the company can turn them in as payment on its taxes when they fall due.

With the exception of $200,000 worth of 1930 warrants of the city bond and interest fund, for which a buyer was not found, the 1930 warrant purchases were made from the city's aggregate of funds, from which the money was extracted for pay roll purposes once before, the warrants being deposited as security.

The Warrants Purchased.

The warrants consisted of $440,000 of the city corporate fund, $10,000 of the municipal tuberculosis sanitarium, and $450,000 of the school educational fund. The 1931 purchases, for which new warrants were issued, were $375,000 from the corporate fund, $370,000 from the school educational fund, and $5,000 from the firemen's pension fund.

With $74,150 which it already has in the corporate fund, the purchases will give the city $889,150 to meet December corporate pay rolls, which aggregate about $4,000,000. November pay rolls will be met by a tax warrant purchase from the aggregate of funds already authorized by the city council. The $820,000 made available to the school board would pay teachers for about a week.

Appeal to Business Chiefs.

Mayor Cermak and President Lewis E. Myers of the school board yesterday sent letters to Samuel Insull, D. F. Kelly, president of the Fair store; Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank; Louis F. Swift, chairman of the board of Swift & Co., and Henry A. Scandrett, president of the Milwaukee railroad, asking them to serve as a committee to sell $6,965,000 worth of 1930 school board tax warrants.

It is hoped that other corporations may be persuaded to buy the warrants as the surface lines did, and hold them for payment of taxes.

REVIEW BOARD FINISHES WORK ON 1930 TAXES

Assessment Total Fixed at $4,247,686,797.

The board of review sent its final tax books to the county clerk yesterday and announced that the total of real estate, personal property and railroad assessments which it made was $4,247,686,797.

To this will be added the assessments on railroad rights of way and other stock, and on the capital stock of Illinois corporations, which are fixed by the state tax commission. The state commission will not finish its work for two weeks.

The reviewers made public yesterday their assessment figures for Chicago real estate and for all of the personal property in the county. The totals of town real estate assessment books were delivered to the county clerk on Oct. 12, as were the assessments which county officers make on personal property not used for railroad purposes.

Total Assessment $34,605,198.

The reviewers cut $34,605,198 from the assessments by the board of assessors, of which $29,825,280 was on the city books delivered yesterday. The real estate assessments of the two boards were as follows:

	Assessors.	Reviewers.
[illegible]	$ 712,906,710	$ 712,682,843
[illegible]	661,186,647	595,189,809

[illegible]	$4,247,686,978	$4,247,686,797

The final assessments of the board of review caused 1930 assessments of the city by $111,967,913. Of that, $7,53,351 was increased valuations on real estate, while personal property assessments were raised by $54,-25,262 over the 1929 total.

The personal property assessments of the board of assessors and board of review for 1930, and the reviewers' figures for 1929, were as follows:

	B. of R. 1930.	B. of A. 1930.	B. of R. 1929.

The board of review cut the assessors' personal property figures by $34,605,198. Of that sum, the majority of reductions were assessments on capital stocks of Illinois corporations, which properly are assessed by the state tax commission and not the assessors, or on capital stocks of corporations which were duplicated by real estate and personal property assessments on holdings of those companies. Reductions in these two classifications amounted to more than $30,000,000. It was said by Andrew J. Gallagher, chief clerk of the board of review.

New Suit Is Filed.

In south town alone, which includes the loop, the reviewers cut the assessors' personal property assessment total from $411,525,064 to $399,199,194.

A second suit to mandamus the board of review to place personal property on the 1930 assessment books was filed yesterday in the Superior court on behalf of George F. Koester of the firm of Koester & Zander, real estate brokers. The suit charged that $1 billion of dollars' worth of personal property had been omitted from the assessment roll. A week ago a similar action was instituted in the Circuit court by Attorneys Morris Schaeffer and Roy D. Keehn, who represent taxpayers.

ACQUITTED OF EMBEZZLING.

Aurora, Ill., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—J. W. McKinney, former cashier of the defunct State bank of Sheridan, was acquitted by a jury in the circuit court here today on a charge of embezzling $6,000 while acting as a collector of special assessments for the city of Sheridan. McKinney now resides at 2234 Sherman avenue, Evanston, Ill.

ROCKEFELLERS GIVE A MILLION TO FEED HUNGRY

Donate to New York Relief Fund.

New York, Nov. 6.—[Special.]—A joint gift of $1,000,000 by John D. Rockefeller and John D. Rockefeller Jr., and a contribution of $750,000 by Edward S. Harkness, were announced this afternoon by the emergency unemployment relief committee, bringing the total in the committee's campaign for $12,000,000 to $7,631,24.

Other large gifts announced by Harvey D. Gibson, chairman, were $50,000 from George F. Baker and $50,000 from Harold Vanderbilt. More than 100,000 wage earners have contributed.

The gift of the Rockefellers equals that which they made last year to the emergency employment committee headed by Seward Prosser.

Meanwhile it became known that the administration of $10,000,000 in unemployment relief funds appropriated by New York City some time ago is under investigation by the Hofstadter committee, which has heard reports that the fund was used for political purposes in advance of the election this week.

Plan to Quiz Head.

The fund has been under the administration of Commissioner of Public Welfare Frank J. Taylor. He has not been questioned yet, but will be summoned for private hearings in the near future, it was said. Oren Herwitz, on the staff of Samuel Seabury, counsel to the committee, has been in charge of that phase of the investigation.

Compulsory unemployment insurance, paid by industry, was the subject of consideration by the joint legislative committee studying unemployment. Today's hearing was the second held here under the chairmanship of Assemblyman William L. Marcy Jr. of Buffalo. At yesterday's hearing four authorities on economics went on record in favor of unemployment insurance of some kind.

Backed Up by Fifth.

Today Dr. Harlow S. Person, managing director of the Taylor society of New York, told the committee that unemployment insurance paid by industry would be a stabilizing force.

Dr. Person, whose society has been a leader in the study of scientific management of industry, approved insurance as a relief measure if it is necessary.

His idea of an effective unemployment insurance plan is one compelling industries in good times to contribute to a fund on a basis in keeping with the spread between maximum and minimum number of employés.

WESTERN AVENUE CAR EXTENSION TO OPEN TODAY

Extension of the Western avenue street car line from 95th street to 111th street will be celebrated this afternoon when Mayor Cermak cuts the ribbon and the first car goes over the new tracks. Service will start on the extension tomorrow morning.

With the opening of the extension, the Western avenue line will provide the longest street car ride, 22½ miles, on one street in the world, according to Chicago surface lines officials.

Improvement organizations along the southern end of Western avenue will participate in the celebration at Ryan woods this afternoon. Mayor Cermak and President Emmett Whelan of the county board are scheduled to speak.

$120,000 Pledged by Car Employes.

Contributions totaling $56,650 were added to the joint emergency relief fund yesterday. This amount, with subscriptions already announced by the commission in charge, raise the total so far donated in the campaign to $5,188,302. This does not include the $120,000 subscribed by surface lines employés, which was announced yesterday.

Among the large contributors yesterday were R. R. Donnelley & Sons company, $10,000; Borg Warner corporation, $5,000; Fairbanks, Morse & Co., $2,000; employés of Bird & Son, Inc., $1,000; Fred S. James company, $1,000; Clark Childs & Co., $1,000, and Van Cleef Brothers, $1,000.

Jane Addams Gives $250.

Miss Jane Addams of Hull House gave $250 to the fund through the women's division. This was part of an award to Miss Addams by the Pictorial Review for outstanding service. She has announced that the remainder of the award, which totaled $5,000, will be used in relief work at Hull house.

Lewis & White, florists, 2019 Powell avenue, notified the fund headquarters that 10 per cent of all sales in their shop from today until Wednesday, inclusive, will be turned over to the fund.

Other Contributions to Fund.

Among the hitherto unannounced contributions, each for a total of more than $1,000, are those of the National Lamp works of the General Electric company, employés of the National Lamp work, A. B. C. Oil Burner Sales corporation, B. W. Construction company, Hanover Fire Insurance company employés, Phillips Petroleum company, Phillips Petroleum company employés, Armstrong Paint and Varnish works, Armstrong Paint and Varnish works employés, Parke Davis & Co., Parke Davis & Co. employés, Liggett & Myers Tobacco company, Cable Piano company, Cable Piano company employés, Dashiel Motor Car company employés, Landon Hoyt and the Hoyt company, and Standard Brands, Inc.

ALARM SYSTEM AT BANK FOILS ROBBERY GANG

The alarm system installed after a robbery of the Prairie State bank of Oak Park in 1924 and the periodic drills of bank employés in how to act when bandits arrive were put into play with 100 per cent efficiency yesterday. A gang of five bewildered gunmen who tried to hold up the bank fired a few shots and fled without loot.

When the bandits, with their drawn guns, entered the bank, they shouted for all eleven employés to "reach for the ceiling." They reached for the alarm buttons instead.

One button was pushed by President H. R. Dow, who had fostered the "preparedness" idea. A bandit, who had pushed through the railing enclosure around Mr. Dow's desk, fired at him, but missed. Buzzers were also pushed by O. C. Roeder and Kenneth Darrow, cashiers, and A. C. Glass, teller, and the gunmen fired in their direction. These shots flattened out against the bulletproof glass and the gang ran to the street, climbed in a car, and sped away.

Among the employés who sat quietly at their desks during the shooting were Misses Erna and Irma Kuntze, sisters, who live at 4833 West Superior street, and Adeline Bumbas, 3134 South Raymond avenue, Brookfield.

JOLIET ROBBERS HOLD UP HOME PARTY; GET $1,023

Two bandits took $1,023 yesterday in the holdup of an early morning party in the home of Mrs. Anna Schwartz, 1010 Herkimer street, Joliet.

The guests at the party included Attorney Tyrrell Krum of Chicago, who lost $150 and a watch. John Zerwepp, Joliet brewer, lost $800, and Herbert Schiek, $68. Two other guests, Walter Norton and Sophie Kudzie, were not robbed.

No report of the robbery was made to Joliet police, members of the department said. They heard rumors of the holdup and during the day arrested William Ward, a minor police character, for questioning. Ward was at the party, they learned, but left about a half hour before the bandits entered, fired a shot in the ceiling, and robbed Krum, Zerwepp and Schiek.

FEAR KIDNAPED ROCKFORD MAN VICTIM OF "RIDE"

Bank Box May Help Solve Bookmaker Case.

Rockford, Ill., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—Winnebago county authorities today were searching for a former business associate of Ralph J. "Fuzzy" Pearce, kidnaped horse race bookmaker, who is wanted for questioning on the theory that Pearce may have been spirited away to his death or captivity by some enemy whose motive was revenge for bet losses suffered through Pearce's bookmaking agency.

Pearce was abducted late Wednesday night as he was returning to Rockford on the Grant highway after visiting a girl friend in a suburb. He was forced to drive into the ditch at the side of the highway two miles east of the city when his captors in two automobiles blocked his passage. Employés of a roadside restaurant witnessed the kidnaping.

Pearce was taken from his machine. He struggled for a moment, then threw a bunch of keys to the ground and submitted to abduction without resistance. A key to a safe deposit box in a local bank was on the ring. Authorities believe contents of the safe deposit box may provide the motive for Pearce's abduction.

A sister of the kidnaped man yesterday demanded the keys, but the sheriff refused her request. She denied she wanted the keys to secure ransom money to pay the kidnapers for her brother's release. She insisted she has not opened into negotiations with the kidnapers.

Pearce was reputed to be worth more than $100,000, at least half of which he recently inherited from a relative and which amount is said to be either in cash or readily convertible.

CARS OF POTASH BURN AT PIER, SINGE LINER; SOUNDS LIKE BATTLE

New York, Nov. 6.—[Speical.]—Fire that burst forth in a cargo of potash being loaded on freight cars in the Hoboken Manufacturers railroad terminal today destroyed thirty box cars, a 600 foot loading shed and damaged the pier and the big Holland-America liner Statendam before the flames were brought under control. The damage was estimated at $750,000.

The Statendam, scheduled to sail at midnight, escaped with trivial injury. The flames licked up the side of the Holland-America pier, adjoining that of the terminal company, and ignited the rigging about the liner's foremast. The crew shoved the gangplank overboard, cut the moorings and backed the craft into midstream, where the flames were quickly extinguished.

According to witnesses, the first flame came from one of the barrels of potash on the string of freight cars lined up along the terminal company's siding on the dock. Almost immediately other barrels caught fire, and within a few minutes the entire dock was blazing. Workmen, under orders of Maj. Henry Craig, in charge of the pier police, opened fire hydrants and flooded the pier before three alarms brought all fifteen of Hoboken's fire fighting companies.

The firemen got to work with chemicals and sand and in an hour the fire had been extinguished. All during the battle with the flames, however, the hiss of water and chemicals was punctuated by the booming of exploding barrels of potash.

For a time it was feared that the pier of the Scandinavian-American lines, on the other side of the burning dock, would be fired. The steamer United States was tied up there. Firemen succeeded, however, in confining the flames to the Holland-America pier.

APPROVE NEW ACT FOR REGULATION OF ONE MAN CARS

The local transportation committee of the city council yesterday approved an ordinance, backed by the street car men's unions, forbidding the operators of one man street cars and buses from taking fares, issuing transfers, or performing any of the other duties assigned to the conductor on a two man vehicle, while their car or bus is in motion.

William Quinlan, William Taber, and Joseph J. Kehoe, officials of the car men's union, appeared before the committee to back the ordinance. President T. J. Bowler and Treasurer Thomas J. Byrne of the equitable district, both former street car men, also appeared to speak for the measure.

The car union officials asserted recently in a letter to aldermen that although the surface lines have an order forbidding operators of one man cars to start their cars until they have collected fares and issued transfers, in practice the men are told to ignore the order. For the operator to carry on a conductor's work while operating the car is a menace to public safety, proponents of the ordinance declared. It was prepared by Alderman James B. Bowler [35th], chairman of the committee.

DON'T GAMBLE WITH WEATHER ... USE EVEREADY PRESTONE

WINTER STACKS THE CARDS

When you gamble with a makeshift anti-freeze

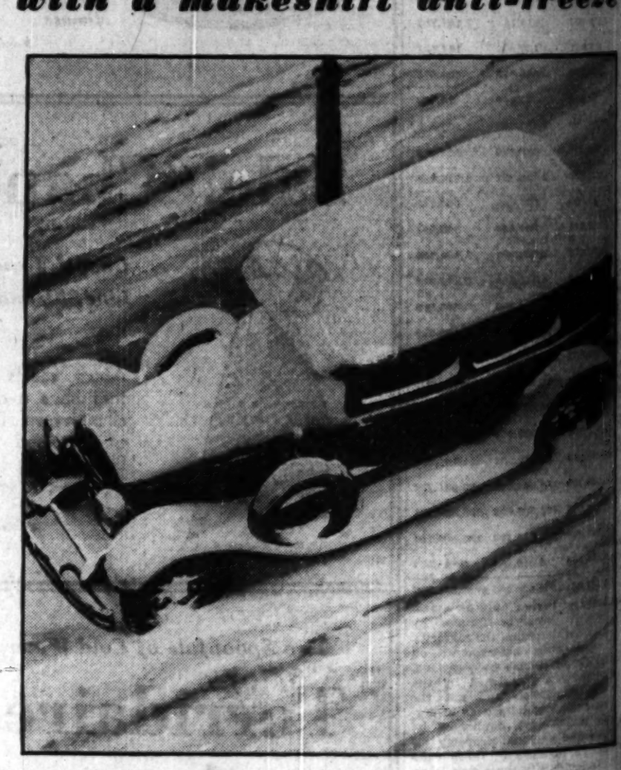
IT TAKES cold cash to fix a frozen automobile . . . and that's what you may have to use if you risk an anti-freeze that boils away with every sharp rise in temperature.

The sure and inexpensive way to safeguard your car through every change of winter-weather is with Eveready Prestone. This is no makeshift mixture, originally intended for some other purpose; it is the first product scientifically developed to keep automobile-engines from freezing — now improved and made better than ever.

Eveready Prestone will not overheat your engine, and it will not boil off. It flows freely in the coldest weather. It has less tendency to leak than water. It will not damage the expensive finish of your automobile. It retards rust and keeps the cooling-system free-flowing.

Last year over a million and a half motorists used it for complete, all-winter protection. It is accepted by leading car manufacturers and automotive engineers.

The first cost of Eveready Prestone is the last. There is no annoyance of having to test your mixture every few days.



No expense of having to replenish it. No large repair bill for a frozen engine. Don't go by cost per gallon; figure out the cost per season.

Beat cold weather to the punch. Today, have your cooling-system cleaned, your connections tightened. Then put in the proper amount of Eveready Prestone. That's all! You've taken the gamble out of winter driving!

9 POINTS OF SUPERIORITY

1. Gives complete protection.
2. Does not boil off.
3. Positively will not damage cooling-system.
4. Will not heat-up a motor.
5. Circulates freely at the lowest operating temperatures.
6. Will not affect paint, varnish or lacquer finishes.
7. Non-inflammable and odorless.
8. Prevents formation of rust in the cooling-system.
9. Economical — one filling lasts all winter.

NOTE: When you drain your cooling-system of Eveready Prestone in the spring, put in Eveready Rustone, for all-summer protection against rust, clogging and overheating. Then your car will always be free of rust.

EVEREADY PRESTONE

'SOUL' OF BRITISH PREMIER IS STAKE IN TARIFF FIGHT

Will He Stand Alone or Submit to Tories?

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 6.—An epic battle for Prime Minister MacDonald's soul begins when parliament meets next Tuesday. The question is: Will he submit to the Conservative party's dictation and become a tame leader of a reactionary majority, or will he stick to his election pledges and make no move which has not been carefully considered from the point of view of national interest and national solvency?

WALTER RUNCIMAN

The crux of the fight is on tariffs. The Conservatives with their overwhelming majority are crying for a high protective tariff and the Tory press demands "full blooded protection." Conservative newspapers dwell on the iniquities of dumping in anticipation of the blessings of a tariff. Pictures are published of London's harbor crowded with ships from France, Germany, Holland, Belgium, and Russia, all with cheap goods which are rushed to England to anticipate the duties which it is assumed the new parliament will order.

Will Study Tariff Proposals.

Some stories were somewhat denied today by a statement from the head of the London docks that importation today is no greater than usual before Christmas but whatever the fact may be, MacDonald will on Tuesday be faced with a demand for immediate emergency measures to check dumping, and for the earliest possible imposition of a general tariff.

MacDonald has pledged to examine all proposals along with other expedients for restoring Great Britain's trade balance. The test will be whether he is rushed into panic legislation or whether he insists on proceeding in an orderly manner with the investigation.

The first skirmish ended in a draw. It is known that he did not want Neville Chamberlain, who is committed to a high tariff policy, as chancellor of the exchequer. He was forced to yield to the Conservatives in this. As a counterbalance, however, he appointed Walter Runciman, a staunch Liberal and stanch free trader, as president of the board of trade. In that office Runciman will have a great deal to say about the commercial policy.

MacDonald Has Deciding Vote.

By retaining Philip Snowden in the cabinet the prime minister possesses an outspoken and unrepentant free trader, who will carry just as much weight in the cabinet when it comes to a point of decision as Neville Chamberlain.

The deciding vote will probably rest with MacDonald, who more and more is being forced into the position of taking the status of a dictator or submitting to Tory domination. At the same time none is sure how far the Tories can carry their unwieldy majority. One of the leading Tory organizers said that more than 150 Conservative members are "forlorn hopes," who were sent down to fight constituencies which it was thought they had no chance of winning and about whose opinions organizers know little or nothing.

"They may all be communists for all we know," said this organizer. "And, anyhow, they are going to be a tough team to drive."

Labor Opposition Split.

Other Conservative leaders admit that the election victory was won by MacDonald and Snowden. They fear that if the two turn stubborn and insist on another election rather than submit to the Tories they might win. The opposition today was further split by the determination of the Independent Labor party, which is Labor's left wing and has five members, not to take the Labor party whips. This means they will sit in the house as an independent party and vote as they please.

PEDESTRIAN, 85, IS KILLED WHEN STRUCK BY AUTO

Boy Is Victim in Other Street Accident.

Hugh Coyne, 85 years old, was struck by an automobile and fatally injured late yesterday at Addison street and Janssen avenue. The accident occurred near his home, which is at 1428 Addison street. William Barr, 23 years old, 4441 North La Crosse avenue, a postal employé and driver of the car, took the elderly victim to the American hospital and then surrendered to police. Coyne died later in the hospital.

Earlier John Adamkiewicz Jr., 15 years old, of 320 155th street, Calumet City, was killed by the machine of a hit and run driver at 169th street and Burnham avenue, Calumet City.

Girl Killed in Crash.

Miss Mabel Kubiak, 22 years old, 12th street and Emerald avenue, Chicago Heights, was fatally injured last night when an automobile in which she was riding was struck at 147th and Wood streets, Harvey, by another driven by Burton Cook, 2202 West 110th street. The girl died soon afterward in the Ingalls Memorial hospital in Harvey.

Walter Rudloff, 40 years old, of 501 Chicago avenue, Dolton, died last night in the Ingalls Memorial hospital in Harvey of injuries suffered on Wednesday when his machine collided with a car driven by the Rev. William W. White, 42, of Numa, Ia., an evangelist. Rudloff's wife, Helen, was seriously hurt and their children, Myrtle, Alice, and Leona, received lesser hurts.

County Toll Mounts.

These deaths increased the Cook county motor toll to 1,082 since Jan. 1.

Eugene Landis, 19 years old, of Libertyville was critically injured yesterday when he was pinned beneath his truck after a collision at Rockland and Waukegan roads. Witnesses dragged him from beneath the vehicle a few seconds before the truck's gasoline tank exploded.

Five persons were injured last night in a crash of two autos at Marshall boulevard and 26th street. The injured are James Kotara, 34 years old, 2650 South St. Louis avenue; Joseph Kasprak, 37, his wife, Nettie, 32, and their child, Marie, 2, of 1735 West 18th place, and Anna Stapinak, 17, of 1728 18th place. It is charged Kotara drove through a changing stop light and hit the machine of Harold Kronstad, 6451 North Western avenue. All the injured were in Kotara's car. Kasprak's injuries are serious.

Rabbi Charles Drower, 76 years old, of 1341 Independence boulevard, suffered a fracture of the left leg last night when he was hit by the machine of Max Kipperman, 16, of 1310 South Millard avenue, at 14th street and Homan avenue. He was taken to Mount Sinai hospital.

DELAY HEARING ON CHARGES IN INSANITY CASE

County Judges Jarecki and Van Keuren yesterday continued indefinitely the hearing of charges that fraud had motivated the filing of a petition to declare insane Mrs. Rose Brandt, mother of two children. The petition was filed recently by her former husband, Lee V. Brandt, 2700 Asbury avenue, Evanston, head of an auditing company. The judges ordered a transcript of all the testimony presented in hearings at the psychopathic hospital and in the County court late Wednesday.

Dr. I. Val Freedman, 5816 Kenmore avenue, who had testified that Mrs. Brandt suffered from persecutory dementia, was examined on the witness stand. Dr. Freedman said that he had talked with Mrs. Brandt in 1927 for half an hour and had observed her actions. He said that he read statements of neighbors, and this evidence, coupled with his own observations, had led him to believe her insane. Brandt, who has remarried since his former wife obtained her divorce in 1928, said Mrs. Brandt had annoyed him by sending letters to his home.

Mrs. Brandt was adjudged insane in 1926 but later she was held sane and placed in the care of relatives.

PRINCES OF INDIA RAGE AS RAJAH BEGS BRITISH AID

Blame Sir Hari Singh for Moslem Revolt.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 6.—The chamber of princes of India has called an immediate meeting at New Delhi to consider the case of Sir Hari Singh, maharajah of Kashmir, whose Moslem subjects are now in revolt, according to dispatches from Bombay tonight. The chamber has notified Sir Hari that while he must not attend as a member, he may be called before the house to defend himself against certain charges.

This is the second time the ruling princes of India have taken cognizance of Sir Hari. The first time was during the notorious Mr. "A" case in 1919, when he was blackmailed by an Englishman and woman, and an attempt was made to conceal his identity. The princes in order to silence rumors insisted that his name be revealed to the public.

Princes Call Him Tyrant.

Now it is charged he has brought the rebellion on himself by extravagance, caprice, cruelty, tyranny, and general misgovernment, and what is more important to the princes, that he has called on the British government to intervene in an independent state. This is the first intervention of this sort since the proclamation of the empire, and the princes are angry. They enjoy still less the spectacle of an independent prince appealing to Great Britain for troops to save him from his own subjects.

News also reached London today that reconnaisances by the royal air force have revealed a concentration of Afridi tribesmen on the northwest frontier of India. Notice has been sent to them that if they do not disperse their villages will be bombed. The government of India is aware that the Afridi chieftain, Badshap-Gul, has been on a visit to Moscow, where he was fêted and received gifts of money and large quantities of arms. He also visited Istanbul and attempted to see Leon Trotzky, exiled Russian dictator, but was ordered to get out and stay out by the Turkish government.

Prime Minister MacDonald has informed Mahatma Gandhi, India's Nationalist leader, that unless a settlement of India's communal quarrel is arrived at before next Wednesday, he will insist that the entire question be submitted to arbitration by Aga Khan, moderate Indian leader, Gandhi, and Lord Sankey, lord chancellor and chairman of the federal structures committee. The latter will be instructed to report within three days.

The British government, the prime minister declared, will impose whatever settlement is arrived at there regardless of the wishes of any factions.

Gandhi himself is said to be willing to accept this procedure, but Dr. D. S. Moonje, leader of the high caste Hindus, is opposed on the ground that Gandhi is not to be trusted in any negotiation involving a detailed discussion. The Sikhs are also unwilling to trust Gandhi, but MacDonald is determined to get this question out of the way immediately.

Grant Provincial Autonomy.

The government also intends, it is learned, to grant immediate provincial autonomy. The provincial councils, thus set up, will elect delegates to an Indian constituent assembly which will discuss and, it is hoped, accept an Indian constitution bill setting up a federal government. It is hoped to have this passed before next April.

NEW YORK PLANS 20 NEW BUILDINGS AT A COST OF $5,388,500

New York, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Plans for twenty new buildings in Manhattan, estimated to cost $5,388,500, were filed during the month of October, showing an appreciable increase over figures for the same month of last year.

The bureau of buildings announced today that the estimated cost of new buildings last October was nearly one million dollars less than this year.

Plans for building alterations this October involved $1,340,965, while those for last October amounted to but $815,340.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

LEADING WITH THE CHIN.

President Hoover has issued a formal statement to the effect that in his judgment and presumably that of his cabinet the time is not ripe for granting independence to the Philippines. To establish a Filipino government now, he says, would result in the economic collapse of the islands. The ability to stand alone economically must be demonstrated before the islands can be cut loose.

It is one of the curiosities of the times that the administration which holds these views regarding our principal overseas dependency can at the same time insist upon a reduction of our naval strength. We are to hold the Philippines for an indefinitely prolonged period, but we are not to have the means of holding them. We have given up our naval bases in the western Pacific. We may add nothing to the fortifications in the Philippines themselves, and the strategic base at Guam has also been lost to the navy. Just how the Philippines can be retained against a determined effort to seize them is a matter which must cause our naval officers a good many sleepless nights.

A powerful navy, or even a navy maintained at the level permitted us by the Washington and London treaties, might discourage any attempt to seize the islands, provided the navy could operate from bases in or near them. The emasculated navy of today, without adequate bases, would have small chance of defending the islands against a determined effort from Japan, for example, to seize them.

Washington has said, however, that the islands cannot now be cut loose. The American flag flies over them, and if an effort is made to take them the pride and honor of the United States are certain to be involved. Unfortunately, indignation and a sense of outrage will not recover what the aggressor has taken. Only the navy can do that, and the navy will be obliged to fight at a tremendous disadvantage, thousands of miles from its base at Hawaii, ill equipped with cruisers to protect its long and exposed line of communications, with an insufficiency of ships and a grave shortage of trained men to fight even the ships which we have.

As a matter of fact, even if the islands were set free, the chances are overwhelming that our country would assume at least a moral responsibility for the preservation of their independence. But as matters stand, there is no evading the responsibility on the ground that it is not specific. The Philippines are as much ours to protect and guard as the corner of State and Madison streets is the responsibility of the Chicago police department.

Uncle Sam is leading with his chin while consenting to have his hands tied behind him. The absurdity of trying to maintain these two contradictory policies would be striking at any time, but today, when a Japanese army is in Manchuria to advertise to the world that Japan is land hungry and is not averse to using force to appease her appetite, it is difficult to find words to fit the facts. We are inviting trouble while taking steps to assure our defeat and humiliation when the invitation is accepted.

THE LESSER BREEDS WITHOUT THE LAW.

It seems wholly improbable that the British sportsman is as good a sport as he thinks he is or as the British sports writers portray him. The speed boat race between Kaye Don's English boat and Gar Wood's American continues to afford gratifying reflections to these writers. It will be remembered that Don would not consent to a delay in the race to permit Wood to make a repair on the speedier of his two boats and that Wood admittedly, thereupon, beguiled Don into beating the gun to the starting line, the two boats thus being disqualified and the slower Wood entry technically winning the race.

The man who declined to permit a competitor to start with a sound engine and the man who deliberately tricked his rival into a disqualifying start could shake hands and call it square in sportsmanship. The London Mirror, reverting to the incident, says that it is "useless to hurl abuse at the American idea of sport, but to remember that it differs from our own. Our tradition is to win by fair means, if we can, or to lose gracefully. The object in America is merely to win."

The English tradition is to establish a moral superiority, one maintained as innate and inalienable. It is to be taken for granted in a boat race, at a conference table, in a horse race, or an exchange of diplomatic notes. An Egyptian disturbance, a riot in Palestine, a prize fight, the request for a loan, a little pushing around of the East Indians, a naval concession, or a track upset must be interpreted in this light.

Wherever English literature penetrates, and that is all over the United States, the intimation of peculiar morality granted the islanders some time before or after the conquest goes with it. It abides with the British sportsman, the British diplomat, the British subaltern, the British commercial traveler, tourist, and writer. It is a great national asset, an invaluable quality. The only trouble is that we can't believe it's true.

NEW SCHOOLS FOR OLD.

The exposition buildings for the Century of Progress Fair are costing 10 or 12 cents a cubic foot. The Administration building, partly because it was the first to be built and partly because it is broken up into many rooms, is said to have cost perhaps twice as much. Even so, it is a remarkably cheap construction and the architects of the fair are confident that, despite the low cost, the buildings could remain in service for twenty years without undue expense for maintenance and without serious deterioration.

The buildings may look flimsy, but they are said to be sound structurally, fireproof, and as well insulated against heat and cold as any ordinary building of brick or stone. If that is so, the lesson should not be lost upon architects, and particularly upon those designing school and college buildings. We are spending millions each year in erecting magnificent temples of learning in the certainty that twenty years hence they will be as obsolete as a 20 year old school building is today. Funds which might be devoted to instruction and research or saved to the taxpayers are spent, instead, upon buildings.

So far as the public schools in a city like Chicago are concerned, it would be a positive advantage to employ a type of construction so cheap that it could be scrapped in 20 years. The shifting of population results in a constant surplus of schools in some sections of the city and acute shortage in others. The cost of school buildings is at present so high that the building program can never catch up with the movement of population, although the taxes for school buildings are high. A cheaper building method would result in a saving of taxes, the prompt replacement of obsolete buildings with new ones, better located and better designed, and a more rapid attack upon the shortage of seats.

So far as the universities are concerned, a cheaper and less permanent type of building would result in improved facilities for instruction and research. Some skillful adaptations of Gothic and Georgian models might be lost to the world, but along with them would go a vast amount of fifth rate architecture which never would be missed. To be sure, some universities might find themselves with so much money left over that they would have to spend it on research equipment, books, or even on higher salaries for the faculties. It is, perhaps, to avoid these expenditures that the universities have uniformly gone in for the most expensive types of construction which their architects could discover.

ROOSEVELT'S LAND PROJECT.

Gov. Roosevelt and former Gov. Al Smith of New York were opposed to each other on the amendment to the state constitution submitted in the recent election to authorize the state to undertake reforesting on abandoned farm lands. Mr. Smith tried to defeat the amendment, but Gov. Roosevelt, urging its adoption, was successful.

The governor said that there were four million acres of abandoned farm land in the state and that the area was increasing at the rate of a quarter million acres a year, an economic waste and a burden. He proposes that the state shall take over this land, plant it and in time cut the timber and increase the state's resources. Mr. Smith's opposition was, in part, to such an extension of government.

A few years ago the Roosevelt plan might have been given more sympathy and less opposition. Now in many quarters a chastened view is taken of former ideas and enthusiasms. With regard to reforestation specifically it has become apparent that there is more sentiment for it than knowledge of it and that assumptions are not always probabilities economically. Generally with regard to extension of government wise citizens have become critical. They have counted costs. They have observed failures. They have seen government weakened in its primary duties and they have seen it injure people in their primary rights.

Even ten years ago a proposal for a new governmental undertaking seemed to many people to have inherent right. Now there is at least a growing skepticism which is unfortunately justified. In the New York instance it is a state which will undertake the experiment with abandoned land. State money is involved and thus the undertaking is localized. In the older American system which prudent Americans hope may be reestablished this would be within a state's prerogative.

Mr. Roosevelt is at present the leading candidate for the Democratic nomination for President. His success in carrying the amendment against Mr. Smith is admitted to have increased his prestige. The New York governor has not, it is apparent, become critical of the extensions of government. His advocacy of the state land reclamation project, with the lumber industry involved, is one proof of that and there are others. As he is a candidate for the presidency his views have national importance. They are indications of probable policy headed in the direction from which it is hoped that the United States will retrace its steps.

The Other Side

THE SPECIAL SESSION.

[Illinois State Journal, Springfield.]

While Gov. Emmerson declined to include in his call for the legislature all the subjects suggested for emergency consideration, the list is formidable. If the assembly takes advantage of the opportunity to discuss every proposal which can be considered under the terms of the proclamation, the session will be prolonged until the robins nest again.

Opening of a Pandora box was inevitable, because revenue legislation is necessary to deal with the emergency which demands the extraordinary session. Chicago's plight can be remedied only by the enactment of new statutes under this head, and there is no means of sidestepping grief when revenue legislation is to be considered by the assembly.

Unfortunately the report of the commission which was selected to make recommendations doesn't promise much help. That body divided on the proposals which were submitted to it, and ended by sending practically everything back to the legislature "for action." Which means, of course, that Chicago has no definite program for its own relief. What the legislature does must be accomplished without help from Chicago—probably with more Chicago condemnation than praise.

However, this situation is no novelty in Springfield. The assembly probably will find some means of aiding Chicago over for a time, pass a few bills to that end, and leave the general subject open until Chicago again is in distress. The number and conflicting nature of proposals which have been made for curing Chicago's ills make impossible the adoption at this time of a comprehensive revenue program.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. — Ade

THE CALIFORNIA grape industry, which had a cunning little present of three and a half million dollars from nice, good natured old Uncle Sam, has had a bit of a talking to down in Washington, as a result of which the people who put out lovely kegs and bottles of wine to be kept in the cellar until they acquire a kick like an army mule say they can do so no more. No, indeed, the drys have been after them and in the future they cannot lay down kegs and bottles at your house; no, indeed. Hereafter grape concentrates and wine bricks and things like that will be sold only at the stores. And, of course, nobody would ever think of going to the stores to buy them.

We don't know how much money Mabel gets, but it isn't enough.

THE PLACE WHERE I GREW UP.

The garden dreamed in beauty on the steeply sloping hill;
The old brick house was full of us to door and window sill;
Green-liveried firs stood straight and tall each side the latchet gate,
Syringas, lilacs, and snowballs aligned the walk in state.

The century basswood spread its arms above the hemlock hedge,
Gay morning-glories climbed to reach the deep bay-window ledge,
Red wanton roses crowded close, pale lilies bent in prayer,
Whose golden-hearted chalices poured incense on the air,

The Sunday strollers leaned, to gaze in raptured indolence
On terraced lawn and flower-beds patterned in stars and rings,
Where butterflies and humming-birds darted on jeweled wings.

The windows of old homesteads bear competing room-rent signs;
But when I leave the crowded train to face the grime and din
Remembering eyes can only see the beauty that has been.

PARAGUAY busts out on the front page with the story that it has been put under martial law and that a revolution is imminent. We shrewdly suspect that these South American convulsions are for the purpose of getting these countries back on the map. Where is Paraguay? Neither do we, but, like you, we immediately get out the old map and look it up. No, that island isn't it; that would be Cuba. And it isn't over there; that's Africa, stupid. Ah, here the little rascal is, 'way down in South America. And so, after we talk about it for awhile, we'll be in a receptive mood for whatever Paraguay is getting ready to put over, rubber stock, armadillo ranches, or tiger hunting. Tigers? No, that would be India.

ENGLAND is cheering all over the place over its new war machine, which travels along equally well either on land or water. And it seems as though we've heard the most agonizing cries from England over the unemployed and the decline of industry and war debts, and yet she has plenty of money to pay for new war machines. Ah, we understand, the new land-and-water tank is on the dole.

But, listen, Mr. Filene, add just one more thing to your plan. Have every store send out cowboys with lassos, rope the customers, and drag 'em in. A LITTLE COPPER FOR YOUR BLOOD.

ONE of the unexpected discoveries of recent years is the need of the human body for a small amount of copper. We think of this metal, and properly so, as a poison, but few of us know that more than one of the substances regarded as poisonous are wholesome and serve a useful purpose when the amount concerned is small. It is excess which brings out the poison action.

Copper has been found widely distributed in the normal organs of healthy persons. Furthermore, it is present in many thoroughly wholesome foods. These facts brought out the suggestions, first, that it might serve a useful purpose in the human economy, and, next, that it might be of service as a medicine.

Experimentation showed that somehow it had to do with the making of hemoglobin. It did not seem to enter directly into building up this necessary ingredient of the blood, but acted in some indirect way toward aiding its formation. This led to clinical trial of it as medicine.

Dr. M. S. Lewis of Nashville put a considerable number of anemic children on a combination of iron and copper. These children recovered rapidly from the anemia. He selected the children in a way to prevent self-deception. First, ordinary secondary anemias tend to recover spontaneously. When a child is pale and anemic after an attack of measles he may be expected to get back his normal blood richness in a short while if he gets sunlight.

The children selected for this test had shown that their anemia hung on, with no tendency to spontaneous cure. People with secondary anemia generally get well on a good diet—one containing eggs, liver, meat, and vegetables. This possibility was controlled in the experiment. Some anemias do reasonably well on iron tonics. This fact was taken into consideration also.

The children under this experiment got rosy and healthy much more quickly than is the case with children given both iron and proper foods. Similar reports have come from physicians and experimenters in many places. Iron and copper taken together appear to be distinctly better as a tonic than either taken alone.

The copper must not be given in doses that are too large. The danger of giving too much iron is very slight, although it has been proved that iron in great excess is also a poison. Medicines in which iron and copper are combined are available. However, within a year the Council of Pharmacy has withheld its approval of at least one such.

MAY BE AN INFECTION.

R. S. writes: Can you tell me what can cause a girl of 16 to have bloodshot eyes? They have been in this condition for the last four days. At first only a mucous film formed over the eyes. Now they tear continually. At night they feel as if they had lumps under the eyelids, and in the morning the eyelashes are almost glued together.

REPLY.

Conjunctivitis generally results from infection of some sort. It may result from exposure to excess heat or glare, or to smoke or dust. As a rule it gets well when the cause is abviated. Some cases, due to infection, are very severe.

WASHING OR SOAKING MEAT.

A. T. writes: A friend told me before she cooks meat she soaks it in cold water for a while. I only wash it under the faucet. Who is right?

REPLY.

You are. It may be advisable to wash meat, though that is doubtful. To soak it removes flavor, minerals, and some food values, and does no good.

CHILD BEARING AT 34.

Miss E. L. writes: Can a woman, 34 years of age, bear children with a reasonable degree of safety?

REPLY.

Yes, assuming that the only question raised is age. Many women over 34 bear children in safety. The mishap rate is somewhat higher than that of women aged 24, but not very much.

Would a lease be legal made now by the property owner, for one year, if a foreclosure were to take place in April, 1932? 2. How long is the property owner given to redeem the property after a foreclosure? 3. [a] Can a party foreclosing a mortgage get a judgment on the property owner? If so [b] how soon [c] after the foreclosure and to what extent? 4. In the event party foreclosing did get a judgment, would a judgment in this state affect a life interest income on another property in this state? J. E. L.

1. If the lease is newer than the mortgage then it would be subject to the mortgage.
2. Fifteen months.
3. [a] Yes, if the property does not bring enough at the foreclosure sale to pay the mortgage and charges; [b] immediately after the foreclosure sale; [c] see [a].
4. Yes.

Legett avenue south of Devon avenue to the alley is zoned for commercial use. The remainder of Legett avenue is zoned for apartments. JOHN E. ERICSSON, Commissioner of Buildings.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

NOVEMBER 7, 1915.

LONDON.—The Bulgarians have occupied Nish, the Serbian war capital, which gives them complete control of the railway from Prahovo, on the Danube, and thus opens a through route for the central powers to Sofia and Constantinople. In addition, the Bulgarian and German main armies have effected a junction at Krivivir.

BERLIN.—The Frankfurter Zeitung's Sofia correspondent telegraphs that a plot against the life of King Ferdinand of Bulgaria has been discovered. The police, he says, are taking elaborate precautions to safeguard the sovereign.

LONDON.—"Lord Kitchener, at the request of his colleagues, has left England for a short visit to the eastern theater of war." This announcement, made after a cabinet council—an unusual meeting for Saturday—and a long audience which Premier Asquith had with the king, set at rest the rumors current regarding the war secretary's present intentions.

PARIS.—The official communication issued by the war office said: "Cannonading has again been lively on both sides in Artois, in the region of the Bois en Hache and the Givenchy wood. To the north of the Aisne our batteries have concentrated their fire with particular effect on the German organizations in the regions of Vinegre and on the enemy cantonments in the Nouvron wood and at Commelancourt.

PHILADELPHIA.—P. A. B. Widener, veteran financier and former street railway magnate, died today at his home, Lynnewood Hall, in Elkins Park. He was 80 years of age. Mr. Widener's estate is valued at near $100,000,000.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

NOVEMBER 7, 1901.

PEKING.—Li Hung Chang, Chinese soldier, statesman, and diplomat, died, after a long and brilliant career, at the age of 79. He had been in precarious health for some time, but he persistently refused to refrain from attending to government business and this aggravated his malady.

WASHINGTON.—It was an eloquent, logical and convincing argument which Isidor Rayner made before the court of inquiry in defense of Rear Admiral Schley's honor and professional reputation. He not only defended Schley but covered himself with glory. He declared that vindication of the rear admiral is already complete. The room in which the court of inquiry sits was thronged to hear the attorney's argument and his tribute to the man who whipped Cervera's warships.

CONSTANTINOPLE.—Officials of the United States legation have received news through Saloniki that indicates the early release of Miss Ellen M. Stone, American missionary, and her companion, Mme. Tsilka, held captives by brigands. On Oct. 29 both women were reported well.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. — John Armstrong Chanler, millionaire and the first husband of Amelie Rives, was declared of sound mind in proceedings instituted to determine the question of his sanity and right to possession of his property. The case came up on a petition filed by Carey Ruffin Randolph, who declared Mr. Chanler was not of sound mind and that the court should appoint a committee to take charge of his property. Mr. Chanler told of all his movements since his escape from the Bloomingdale, N. Y., asylum and declared he voluntarily placed himself in charge of Dr. Taylor in the latter's Philadelphia sanitarium.

NOVEMBER 7, 1881.

CHICAGO.—Attorney A. S. Trude, who has been urged by George Scoville and others to assist in the defense of Guiteau, the assassin of President Garfield, sent a telegram to Scoville at Washington saying that if another continuance could be secured he would try to arrange to conduct the defense. At his home Mr. Trude told a reporter that he had been posting up on "cranks" and believed he could make a strong defense in the case, more especially as he had always known Guiteau to be insane. He said he had advised Scoville to make the defense strictly on the basis of insanity and that he was not entering the case because he desired publicity.

WASHINGTON.—The talk of the day in political circles is the reported scene in a recent cabinet meeting in which President Arthur and Attorney General MacVeagh engaged in a controversy over the prosecution of the Guiteau case. The question which agitates the town is who let the story out and there are indications that Secretary of State Blaine is responsible for its circulation. It is an open secret that the personal relations between Blaine and MacVeagh have been very unpleasant. However, friends of MacVeagh say that the story of the President rebuking him is absolutely without foundation.

LONDON.—The usual Guy Fawkes celebrations were held and effigies of Gladstone, Parnell, Biggar, and others were burned in the poorer districts of London, according as the Irish or English element predominated. Among the effigies burned at Lewes, where the anniversary of the gunpowder plot to blow up the house of parliament on Nov. 5, 1605, was, as usual, celebrated with great eclat, was one of Guiteau.

RELIEF FROM PANHANDLERS.

Chicago, Nov. 5.—Practically every one who is fortunate enough to be employed today has donated or pledged a certain amount to the relief fund to go to those less fortunate, notwithstanding the fact that many of these folks are carrying an additional burden of sustaining one or more members of the family who are also out of work.

Daily these folks are approached on the street by an army of beggars and many times are forced to give to avoid an embarrassing situation.

My solution to this problem would be to have those in charge of the relief fund furnish the business organizations, whose employés have donated to the fund, with tickets showing where folks in need may go to receive help. If this method was practiced I believe it would eliminate the professional beggars and panhandlers. W. J. H.

NOW TELL US WHY.

Chicago, Nov. 3.—Replying to the article printed Oct. 30, on "A Postoffice Contract," sent to you by Henry J. Muth, the Iron League of Chicago would like to make the following statements:

The iron industry of Chicago represents an investment of approximately $50,000,000 and employment for approximately 3,000 men in its shops. Working on a 75 per cent basis the industry has a $21,000,000 capacity. In a survey of our industry now being made this represents a potential pay roll of $11,621,250 and the employment of approximately 7,043 people in our shops, foundries, pattern shops and material houses.

The distribution of the spending of this amount involves the employment of 182 people in the foodstuff industry, whose earnings are $317,827; the clothing industry 110 people whose earnings are $215,283; the furniture industry 43 people whose earnings are $76,444; the fuel, lighting and power industry 150 people whose earnings are $247,267. Carried out this survey shows us that in our industry and retail establishments a 75 per cent capacity involves the employment of 8,000 people, or one person for every $2,800 in capacity. On this basis the Chicago postoffice would give employment to 200 people for one year.

The Iron League of Chicago has been and is continuing to carry on a campaign for home industries and hopes to see the time when the welfare of the individuals and communities will also be considered in the letting of contracts here. There have gone outside of Chicago within a short time approximately $1,500,000 iron contracts, meaning that somewhere in Chicago 7,500 people could have been employed for one year and not be compelled to seek charity. Every contract let in Chicago means the expenditure in wages of 63 cents for every dollar.

THE REWARD OF VIRTUE.

Chicago, Nov. 2.—Really, it seems the good must suffer for the bad. I know a family where the man is out of work because on three different occasions he disobeyed the rules of his firm. He worked there ten years and during this period never tried to save for a home and bought many luxuries. Now he is the victim of charity and brags how much he received.

It burns me up as a certain amount of tax money is used for county charity. Yesterday this man said to me, "You could never get the help I do because you're a home owner." "All I answered was, "It isn't paid for by any means, and I can't eat off the house."

My husband has been working sixteen years at one place, but has had four cuts in salary and besides trying to pay for our home, rear two children and provide for my aged mother we are told we couldn't get what a renter does. Surely it will be no fault of ours if we lose our home. We have always paid our taxes, but doubt whether I can on the income I now have.

LAW ABIDING CITIZEN.

SEE "WHO'S WHO."

Chicago, Nov. 2.—This morning's TRIBUNE carried an article by Mr. F. R. Moulton relative to veteran's relief. Inasmuch as Mr. Moulton has seen fit to find general indictment against some 4,000,000 men it is only fair that an opportunity to reply should be available to the veterans.

Mr. Moulton says: "We may well inquire who are these favored citizens of whom Mr. Bennett quoted Col. Scott as saying: "Except for wounds and disease, the ex-service man is the most fortunate of our citizens." Mr. Moulton, never having been wounded or diseased [we presume this is true], is hardly competent to render a verdict on their fortunate condition. Would it not be apt at this time to inquire who Mr. Moulton is, his age and just what he was doing between April 17, 1917, and Nov. 11, 1918?

AMAZINGLY ILLITERATE.

THE GREENLAND CONTROVERSY.

Chicago, Oct. 31.—Enacting to conclude THE TRIBUNE Copenhagen correspondent's review of the Danish-Norwegian Greenland dispute, H. Rosing Hansen presents a lengthy, almost treatise, but, unfortunately, omits a number of important and pertinent facts in the case.

To be sure, Norwegians, more than a thousand years ago, discovered Greenland and on the southwest coast of the vast continent started a settlement which later became extinct. Renewed Greenland ventures in the 17th century originated fully as much in Bergen in Norway. The Rev. Hans Egede must not forget the formality of first going to Denmark for the purpose of obtaining appointment from the king as a missionary, and when, after fifteen years of devoted labor among the Eskimos he returned he was awarded the title of bishop of Greenland and became teacher at a newly erected Greenland seminary in Copenhagen.

The entire administration of Greenland affairs was then, as later on, entered at Copenhagen, and if, at the time at Kiel, Greenland remained Danish territory just because of a difference in it is certainly a most peculiar fact that the Norwegian sterbling even as late, in 1931, renounced every claim upon Denmark pertaining to the dissolution of the union. By their treaties and a declaration of 1814 Norway recognized the Danish trading monopoly absolutely without reservation. Similar treaties between Denmark and the other countries involve the same principle. The United States, when taking the Virgin islands in 1916, expressly recognized Danish sovereignty over the whole of Greenland, and England, France, Holland and other powers have done likewise.

Really, hardly any Norwegian had the idea of disputing Danish sovereignty over Greenland until a dozen years ago when Danish authorities found it necessary to intercede against unscrupulous Norwegian sealers, whose reckless methods threatened the very existence of seals not only on the east coast but also, as the seal is a migratory animal, on the west coast of Greenland. Subsequently, in 1924, a treaty regulating sealing, fishing and hunting was concluded between Denmark and Norway, it being tacitly understood that the geographic situation would remain unchanged until the expiration of the treaty in 1944.

Then, suddenly, in 1929 the Norwegian government conferred police powers over subjects in East Greenland upon the leader of a fishing expedition. The Danish government immediately protested against this provocative step and while this matter was still pending, in the summer some Norwegian sealers moved into the Norwegian flag near Mackenzie bay and declared the territory occupied. This trespassing being officially sanctioned by Norway, the Danish government, having for years, in theory and practice devoted itself to internationalism, pacifism and disarmament, had no other recourse than to bring action against the latter country before the world court in The Hague.

ADVICE TO CONTRACT PLAYERS.

Chicago, Nov. 2.—The latest authorized version in our country of quotations on hedonists is "Contract." The press publishes daily lessons in its problems. The incessant wrangling and babbling over disputed points keeps not only the hands but the mouths working.

If marriage were not a failure husbands and wives playing together would make it so. Our megalomania expresses itself eloquently in the size of the penalties taken. As a student of the psychology of the game I would make the suggestion: Double your opponents and shoot your partner.

EATH OF TEXAS OUSE MEMBER IDS DEMOCRATS

ds Another to Slender Majority.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—The probability of the election of a Democratic speaker of the house when the new congress meets next month was increased today by the death of Representative Henry M. Wurzbach [Rep., Tex.].

Unless the number of Democrats shall be decreased by deaths in the meantime, they will have a majority of at least one and possibly three over the combined Republicans and the one Farmer-Labor member.

As a result of the death of Mr. Wurzbach, the present makeup of the house is 217 Democrats, 214 Republicans, one Farmer-Laborite, and four vacancies. Dispatches from Texas state that it is unlikely the Wurzbach vacancy can be filled before congress meets and that when it is filled a Democrat probably will be elected.

Only Texas Republican.

Mr. Wurzbach was the only Republican in the Texas delegation and was the first Republican to be elected in that state since its admission to the union. He has held office since 1921.

Mr. Wurzbach died in San Antonio, Tex., following an operation Monday for appendicitis. He was 57 years old.

With 434 members of the new house of Republicans and 7 Democrats—who will take the election a year hence—

The vacancy in the Fifth New Jersey district caused by the recent death of Representative Ernest R. Ackerman [Rep.] will be filled by special election on Dec. 1, six days before congress assembles. This is a normally Republican district, but it was carried last Tuesday by Governor Harry A. Harry Moore [Dem.] by a majority of 10,000 and it would not be surprising if it should return a Democratic member. If it does, there will be 218 Democrats, 214 Republicans, and one Farmer-Laborite entitled to vote for speaker. This would give the Democrats a majority over all of 1 votes. If a Republican is elected in New Jersey, the Democratic majority will be one.

Rolls La Follette Scheme.

It now falls out that the Democrats will not need the votes of the La Follette Republicans from Wisconsin who have been threatening to bolt their party if they could make a deal with the Democrats on legislation and liberalization of the rules.

The La Follette group, however, is seeking to persuade a couple of regular Democrats, Ruddleston of Alabama and Collins of Mississippi, to demand the concessions sought by the radicals as the price of support of Representative John N. Garner [Dem., Tex.] for speaker.

The third vacancy is in the normally Republican First New Hampshire district which will not be filled till January. The Democrats are looking forward to the gain of one more seat in Illinois as the result of the contest of the election of Peter C. Granata [Rep.] in the Eighth Chicago district by former Congressman Hadley Kunz [Dem.], the candidate defeated on the face of the returns. Kunz claims he was counted out. Granata has the certificate of election and unless his right to qualify should be successfully challenged, he will vote on the speakership.

3 GIRLS IN AUTO CRASH; U. S. DRY'S BOTTLES FOUND

Iris Hoskins, 16 years old, 4716 Harding road, a Senn High school junior, was seriously injured yesterday afternoon, when an automobile in which she and two other girls were riding collided with another at Glenview and Greenview avenues. She was taken to the John B. Murphy hospital.

A little later the police, looking through the automobile, found two empty bottles that apparently had contained liquor. This circumstance was explained by Juno Merrill, 7600 Hamilton road, driver of the car.

"It's all right," she said. "This car belongs to father. He is a prohibition agent and his name is Alanson Merrill. He sometimes forgets to take out all the empty bottles he brings in his work."

Although the car was turned over neither Miss Merrill nor Mary Ann Hill, 6311 North Fairfield avenue, the third student, was injured. Rolland Gish, 4016 North Fairfield avenue, was the driver of the other automobile.

Woman Jailed Five Days for Resisting Arrest

Mrs. Bertha Kinder, owner of a grocery at 1303 Shields avenue, who refused service of a Probate court attachment so vigorously Thursday that it required six policemen to remove her to the county jail, was sent back to the jail yesterday by Probate Judge Baldwin to serve five days for contempt of court. She told the judge that she did not know what previous summons sent her meant, and denied that she had resisted arrest.

Suspect, Shot as He Flees from Police, Dies of Wound

Joseph Burke, 24 years old, died in the Bridewell hospital yesterday from wounds he suffered Thursday night when he tried to flee from police. Burke, a suspected bandit, had escaped from a house at 2019 Churchill street, which police were watching. He was commanded to halt, but started to run. Policeman Walter Ludke of the Albany Park station fired and Burke fell.

BOOKS

Ocean's Vigor Deserts Pen of Masefield

Trite Legends Basis of His Latest Verses.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Minnie Maylow's Story and Other Tales and Scenes," by John Masefield. [Macmillan.] Published on Wednesday.

JOHN MASEFIELD'S first book of poetry since his appointment as post laureate of England came this week with the alluring title of "Minnie Maylow's Story."

That title had echoes of "The Widow in the Bye Street" and "Dauber." It promised somehow a narrative of one Minnie of the sluma. There was no reason why that title should have made such promises to any reader, but it did, just that to me. "We shall have again the Masefield of the lusty narrative poem," I said to myself.

JOHN MASEFIELD.

It was a disappointment, indeed, to me to find that Minnie is apparently short for minnesinger, and Maylow, unexplained. The long poem concerns an English king who, tired of stories that ended, gave out an edict that the next man who told him a story that ended should be put to death, but that any one who could tell him a tale without an end should marry his daughter, Emily, as usual in poetry, beautiful as the dawn.

A minstrel boy offered his tale of a vast granary built by a wise king to house enough corn, wheat and barley to feed his subjects through any possible famine. The mason left a crack small enough for a locust to dig his way into the granary, however. The young minstrel began to tell the story of each locust that went in to seek his grain of corn. The king had to admit that the story WAS endless if the youth insisted upon telling the life history of each thief of each kernel—which he did insist upon doing—and the lad won his Emily.

All of the other "tales and scenes" in the volume are tales of times long past. Many of them deal with classical or historical subjects—Penelope, Henry VIII. and his assorted wives and Cardinal Wolsey, Tristan and Isolde, Dick Whittington, Brutos, founder of Britain; Adam and Eve. They all have the flavor of the classic. They are all written in classic verse forms. They have the dignity of accepted ways and turns of phrase. They have not that vigor and that beauty of the commonplace seen through the eyes of a great poet that Mr. Masefield's early narratives in verse had. They leave me, at least, cold to their poetic forms and feelings. There are few verses which clutch you with their sheer beauty of phrase and word pattern, things that seem to me to be the reason for poetry's being. What Mr. Masefield's words in this volume arouse in this reader is a respect for his mastery of his art and literally nothing else. Life to me is no fuller after reading the pages, man no more understandable, God's ways no more comprehensible through the magic of interpreted beauty. Superbly great poetry does by some magic translate life to one.

There are occasional stanzas which are memorable. This one, for instance:

Man is but as a spark aswim
In deathlessness surrounding him.
When he is most himself, he dreams;
But in his passionate extremes
He touches deathlessness.

Advance
Limitless the inheritance;
Deathless the spirit-fields men till;
Your heaven and earth are what you will.

Once, in speaking of a man of great ambition, Mr. Masefield says:

"He means to be a story that is told," an apt and at the same time unusual description of man's overweening desire for fame.

Some of the poems are slightly ironic—the one about the Son of Adam, for instance, which is the fable of a "lusty Lion, just come of age," who was determined to avenge the goose animal, the donkey animal, the packhorse animal who had been grossly misused by the Son of Adam. He sees coming toward him a creature, "whether an animal or only a nightmare," which called itself the builder-animal and pretended that it was the cruelty of the Son of Adam who asked him to "build at things I cannot reckon building" which had driven him to building palaces for the king of beasts, who was, he averred, the Leopard. When the Lion convinced him that the Lion alone was the king of beasts, the builder-animal in apology offered to build him a palace.

Yes, it was a cage which he knocked together and soon he had the king of beasts inside, on the back of the packhorse and on the way to be sold to the Sultan.

Mr. Masefield dedicates his volume to fifteen "beautiful speakers [named] who, in the speaking of these tales and scenes, have deeply delighted me."

This Author Says One of Czar's Daughters Lives

Gleb Botkin, author of "The Real Romanovs" [Revell], asserts with finality that the sensational and hitherto unproved claim of Anastasia Tschaikowsky to be the youngest daughter of the murdered czar is founded on fact. The book is a history of the Romanov family by one who knew them intimately as the son of the court physician.

DEATH ENDS CAREER OF O. E. ROLVAAG AT HEIGHT OF REPUTATION

Northfield, Minn., Nov. 6.—(AP)—O. E. Rolvaag, whose books picturing pioneer life on the prairies became popular in six countries, had reached the end of his literary career today.

He died of heart disease late yesterday at his home, only a short distance from St. Olaf college, where he was a professor of languages for 20 years and where he began writing novels to amuse himself.

In Helgeland, a Norwegian fishing island on the fringe of the arctic circle, where he was born 55 years ago, Rolvaag was regarded as an interior boy, because he found more enjoyment in reading than in fishing. He was given his choice of command of a fishing vessel or transportation to South Dakota.

He chose the latter and arrived in New York with a dime, a loaf of stale bread, and several odd trinkets. In South Dakota he worked on farms and became acquainted with scenes and men who later figured importantly in his most widely read books, "Giants in the Earth," "Peder Victorious," and "Pure Gold."

He finally realized hopes for an education at Augustana college, Sioux Falls, S. D., and at St. Olaf. Although a student of English literature, he found it easier to express himself in Norwegian in his writings, and they were translated into English by associates.

He won most literary attention in the three Scandinavian countries, Germany, Russia, and this country, "Giants in the Earth," a realistic tale of Norse pioneers, receiving the most printings. This book was the first in a triology which included "Peter Victorious" and "Their Father's God," the last issued only a month ago.

Rolvaag was knighted by the king of Norway and was formally nominated for the Nobel prize in literature in 1930. His work was widely read in Norway many years before his first book in English was published.

Canadian Explains Einstein for the Business Man

When California feted Einstein last year a group of Canadian business men decided to try to find out what the relativity theory is. Refusing to believe that it could not be made clear to the layman, they asked Dr. Frank Allen of the University of Manitoba to explain it to them.

He complied with a series of lectures on the basic theories of the world as propounded by the great philosophers of all time, beginning with Pythagoras and ending with Einstein. He told the story simply and vividly and his audience was fascinated.

At the end of one lecture a retail bookseller asked for the manuscript. Now it is published as "The Universe: From Crystal Spheres to Relativity" [Harcourt-Brace].

'Castle Skull' Best of These Crime Puzzles

Another Deals with Truly Cherubic Gangster.

BY SCHUYLER VAN VLEEK.

"Castle Skull," by John Dickson Carr. [Harper & Brothers.]

"In the Dark," by Elias Tobenkin. [Doubleday Doran.]

"The Devil Man," by Edgar Wallace. [The Crime Club, Inc.]

"The Standish Gaunt Case," by Innis Patterson. [Farrar & Rinehart.]

HERE is a foursome of new mystery stories for detective book fans. Not many books since the famous "Dracula" have provided such a picturesque background and so many uncanny and dramatic moments as "Castle Skull." It's so exciting that chills run up and down your spine when you read it and your hair rises gently on your cranium.

In the first place the locale is ideal for a mystery drama. Castle Skull rises abruptly from the steep banks of the Rhine near Coblenz. Owned by the greatest magician of all Europe, one Malager, it is replete with hidden rooms, secret passages, and all the horrors he used to amuse himself with when off duty, as it were. And directly across the river from it is another castle, the property of Myron Allson, noted actor and friend of Malager.

The magician is found drowned and later Allson dies a horrible death, his body made a human torch. Two master detectives, one of them being M. Bencolin of the French secret service and the other his great rival, Von Arnheim of Berlin, are employed to find the murderer. These two are like fighting cocks, and their methods of outwitting and checkmating each other add spice to the narrative.

Each character is sketched with consummate skill and an adroit sense of humor, from Allson's stout and hearty sister, whom every one calls "Duchess" and who is, perhaps, the most alive of any of the characters, to Gallivan, an American journalist, who plays the smallest bit in the drama. Suspense mounts chapter by chapter, until one impatiently tears the seal marked "A Sporting Offer" and promising you your money back if you can resist the desire to know what comes after. The dénouement is so completely unexpected that it takes several moments for it to "sink in."

An entirely different type of book is "In the Dark," by Elias Tobenkin. It undertakes to tell how a gangster gets that way. Starting with a young chap of obscure but good parentage it goes with him, step by step, until he is sentenced to the electric chair for shooting a member of his gang. Although the story unfolds fairly logically and is told with directness and simplicity, the reader cannot help but wonder if even the dumbest boy is so dumb as to allow himself to be mixed up with gangsters without realizing it.

All along the author maintains that poor Wally Brook is as fine as gold and twice as pure, although he is driving a beer truck for one of the largest crime rings in Chicago and is receiving ample wages therefrom. Wally just doesn't realize what he's doing, and the gentle reader is supposed to be gentle enough not to condemn this child of fate.

Edgar Wallace's list of thrillers is growing to look like the telephone book. If arranged alphabetically and placed end to end they would probably extend from here to Albany. We understand the author does them with his left hand, the way some sleight of hand performers eat spaghetti.

"The Devil Man"—one, Charles Peace, actually lived, so the cover tells us: "To the England of the seventies of the last century he was a sort of Jesse James, Frank Chapman, and Till Eulenspiegel rolled into one"—was a burglar, a ruthless murderer, an accomplice in all sorts of illegal undertakings.

The plot is concerned with the steel mills in Sheffield and with a mysterious Russian woman who is hunting for the secret formula lost by her husband and for a bottle of mysterious crystals, which Peace undertakes to locate for her. A doctor and an attractive nurse figure in the story, and a funny policeman who never can remember any one's name. There are several exciting episodes, but on the whole this last of Mr. Wallace's efforts cannot be said to represent his best talents.

As for "The Standish Gaunt Case," by Innis Patterson, little can be said in its favor. The murdered man is a hypocrite who poses as a philanthropist, but really is a malevolent and wicked person, much better in a grave than out of one. No one cares a mite that he is killed, except his poor wife, who, somehow, managed to keep alive a spark of love for the creature.

His daughter is as unpleasant a character as old Gaunt himself, and she is too ever present in the tale for enjoyment. The narrative wanders on and on, without much point. In the end one learns that the man was really a victim of his own machinations and that the wages of sin, etc.

Russian Author's Tragedy Colored His Chief Works

E. H. Carr has written "The Life of Dostoevsky" [Houghton Mifflin]. That great Russian's life is just as thrilling and absorbing and terrible as his novels. At the age of twenty he was condemned to death for political agitation. Only a few minutes before the rope was to be put around his neck his sentence was commuted to exile in Siberia. Four years of horror and suffering in Siberia permanently shattered his nerves. He constantly suffered from epileptic fits. His life history is a dramatic story.

Novel Writing Suggested as Remedy for Insomnia

There are many authors who write best under stress and Carolyn Wells is one of them. Her latest story, "The Umbrella Mystery" [Lippincott], was written when she was ill in bed, had no appetite and couldn't sleep. Her nurse suggested the plot and the doctor egged her on.

NOW YOURS FOR LESS THAN Half Price

The REAL Arabian Nights

Heretofore the real Arabian Nights has been available only in an expensive de luxe edition. Now a POPULAR-PRICED edition has been prepared which will save more than half the cost. It is identical in contents with the previous de luxe edition. It is printed from the same plates and contains every page, unchanged, of the expensive set—even to the wonderful illustrations. But by using a less expensive paper and binding, and by printing a large edition at one time, and by taking advantage of the present lower costs of book-making, it has become possible for us to offer

A Sensational Price Reduction of 55%

ON THE FAMOUS UNABRIDGED MARDRUS-MATHERS EDITION

Except for slight differences in paper and binding that only an expert could detect, this is the same set as the previous de luxe edition costing more than twice as much. Every page is here—every story complete. The London Times said of the Mardrus-Mathers translation:

"Burton's version has hitherto been the last word. But it is so no longer. Once more a Frenchman has put us in his debt. The tale, after all, is the thing, and the tale is better told by Mardrus than by Burton."

The 1001 Tales Complete

The supreme masterpiece of Oriental romance—the most intimate revelation of the glamorous East that the world's literature affords. Until you read this true version of the real Arabian Nights you have not even glimpsed this dazzling pageant of Oriental splendor—this incredible drama of Oriental life. NOW you may join the Sultan in those nocturnal hours when lovely Shahrazade bewitched him with her tales of the love and danger, the trickery and magic, the romance and intrigue of glamorous old Baghdad. For here at last is a complete and unabridged English translation that gives you all the stories as they were related in the privacy of the Sultan's harem.

"Generals Die in Bed" Wins Medal for Author

Charles Yale Harrison, American novelist, recently was awarded the first international prize for anti-war literature by the Ordre Universal du Meritè du Humain at Geneva for his war novel, "Generals Die in Bed." That book, published by Jonathan Cape & Harrison Smith, recently was translated into French. The award was made on the basis of the French edition. The Ordre Universal du Meritè du Humain is an international organization. Prof. Albert Einstein is an honorary member. Each year the order confers an international prize for "the most effective contribution in the arts to the cause of international peace and good will." The award consists of a nominal cash award and a gold medal.

Harrison's next book, a biography of Attorney Clarence S. Darrow, will be published Nov. 9.

HOOVER INQUIRY TO DISPUTE NAVY LEAGUE CHARGES

Report Ready Today; Will Uphold President.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Washington, D. C., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—The Navy league's charges that President Hoover exhibited "abysmal ignorance" of naval affairs in his administration of the nation's national defense establishments will be answered in a special report to be filed at the White House tomorrow by the Hammond investigating committee. The committee of five virtually completed its inquiry today and announced that its findings would be in the hands of President Hoover tomorrow.

HUGH RODMAN.
[Harris&Ewing Photo]

On emerging from their second session tonight John Hays Hammond, committee chairman, and Admiral Hugh Rodman, a member, disclosed that the investigation of the Navy league charges had been completed and that a report was being drawn up. No witnesses were called and William Howard Gardiner, league president, and author of the pamphlet assailing President Hoover for his naval economies was not asked to explain his charges.

"The report will be a damn good one," Admiral Rodman said. "All that remains now will be the final drafting of the report and the ironing out of rough spots."

Personnel of Committee.

Indications tonight were that the committee, which is made of two administration officials, a former administration official, a retired admiral, who once was decorated by the British government, and Mr. Hammond, will be entirely satisfactory to President Hoover.

An examination of Admiral Rodman's record disclosed today that he holds the British decoration of knight commander of the bath, awarded for his service with the grand fleet during the war. Admiral Rodman commanded the American units. Admiral Rodman is also remembered as one of the witnesses who testified against Rear Admiral William S. Sims when that naval officer created a row in 1920 by charging that the navy was unprepared for the world war due to faulty organization. Admiral Rodman appeared before the congressional committee investigating the Sims' charges in an attempt to controvert them.

In announcing he would appoint a committee to investigate the Gardiner charges, the President said that the body appointed would demonstrate the "untruths and distortions of fact" contained in the article.

League Not Asked for Data.

Only records of the navy and state department figure in the inquiry. The Navy league was not asked for any evidence of any kind to substantiate the charge that the President has exhibited an "abysmal ignorance of why navies are maintained," that his policies are such as to restrict, reduce, and starve the navy or that secret agreements, never officially divulged in their entirety, had been entered into between the President and Prime Minister MacDonald, prior to the assembling of the London conference for the limitation of naval armaments.

Mr. Hammond and Admiral Rodman said tonight that they were not permitted to disclose the nature of the committee's findings, but their attitude was such as to convince the correspondents with whom they talked that the President had been upheld and the bitter criticisms directed against him by Mr. Gardiner, and approved yesterday by the league's executive committee, are condemned.

Report in Rough Draft.

When the committee adjourned tonight each of the five members carried a rough draft of part of the report home with him which he will work on tonight and whip into shape for embodiment in the full report which the committee is expected to approve tomorrow.

That the report will be a unanimous one is considered certain. There was some speculation as to Admiral Rodman's stand, but that was dissipated tonight.

FEDERAL BUDGET ESTIMATES ARE CUT 350 MILLION

Actual Saving, if Any, Not Yet Known.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Washington, D. C., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—Budget estimates submitted by the various government establishments for the 1933 fiscal year have been reduced by 350 million dollars, President Hoover announced today at his semi-weekly conference with the press.

Although the exact budget figure to be sent to congress by the President for financing next year's federal activities was not divulged, it was said that the 1933 budget would be something like 280 million dollars below the total appropriations voted for current government expenses this year.

Whether the budget as submitted to congress will recommend lower actual expenditures next year was not made known. As the budget estimates, as submitted in September, were between 300 and 350 million dollars above the budget appropriations of above 4 billions last year indications are that the economy program has not shaved much, if anything, from the actual cost of the federal government.

Defenses Hardest Hit.

While national defense establishments must take actual cuts, no figures are available showing whether the total expenditures of other departments and establishments have been cut sufficiently to lower the 1933 budget estimate below the estimated expenditures of 4 billions, 119 millions, for 1932.

The national defense establishments have suffered cuts in excess of 100 millions, representing close to one-third of the total slash. The commerce department, through curtailing airways construction during 1933, will save probably $15,000,000. The prohibition bureau asked for several hundred thousands more than it received last year.

"The departmental budgets," said the President, "for the fiscal year beginning next July have proceeded far enough to enable me to state that appropriations which will be proposed to the congress will show a reduction of at least 350 million dollars below that of original departmental requests.

Praises Coöperation Shown.

"As nearly half the expenditures of the government are for interest, sinking funds, veterans' services and other items which are irreducible, this cut represents most earnest coöperation by all the departments of the government in their endeavor to meet the necessities of the taxpayer and the present economic situation.

"Again I wish to refer to the many sectional interests throughout the country who are asking us to increase expenditures. Such action can only embarrass the earnest efforts of the administration and the congress to maintain our governmental finance on a sound basis. Many new plans of different sections, meritorious in themselves, must be deferred until the country can afford to pay for them."

RESORT OWNERS ARRAIGNED.

Eighteen men and three women, said to be operators of resorts in Chicago's "duck lands," northwest of the city, were arraigned before Commissioner Walker yesterday charged with violation of the prohibition law. The women and a majority of the men gained temporary freedom in bonds ranging from $1,000 to $2,000.

1,000,000 REDS WILL PARADE IN MOSCOW TODAY

It's Fourteenth Year of Bolshevik Rule.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
RIGA, Latvia, Nov. 6.—Before delegations of workers from 15 European countries, 1,000,000 employés of the soviet government and their wives and families will parade in Moscow tomorrow celebrating the 14th birthday of the communist régime in Russia.

Placards containing 43 slogans adopted by the central committee of the all Russian communist party will be carried in the parade. The slogans appeal to workers abroad to hurry their preparations for a world-wide revolution, to defend the soviet government from the attacks of the capitalists and to pledge anew their loyalty to Dictator Stalin.

The parade will begin at 8 a. m. Employés of government institutions and workers of Moscow factories have been ordered to appear at designated points at 7 o'clock. According to the Pravda, preparations have been made to distribute 2,000,000 sandwiches and 1,000,000 piroshi, or fried cakes, to the marchers after they leave Red square.

Behind the celebrations arranged for the cities and industrial centers, the G. P. U., or secret service army has been mobilized for another attack against the Russian villages which are again stubbornly refusing to deliver grain to the government. Hidden stores of grain have been discovered on collectivized farms in the Volga provinces and in the northern Caucasus.

According to the plenum, the central committee of the communist party, war has again been declared between the Russian village and the soviet city over grain crops. The peasants refused to deliver grain until supplies of manufactured goods arrive, and the plenum states that until the villages deliver grain they will not receive manufactured goods.

The anniversary of the bolshevik revolution will not be celebrated in Europe this year, as police in the Baltic states, Germany, and other countries have forbidden demonstrations.

SUPERSUBMARINE FAILURE; BRITAIN SEEKS TO SELL IT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
VALETTA, Malta, Nov. 6.—With its engines dismantled, the supersubmarine K-26, second largest in the British navy and a secret ship when it was constructed, is lying among the tugs in the Malta naval yards awaiting a purchaser.

The vessel was kept in the slips under the strictest guard while it was being built and was surrounded by destroyers during installation of the final fittings after launching. The first tests were unsatisfactory, and the K-26 was sent to Malta. She made the voyage above water all the way. Something had slipped in the attempt to match the new French submarines.

Now the admiralty would like to tow the vessel into the middle of the Mediterranean and sink her. It might prove embarrassing in the house of commons, however, so the K-26 is for sale in Malta.

Yes—CAMELS are the fresh cigarette

They're never parched or toasted!

A HUMIDOR package can preserve freshness only in cigarettes that are fresh to start with; it cannot freshen cigarettes that are dried-out or factory-stale.

If Camels were made under any method which dispelled their natural moisture—if it were parched or toasted out—the Camel Humidor Pack could not possibly be the boon to smokers that it is.

But Camel cigarettes are fresh cigarettes to start with—as fresh and fine as choicest materials, scrupulous care and great skill can make them.

They are redolent with fragrant flavor, fresh with natural moisture, cleanly and dust-free, in prime smoking condition.

Give your throat a vacation from the harsh hot smoke of parched dry-as-dust strong tobaccos—taste the smooth flavorful delights of a fresh cigarette.

Switch to mild, cool-burning, throat-friendly Camels for just one day—then leave them, if you can!

SAILORS' UNION ASKS U. S. AID IN 8 HR. DRIVE

The President's committee on unemployment yesterday was appealed to by the sailors' union of the great lakes in its campaign to abolish the two watch day or twelve hour shift. In a letter to the chairman, Harry A. Wheeler, Chicago banker, the union asked for the assistance of the committee in obtaining a three watch day as a means of fighting unemployment among sailors and to alleviate the hardships of lake shipping.

Classifying the present two watch system as "brutal and inhuman," the letter in part stated: "The adoption of the three watch system or the eight hour day would not only ease the serious unemployment situation prevalent among lake sailors, but would also give these sailors a work day universally recognized as just, fair and humane."

15 Women Confront Beauty School Owner in Court

The case against Lewis Stone, alleged operator of the Stone School of Beauty Culture at 6 West Randolph street, charged with obtaining money under false pretenses, was continued to Nov. 19 by Judge Donald S. McKinlay in the South State street court yesterday. Fifteen women graduates of the school, who claim that they were unable to obtain jobs after their graduation because the school was not registered with the state department of registration and education, bound Stone in court. Stone is out on $2,500 bond.

SUSPEND COLLEGE EDITOR; CRITICISM OF WOMAN DEAN CAUSE

Greencastle, Ind., Nov. 6.—(AP)—The board of control for the De Pauw, campus publication at De Pauw university, today suspended Thoburn Wiant, student editor, because of an article criticizing Katherine Alvord, dean of women.

Wiant, a senior, is the son of the Rev. W. W. Wiant, pastor of North M. E. church, Indianapolis. John Millett, Indianapolis, was made acting editor of the De Pauw.

The article accused Dean Alvord of "incompetency, inability to exert the slightest positive influence on women students and her total lack of capacity to understand and help women placed under her authority."

It was written by Ben Deming, Fort Worth, Tex., student, not a member of the paper's staff, and was carried under the heading "Student Opinion."

Final action concerning Deming may come from the board of deans. Roy O. West, Chicago, president of the board of trustees, will be here tomorrow in connection with Dad's day.

ASSERT BRIDGE WORK WILL NOT DELAY SEAWAY

State Prepared for Early Use of Water Route.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Bridges to be built by the state will not be an obstacle to the completion of the Illinois waterway by the federal government next fall instead of in 1933, according to estimates yesterday by state officials. They dispelled the argument of the army engineers in Chicago that if the link between the great lakes and the Gulf of Mexico were finished next October, it could not be thrown open to navigation because of the bridges.

All told, the state has to build eleven bridges across the waterway. Following President Hoover's announcement that he would call in the chief of army engineers, Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, with a view to expediting the work, the state authorities set forth that their part of the work will not occasion any delay. Some of the bridges, they pointed out, can be built after the water is backed up into the pools and the waterway is thrown open, just as is done in constructing bascules on the Chicago river.

Dresden Dam Held Key.

Local engineers meantime pointed to the Dresden island dam as the key to the situation. By putting 1,000 to 2,000 men at work and running day and night, as is done on private construction and on some of the projects of the sanitary district, they figured the dam could be finished in October with little trouble. As affairs stand the contract calls for completion of the Dresden island dam in February, 1933.

The job is figured on eight hours work a day. At the rate things have been moving, some observers say the dam may be finished a couple of months ahead of contract time, anyhow. Double shifts or triple shifts would cut the construction period down to a September finish, they figure, while the additional cost would not be so great, particularly when measured against the matter of giving work to unemployed men and of getting six months' earlier use of an investment of $75,000,000, the approximate cost of the Chicago to Utica link.

Speed Bridge Program.

The five bascules to be built at Joliet are the main phase of the bridge situation. The state waterways division indicated yesterday that it is seeking to make up for the six months lost through the controversy over the prevailing wage law which the Supreme court declared unconstitutional. Director Henry H. Kohn is to take bids Nov. 24 for the steel work on three bascules at Joliet and for bridges at Brandon road and Marseilles. Bids for the foundations are to be taken next month. It is expected it will take four or five months to get the steel ready.

The original understanding was that two bridges at a time should be built in Joliet to avoid tying up traffic. But on account of the delay an agreement has been reached that three bridges, instead of two, may be built at a time.

Offers Work for 500.

It is figured by the officials that the bridges will afford employment for an average of 500 men for eight or nine months. The three Joliet bridges on which bids are to be received on Nov. 24 are to cost $920,000. They are: Jackson street, $236,000; Jefferson street, $333,000; and Cass street, $350,000. The bridge at Brandon road is to cost $96,700, and the one at Marseilles, $193,000. All five of these bridges, the authorities estimate, will be finished and open for traffic before October.

Two other bridges which the state is to build in Joliet are at McDonough and Ruby streets. It is planned to get the foundations in next summer before the waterway is completed, and build the superstructure later. This will not interfere with navigation, as they are of the bascule type.

The state officials declare the Ottawa bridge and Smith's bridge can be completed next summer. The other two bridges, at Seneca and Morris, are to be built by the state highway division, and are expected to be finished in the next ten or eleven months.

Must Equip Canal Bridges.

Between Lockport and Chicago are nineteen sanitary district bridges, which the war department says will require equipping with machinery to operate. Some are bascules and some are swings. The average clearance is 16 feet. A 25 foot clearance is contemplated in the fixed bridges to be built over the Sag channel. Sanitary trustees point out that even if the operating machinery is not installed on all the bridges by next October the 16 foot clearance will be ample for barge traffic.

Four railroad bridges still remain to be disposed of. The officials say the Burlington bridge at Ottawa and the Elgin, Joliet and Eastern bridge at Joliet must re rebuilt. Negotiations have not been progressing with marked rapidity. Two older bridges, the Big Four at Seneca and the Elgin, Joliet and Eastern bridge at Dresden island, have little traffic, a train or two a day, and the conjecture is that they may be abandoned.

Old Suit of City Against Bundesen Is Dismissed

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson yesterday dismissed the $200,000 damage suit filed by the city in May, 1928, against Health Commissioner Bundesen. The dismissal was on motion of the corporation counsel. The suit, filed by the previous administration, charged that Bundesen had made use illegally of a "baby list" and other data compiled by the health department. Dr. Bundesen maintained that the list and the data were his private property which he removed after he left office.

Kellogg's All-Bran relieves common constipation

VITAMIN B helps tone the intestinal tract and assists "bulk" in promoting natural elimination. IRON in this famous health cereal helps to build red blood

KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN has been a good health habit and system regulator with millions of people for more than a decade.

There's no guessing about its benefits. These millions of people know, from their own personal daily experience, that it helps to overcome both temporary and recurring constipation—with the headaches, loss of appetite and weakened energy that often go with this widespread ailment.

Now scientific tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is even more valuable than was generally supposed. Research shows this famous health cereal contains Vitamin B and twice as much blood-building iron as an equal amount by weight of beef liver.

Vitamin B is important because it tones up the intestines and helps to keep them functioning properly. Thus it assists the "bulk" of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN in encouraging normal, natural elimination.

The bulk of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is similar in action to the fiber in spinach and other leafy vegetables, only it is concentrated in a more convenient form to relieve constipation. When you eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN it changes from the form in which you see it in the package by absorbing a considerable amount of water and forming a soft mass. This soft mass gently carries out intestinal wastes. Thus it relieves ordinary constipation in an easy, natural way. It is much better for you than violent, habit-forming purgatives that may shock the intestines to strenuous action.

Start today to eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN and note how it helps to keep you fit. If you suffer from intestinal trouble not relieved this way, consult your doctor.

Two tablespoonfuls daily is usually sufficient to relieve temporary and recurring constipation . . . with every meal in more stubborn cases. You can eat it alone, with another cereal, with soup, or in delicious bran muffins, bread, etc. (Recipes are on every package.)

Remember to get Kellogg's ALL-BRAN in the red-and-green package. Then you are sure of getting bran in the form that will do you the most good . . . the bran that has bulk enriched with iron and Vitamin B. Cooked, krumbled and deliciously flavored.

Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

HARD TIMES FADE IN ARGENTINA AS CROP PRICES RISE

Business Picks Up; See Prosperity's Return.

BY HAROLD TATAM.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Nov. 6.—The economic situation in Argentina has undergone a kaleidoscopic change in the last two weeks as a consequence of the rapid rise in the value of the country's staple products.

With a considerable quantity of wheat and maize still unshipped—reliably estimated to be around 700,000 and 2,500,000 tons respectively—and with about 32 million acres of wheat, linseed, oats and barley [of which 18 million acres is wheat] on the eve of harvesting, the present trend in world markets has transported Argentina from a state in crisis into a state with an incipient boom.

Optimism Ousts Gloom.

Gloom has given place to optimism in view of the all round excellent condition of the growing crops, the favorable weather which makes eleventh hour frost damage improbable, the simultaneous jump of the wool market at a moment when the bulk of the clip is still in the growers' hands, and other minor factors which indicate an emergence from the long period of depression.

The general feeling of optimism is reflected in the steady hardening of the national mortgage bonds and the government's internal loans, which today are finding more buyers than sellers on the stock exchange. The improvement in the quotations of internal bonds has been reflected to a minor degree on the New York Stock exchange, where Argentine external gold bonds jumped from around 35 to 62. Even at this figure there would be plenty of buyers here but for the ruinous exchange rate. The rise in the New York market, therefore, is likely to spurt rather than decline.

Peso Grows in Value.

Another effect of the changed conditions has been a sharp appreciation of the exchange value of the gold peso, which is improving faster than the exchange control commission deems convenient. The commission, which was formed during the days of the depression in order to prevent speculation on the exchange, recently fixed the exchange rate at 183 pesos per 100 United States dollars. Subsequently it lowered the rate to 185 and today to 175, aiming to keep the appreciation gradual instead of too sudden.

This reduction was made to avoid paralyzing the export trade, grain and other exporters having ceased to operate because they were unable to sell dollars and sterling at the "official" rate. [The Argentine paper dollar today was quoted at 25.23 cents.]

GEORGE S. MILNOR IS NAMED HEAD OF CORN CREDIT CORPORATION

George S. Milnor, head of the federal farm board's Grain Stabilization corporation, was elected president of the newly incorporated National Corn Credit corporation yesterday. The corporation has an authorized capital stock of $2,500,000 to be used in financing farmers for storing corn on farms, and $1,000,000 has been subscribed.

G. S. MILNOR.
[Strauss Photo.]

Headquarters for the corporation are to be established at once in Chicago, with machinery for lending money to be ready in ten days or two weeks, according to Earl Smith, president of the Illinois Agricultural association and vice president of the corporation. George A. Ranney, treasurer of the International Harvester company, is secretary, and Harry Laird of Des Moines treasurer.

The farm board, through the Farmers' National Grain corporation, has set aside a half million dollars for stock. The balance has been subscribed by banks and commercial interests.

Present plans provide that all loans will be due July 15, 1932, or before that time, since no attempt is to be made to hold the present corn crop over into another crop season.

ILLINOIS GUARD OFFICERS HOLD ANNUAL SESSION

The commissioned personnel of the Illinois National Guard, consisting of approximately 700 officers, yesterday held its annual meeting at the Great Northern hotel. Methods of quick mobilization in times of public need and the future athletic program of the guardsmen were the chief topics of discussion.

The White plan of rapid mobilization was discussed and approved by Gen. Frank Parker, commander of the 6th corps area.

Officers were appointed to plan the athletic program. The necessity of keeping athletic competition within the ranks of the guard was emphasized.

ORVILLE WELCH WINS STATE CORN HUSKING CROWN

Piatt Man Shucks 32.53 Bushels.

Monticello, Ill., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—Monticello veterans took the high places in the Illinois state corn husking contest held here today when Orville Welch, 26, Piatt county champion realized a long standing ambition and won the state crown from a field of 12 county champions.

Welch started husking in state matches in 1924 when he was 19 years old. His record of 32.53 bushels net in an hour and 20 minutes was one of the best made in recent years, but fell short of the national record of 35.3 bushels made in 1925 by Elmer Williams of Stark county.

Close to 25,000 persons crowded through the fields after their champions. Balmy wather and a perfectly managed contest added to the enjoyment of the crowd.

Walter Olson of Henry county, national champion in 1928 and 1929, was third with 30.63 bushels and the only new man to win a place.

Ray Snider of Marshall, Putnam county, was fourth.

Ross Hedgecock of Iroquois county was fifth.

Carey Wins Iowa Championship.

Nevada, Ia., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Lee Carey, 38 year old Laurel farmer, will wear the state cornhusking crown for 1931.

Known as the "hard luck man" of previous nubbin Derbies, the Marshall county entrant defeated two former state champions when he chalked up a net of 2,008.6 pounds of corn in the 80 minute battle.

FATHER KEARNEY, PARISH FOUNDER, TAKEN BY DEATH

The Rev. William L. Kearney, organizer and pastor of the Most Precious Blood Catholic church, Congress street and Western avenue, died yesterday in the parish house after a short illness.

Father Kearney was born in Dixon, Ill., and was 62 years old. He was educated at Dixon, St. Viator's college, Bourbonnais, Ill., and St. Mary's seminary, Baltimore. After his ordination in 1894, Father Kearney was appointed to St. Charles Borromeo church, Cypress street and Roosevelt road. He remained there until 1906 when he was designated to organize a new parish on the west side. Within a year he organized the Most Precious Blood church which he served as the first and only pastor.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 o'clock Monday, with Cardinal Mundelein attending. Burial will be in Mount Carmel cemetery. Surviving the clergyman are two brothers, Dr. James F. and Peter E. Kearney.

Assess Exchange Seats for Taxes Over Protest

The board of assessors yesterday overruled the objections of Attorney Lester L. Falk and a committee from the Chicago Stock exchange that memberships in that organization are a privilege and not personal property, and are therefore nonassessable. The memberships were ordered placed on the 1931 personal property assessment books, along with those of the Chicago Board of Trade. The full value of the memberships of the two bodies was placed at $9,857,000, which at 37 per cent will yield an assessment value of $3,657,090.

FIND U. S. PASTOR DECAPITATED BY CHINESE BANDITS

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

SHANGHAI, Nov. 7.—[Saturday.]—Fellow missionaries of the Rev. J. W. Vinson, American, killed at Wangjiagieh, northern Kiangsu, have identified the body of the missionary, who was stabbed through the heart and then decapitated, after the bandits had raided and looted the town, located 30 miles from Haichow.

Private sources today received details of the attack last Saturday night when the bandit horde of 1,000 raided Wangjiagieh. The bandits captured the town, looting and burning, and by Monday the community was destroyed by fire. Thirty were killed, many wounded, and 150 taken prisoner.

The Rev. Mr. Vinson's chapel was entered early Sunday morning when bandits, after stealing everything valuable, raided the missionary's room, taking all his possessions. The pastor resisted, but was forced to dress and accompany the bandits. A Chinese girl, who was captured, but afterwards released, reported that the Rev. Mr. Vinson's hands were tied by the bandits, but details of the murder were not known beyond the appearance of the body after the discovery.

MONUMENT TO BRIG. GEN. STUART TO BE DEDICATED

The unveiling and dedication of the monument to Brig. Gen. James E. Stuart, veteran of three wars, will be held on Sunday, Nov. 15, at the Forest Home cemetery. The memorial has been erected by the Veteran Corps Second infantry, now the 132d, of which Gen. Stuart was past commander.

Gen. Stuart died on March 8 in his 89th year. He had enlisted in the civil war and rose to the rank of captain. Then he served as an officer in the Spanish-American and world wars. Gen. Stuart was the grand marshal of Chicago's Memorial day parades for many years.

At the dedication, addresses will be made by Judge Marcus Kavanagh and William Friedman. Glen Most, baritone, and the Elmhurst college quartet will sing. The customary salute and the sounding of "taps" will be given by a detachment from the 132d infantry.

MRS. WILLIAM E. SHEPHERD DIES; OLD TIME FAMILY

New York, Nov. 6.—[Special.]—Mrs. Cettie Moore Gwynne Shepherd, widow of William Edgar Shepherd and a descendant of one of the early settlers of Pennsylvania, died today at her home here in her seventy-fourth year.

A sister of Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Sr., Mrs. Shepherd was the daughter of Abraham Evan Gwynne, of Cincinnati and Rachel Moore Flagg Gwynne, whose nickname of Cettie was given to her daughter. Her grandfather, William Henry Flagg, was mayor of New Haven, Conn., from 1836 to 1841. Mrs. Shepherd traced her descent to Capt. Abraham George Claypole of Philadelphia, one of the charter members of the Society of the Cincinnati.

Doris Tells Girls to Lay Off Demands for Costly Dates

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"During the last three months I have had only three dates. What a record! For the last year I have been associating with girls of my own age and out of a total of eight, three have steady boy friends. Something must be radically wrong with the rest of us. Perhaps it's the depression. It's being blamed for everything else, why not for this? Anyway, the best you can draw is an invitation to a cheap movie house, and, as you see, not too many of them. TWENTY-ONE."

Well, why not blame the depression? You can't take out a young woman of 21 to whom the cheap movie is anathema without having a bank roll, now, can you? The wonder to me when I see young men squiring girls to theaters and night clubs is how they do it. That sort of entertainment requires a mature man's bank roll. Taxi to the show, the best seats, taxi to the club, cover charges, sandwich charges, ginger ale charges, taxi home. How do these young chaps do it? Somebody must be helping them.

But there's another group of boys, away and far in the majority, who can't step out at the expected pace. Rather than be humiliated they keep away from girls. In fact, at the current moment there are young men who think a brother who can rise to three dates in three months is in big money.

Here's your chance to turn around now and show how a girl can manage a good time on comparatively little per evening. Put it down as a bad year for expecting big party dates. Revive the custom of letting the boys stick around your homes for an evening. Serve them sandwiches and coffee. Plan some amusing entertainment.

Don't meet them at the door with: "Let's go to Barney's or Jake's." Don't suggest any evening venture that's going to embarrass the youth into a confession about his moneyless state, or that's going to dare the weaker ones into bluff. Put it down to depression, you girls, but you hop in now and take an active part in lifting the dark curtain.

Fur Jacket and Dress Ensemble Show Tiers

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Tiers haven't been evident in style scenery for some time, but they are smart again this winter, and many a daytime dress of featherweight woolen has its tiers. Sometimes a skirt will be covered with tiny tiers, and at other times only two or three are given it. Coats and jackets, too, may have a limited number of tiers around the bottom, but they are more often applied to the dress than they are to the wrap.

A good example of the tiered dress for practical daytime wear is the Mirande frock, shown herewith. This frock is a princess dress and the bodice and top tier of the skirt are cut in one piece, the former being tightly fitted and the latter only a tiny bit flared near the bottom to preserve the princess line. Below this are two wide tiers that completes the skirt and that are flared by a slight circular movement.

Each tier is edged with a band of the wool that makes the dress, and this band is scalloped along the upper and lower edges. The dress and the trimming bands are Persian green. The square neckline is edged with a rick-rack band of white pique.

A black broadtail jacket is the wrap of this ensemble. It is a longish bolero with a standing collar and short cape sleeves. The sleeve of the dress, from wrist to above the elbow, is made of broadtail, so that the coat seems to have long sleeves when it is worn.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Wait Another Year.

"Dear Miss Blake: Is a girl of 15 too young to go out on dates with clean-cut fellows of 18 years? DOT."

Most parents feel that 15 is too young. Why not wait another year?

Tell Her the Truth.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am in love with a girl and kept company with her for several months, but some one has talked against me and she will not speak to me any more. Do you think she cares for me? BILLIE."

Try to see her and explain that the stories circulated about you were untrue and ask if she won't reconsider.

One Hour Can Effect Clever Rejuvenation for the Evening Date

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

The season is on now. You rush home somewhere around 5:30 to dress and appear most awfully gay and charming for the dinner date. How to do yourself justice after a hard day's grind and your mirror throws back at 5:30 a tired eye, a drawn look to the cheek, and anything but enthusiasm expressed in the body?

Don't envy the fair rival who has had her full afternoon primping or being turned out by Paul, Jean, or Antoins. She may not have got what you can in the interim between 5:30 and the escort's ring of the door bell.

Say you have from 5:45 to 6:45 for rejuvenating. The nice warm bath you'll want. But for better invigorating measure throw plain table salt into the bath and lie in the tub lazy-like as can be and as if you had all the time in the world. If you don't feel equal to the cold shower don't take it.

Wrap yourself up in a warm blanket but have at your bedside an eye lotion of some kind. Salt water, if nothing else is handy. Witch hazel is awfully good. Before you wrap up completely, dip a small handkerchief in the eye lotion, or fresh absorbent cotton and pad down the eyes with this. And just laze there on the bed making a business of loosening up every blessed muscle you own. Get relaxed so completely all over that you're not sure it's you that's there.

Then, pull the legs up, feet resting on the bed and feel the small of the back touching the mattress. Stay thus for ten minutes, with nothing more on your mind than the dream fortune you're going to win on the sweepstakes. Spend the money easily, if that will help get the mind off the day's worries and possible irritations. Endow all your poor relations handsomely and revel in their heartfelt response to your good fairy rôle.

Silly? Maybe! But be silly and light of mind and heart for fifteen or twenty minutes. The big thing is to get the kinks in the brain ironed out with some kind of lighthearted thinking. That's how to arrive later at the party and be all your hostess promised you would be.

RICHARD TURTLE, TAXIDERMIST FOR MANY YEARS, DIES

Richard A. Turtle, 79 years old, taxidermist, who had mounted birds, fish, and animals for two Presidents and many prominent Chicago business men, dropped dead of heart disease yesterday while at work in his office in the Ogden building at 192 North Clark street, which he had occupied for more than half a century.

Mr. Turtle was a native of Chicago. His uncle, William Turtle, was chief of police in the '70s. Among his patrons were A. W. Harris, Charles A. Comiskey, Marshall Field, and Marvin Hughitt. Many of his specimens are in Chicago museums and in the public schools. He had prepared animals for Presidents Garfield and Arthur and also for Henry Ward Beecher.

A hunter as well as a taxidermist, Mr. Turtle belonged to the Lincoln Park Gun club and to the Senachwine Lake club. With him when he died was his wife, Louise Turtle, who had assisted him in his business for twenty-two years. The couple resided at the Hotel Sherman.

ABBY JOHNSON OF GLEN ELLYN TAKEN BY DEATH

Mrs. Abby Pillon Johnson, wife of Dr. Frank Johnson of Glen Ellyn, died yesterday in her home at 17 Duane avenue in the suburb. Death was caused by heart disease.

Mrs. Johnson was active in civic and welfare work, both in Glen Ellyn and Chicago. During the war she was chairman of all of the Liberty loan drives in Du Page county, and for that service was made an honorary member of the Lions club. Helen Keller is the only other woman member of the organization.

She was a former chairman and member of the board of the Orphan Children's home at Prince Crossing, Ill., and was active in the Chicago Woman's club and the Infant Welfare club. Four years ago Mrs. Johnson and Dr. Johnson, who is chairman of the board and village forester, presented to Glen Ellyn their collection of lilacs, which is internationally known among flower fanciers. The collection was transplanted to the village's Memorial park.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow from St. Mark's Episcopal church in Glen Ellyn, followed by burial in the Glen Ellyn cemetery. Mrs. Johnson is survived by her husband and a niece, Mrs. Paul Kunning.

The Marriage Racket

By VINA DELMAR

SYNOPSIS.

Ann Corbin, while playing in vaudeville in Thrace, an upstate New York town, is served with invitations by Bill Fitzroy, friend of her pianist, and Wallace Graham, a former friend of Bill's. Wallace asks Irma to be his wife. Bill's proposal to her is of different nature. Irma marries Wallace and leads a dull existence as his wife. Wallace's nine daughter, Mildred, and his aunt live with them. A son is born to Irma. He makes the center of her universe. Wallace and Irma go on a trip to Europe. Irma worries continually about the baby. They meet Russell Byrnes, a wealthy bachelor from New York who has a cabin on a boat sailing in two days which Irma persuades him to take. Back in Thrace they find the baby well, but Mildred planning a eugenic marriage with Scott Avery. Wallace appoints Irma to guard her. Mildred eludes her guard and elopes with Scott. Wallace and Irma quarrel. Irma decides her marriage is a failure, takes the baby to New York. She gets an engagement dancing in a night club, where she meets Russell Byrnes. Irma becomes Russell's mistress, because he can give her everything Irma thinks he needs. Russell is called to Paris on business, and Irma sails her ménage over there.

INSTALLMENT XLII.

A MOTHER'S JEALOUSY.

Vina coffee and toast were placed before Irma in Sherry's she knew at once that food wasn't going to make her feel better. She left without eating it, but without paying her check. The waitress stepped into the street and scolded her of the latter oversight.

"Maybe if some one was pounding on your head you'd forget, too," Irma said as she paid her bill.

The waitress stared at her. Irma turned and walked away wondering why she had said such an idiotic thing. Grip was terrible. It made you feel so sick and brainless. She decided she'd go home and go to bed after she'd cabled Carlos about those gadgets. Now there was a pretty problem. She expected the things on the seventeenth. Was there any sense in cabling him that he would not be disappointed? Surely there was more sense in cabling if they were not going to arrive on the seventeenth. But she couldn't do that, because they were going to arrive on the seventeenth.

She signaled a taxi, only to find that the driver expected to take her somewhere.

"American Express," Irma said. That was always a good place to go. Maybe she could ask that friend of Russell's whether or not she should cable Carlos.

The walk down seemed to clear the world. It was as though she had walked enough to keep both mind and body active. With her body relaxed it was possible to think again. She remembered now that she couldn't go to bed when she got home. Russell and Monsieur and Mme. Lebeau were having dinner with her. She would send the cable to Carlos and then hurry back. Limehouse was at one.

She wished the pounding, which had spread enough to include her temples, would stop. She would take some aspirin and perhaps have a minute to rest before luncheon.

Despite the illness of her body Irma was a strikingly lovely figure as she stepped from the cab at 11 Rue Scribe. Dressed in a light, sleeveless dress of the sort which in Paris is worn on the streets by none save Americans, she was a pleasant sight on the sizzling summer day. The cut of her dress, the artistic draping of her hat, the careless manner in which she wore them, all were such as to amuse a man who until her arrival had been gazing at the steamship ads in the show window. He followed her into the building and stood disregarded at her elbow while she wrote her passage.

When she had handed it over at the desk and turned to leave, the stranger spoke to her.

"Well, Irma, the pitfalls did get you, didn't they?"

She did not look around at once. It was only part of the fantastic foolishness that came with the pounding agony in her head.

"My God, Nell, you ain't denying the old folks, be ye?"

She would have darted an oblique glance to determine whether or not there really was some one speaking to her, but the hat was a bit fantastic, too, and jutted out queerly, preventing any view of the left hand side. She leaned against the desk where people were arranging tours to new battlefields and old chateaus. She closed her eyes, then opened them swiftly. Yes, it was really Bill Fitzroy.

"Bill, for heaven's sake! What are you doing here?"

"Seeing the sins of Montmartre on specially arranged tours to the dens of Paris. Competent guides furnished and champagne positively guaranteed with every stop. How've you been, kid?"

"Splendid. How about you?"

"Can't kick. How's your child?"

"O, he's fine, Bill."

"I'm glad of that."

"How long are you going to be here?"

"Till Friday. I've been here almost a week. They can keep this damn town as far as I'm concerned. I'll be glad to be America bound on Friday. The only sweet spots here are Eliza Lee's and the Chicago-Texas inn. I think French food is one rung lower than ravioli, and you know what I think about that."

She smiled, managing to hold his gaze so that he would not notice her fingers clutching the desk. There had been a moment when her legs would have given away. To speak of being ill made the treacherous legs and pain-ridden head a reality. Perhaps if they were ignored they would tire of their foolishness. Besides, to drop a casual "nice to have seen you" in passing would be no way to treat Bill. She knew that at any other time it would be a pleasure to hear again his amusing line, but now—good God, it was impossible to stand any longer, and it was impossible to go blithely on her way with an airy, "See you again." To admit she was ill would sound to him like a flimsy alibi for giving an old friend the ritz. She had a sudden inspiration.

"What are you doing right now, Bill?"

"I was taking a walk."

"Come home and have luncheon with me, will you?"

"Will I? Say, that's what I call a welcome invitation. I haven't seen anybody in a week that I could say anything to except 'entrez' and 'addition'."

In the taxi Irma took off the fur piece and the annoying hat. It was a joy to be sitting down and to be on the way home.

"How long have you been here, kid?" Bill was gazing at her in awe. She had given her address to the driver in French and Bill was deeply impressed.

"Just a year yesterday."

"A year. I guess you know the town pretty well."

"Pretty well."

Bill laughed.

"What's the joke?"

"You'll probably take a swat at me if I tell you. I was just thinking how many times you could drop in on Wallace and tell him what Paris is like. If I remember correctly he didn't see much of it. There's a chance here to use the word 'ironic,' but I never seem to be able to work it into a sentence."

She ignored the reference to Wallace's touch and go trip to Paris. "How is Wallace?" she asked.

"He's fine. He never changes any. You know how he is."

"No I? I haven't seen him in over two years. Say, here's something I often wondered: How is Mildred and how did her marriage turn out?"

"Mildred? She's fine. She's got a baby about a year old. She and Scott are happy together, I guess. They're a strange couple of kids."

"How do you mean?"

"Well, for one thing, they bought a house out in jumping-off place. They had some money so they decided to buy a house. There was a cute house with a green bathroom and a blue kitchen sink and automatic garage door right close to the movies and the stores. I thought they'd eat it up."

"Didn't they like it?"

"They did, like hell! They found out that for the same money they could get an old house with a couple acres of ground ten miles away, so they bought that. Mildred said the ground would be swell for babies to play on, and Scott said the old house was built better. You know, Irma, it's not normal for two kids to use so much sense."

"It is funny, isn't it?"

"Funny? It's weird. You ought to see that kid of Mildred's. He took first prize in the Thrace Healthy Baby show. Mildred's the damndest young mother I ever saw. She's taken on marriage in a big way and how."

"Are Wallace and she friends?"

"Sure, they're friends. He's the proudest grandfather you ever saw. Every time I see him he tells me about Scott and Mildred and young Scott. I feel like myself when the baby starts to say cute things."

Irma felt a sensation close to fury battling itself toward her lips. She wanted to scream at this friend of Wallace's and tell him she hoped Wallace and all his blood relatives in Thrace dropped dead. It was like Wallace to make Scott Avery's greatest admirer and to take credit for having picked a sensible, steady young man for Mildred. It was like him to boast all over Thrace about their baby when he had never given a thought to his own. Martin didn't need his love. Martin could do without it. Some day Martin was a great man Wallace would wish that he had paid some attention to his son.

Here's Mystery That Grows in Interest

Reporter and Detective Are Its Heroes.

"A DANGEROUS AFFAIR."

Produced by Columbia.
Directed by Edward Sedgwick.
Presented at the State-Lake theater.

THE CAST.

Lieut. McHenry	Jack Holt
Wally Cook	Ralph Graves
Marjory Randolph	Sally Blane
Florence	Susan Fleming
Letty	Blanche Friderici
Nelson	Edward Brophy
City Editor	De Witt Jennings
Harvey	Tyler Brooke
Lionel	William V. Mong
Tom	Frodric Stanley
Plunkett	Sidney Bracy
Tupper	Charles Middleton
Peggy	Ester Muir

By Mae Tinee.

Good Morning!

"A Dangerous Affair" grows on you. For the first reel or so you're not greatly impressed. Then the picture captures your interest and before you know it you're really quite intrigued by it.

There's novelty about the manner in which the mystery that absorbs the attention of two pals, a police lieutenant and a newspaper reporter, unravels. Thrills and suspense are well larded with laughs and the plot takes a gratifyingly unexpected twist or two.

Jack Holt and Ralph Graves, so often teamed as buddies and worshipers of the same damsel, are cast true to form this trip—in the first respect. But this time Mr. Holt's heart remains unshattered. So far as he's concerned, his pal's girl is perfectly welcome to be his pal's gal.

The action takes place in a quiet suburb where Lieut. McHenry is commanding officer of a police station that never has any news or stories for Wally Cook, a tired but clever reporter who "covers" the town for his city paper.

A blasphemous city editor [the only sort the movies seem to believe exists] spurs Wally into starting something on his own hook. The start is just innocent play—but you should see what the mouse brings forth . . . !

Acting, direction, staging, and the works are entirely adequate and the piece packs a number of smart little wallops. Sally Blane is decorative as the girl in the case.

"HEARTBREAK."

Produced by Fox.
Directed by Alfred Werker.
Presented at the Palace Theater.

THE CAST.

John Merrick	Charles Farrell
Countess Vilma	Madge Evans
Count Carl Walden	Hardie Albright
Capt. Wolke	Paul Cavanagh
Jerry Somers	John Arledge
Count Walden	Claude King
U. S. Ambassador	John St. Polis
Liaison Officer	Capt. Albert Conti

Good title!

"Heartbreak" tells a war story in a sweetly minor strain that does things to your sympathies and brings salt water in sudden little gushes to your eyes.

You learn of what happened to a charming Viennese noblewoman, her financé, a young American ace attached to the American embassy in Vienna and to Lady Vilma's brother, a German flyer, when war was declared "over there." Lovers and friends! But each youth must fly for his country and their native lands demand death to the enemy.

A sad little picture. Sadder than it might have been otherwise because of the earnestness and likableness of the three principal players, Madge Evans, Charles Farrell, and Hardie Albright.

There are times when the action seems forced and, it must be admitted, when Charles' high, light voice proves disturbing. But in the main "Heartbreak" is effective. There are some gorgeous flying shots—and the denouement sends you away with a soul at peace.

See you tomorrow!

Official Contract

By Charles True Adams.

(International bridge authority; author of "Official Contract at Sight.")

I think that Mr. Addison Simms of Seattle is a myth and I do not recommend that my readers subscribe to the Zilch memory course. Nevertheless, yesterday's play-a-problem was a memory test, at least to those readers that sign themselves "Constant."

Only a few weeks ago I dwelt at length on the subject of entries for several days. If you remember those hands this one had no terrors:

NORTH
♠—K,Q,7,4
♥—10,3,2

WEST	EAST
♠—J,9,3	♠—6,5
♥—A,J,9,5,4	♥—8,7
♦—10,9,8	♦—K,J,6,4,3,2
♣—8,7	♣—K,J,5

SOUTH (Dealer)
♦—A,Q
♣—A,Q,10,9

South dealt. He held a no trump count of 21 (A—4, K—3, Q—2, J—1), had all four suits stopped, and so bid three no trumps. All passed.

West opened the ♥ 5, North played the 2, East the 7, and South the K. South saw that he had three finesses to make, all from dummy up to his hand—one in diamonds and two in clubs. He also saw that even if the club suit was established it would yield no entry for the diamond finesse, since every club in South's hand was larger than the biggest club in dummy. But three entries could be made in spades if he kept his spade deuce to the last.

So South led his ♠ A, playing the 4 from dummy. He then played his ♠ 10, overtaking it with North's K. Dummy now led the ♣ 2, East played the 5 and South the 10, which held. Back went South to dummy by leading his ♠ 3 to the ♠ Q. Dummy then led the ♣ 3, East played the J, South the Q.

South now took in the ♣ A and 9 and followed with a lead of the ♠ 2 to the ♠ 7 in dummy for his third and last entry. Dummy led the ♦ 5 and South finessed the Q when East played low, took in the ♦ A, and presented the two remaining hearts to West, making his bid of three and two extra tricks.

South, though bidding on a minimum and finding slightly less than average expectancy in his partner's hand, was in perfect shape so long as he made one of the two club finesses. He could afford to lose one club finesse and the diamond. But he could not afford to let East take and lead a heart until his game was in the bag. At least two of those three entries must be made in order to come through East up to West. For a heart lead from West, far from being fatal, meant an additional trick for South.

Only a careless South would take the diamond finesse before North's club finesse, for, should the diamond finesse lose, the one remaining heart stopper would be taken out and if either club finesse lo t the game was over. But, still assuming the loss of one club finesse, if that club finesse is taken first the suit may be established after West's heart lead and the diamond finesse refused.

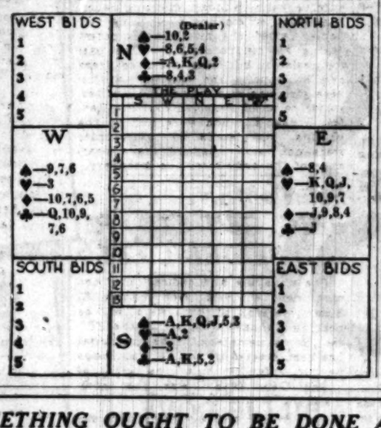
Which simply means that, other things being equal, always take your first finesse in a suit, or suits, that must be established and save finesses that simply mean an additional trick to the end.

And don't forget the most painless form of relief—the Golden Card Tournament.

PLAY-A-PROBLEM: SOLITAIRE OR PARTNERS

Play this hand tonight at your bridge game. Keep a record of the bid and play in the spaces provided. Numbers in the bidding squares are for successive rounds. Check your results with tomorrow's answer.

To play "Solitaire": Record the bids you think each hand would make in the bidding squares. After the final declaration has been made start the play, leading from the hand at declarer's left. As you play each card cross it off of the diagram and record it in the proper square, as S. 3, H. K, etc. In the last column indicate the hand which won the round and lead from that hand on the next round.



Send your bridge problems to Charles True Adams, The Chicago Tribune; inclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Chicagoans See London Poverty During Lecture

Castles and Fogs Also Part of Exhibits.

E. M. Newman, travel lecturer, gave his eleventh lecture of the season last night in Orchestra hall. "London Life" was his subject.

Characteristic of street scenes in London now, Mr. Newman pointed out, are the numerous men and women trying to eke out a living by amusing or appealing to the man on the street. In addition to the aged men and women whose cry, "Lovely rowses," has long been familiar, he said, there are now the sidewalk artists, who sketch portraits and caricatures, and those who draw scenes on the cement sidewalks with colored crayons.

Men selling homemade toys and "light delivery men" who have small carts built on tricycles and carry packages for a few pence, also were pictured by the lecturer. He showed motion pictures of long lines waiting before theaters, being entertained as they waited by acrobats and singers who hoped to be tossed a few coins.

The zoo; Selfridge's department store at night; the Thames embankment; a cricket game; a soccer game; the Derby; Windsor castle; London fogs; No. 10 Downing street and its resident, Ramsay MacDonald; Fleet street, the old home of Oliver Goldsmith and other typically London scenes were shown.

London buses, on which passengers may ride anywhere in the city for "tuppence," and London bobbies, shown directing women across the street, and guiding traffic as the rain pours on their rubber capes, and other characteristic aspects of London life were shown.

More than any other city London is a man's town, Mr. Newman declared. Next week he will lecture on rural England and on Wales.

Mrs. Fiske to Take Rest When Show Closes Tonight

Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fiske, the "Mrs. Fiske" of stage fame, has been ordered by her doctor to take a month's rest to recover from a recent illness.

She announced yesterday she would heed the advice and quit the stage for a month after tonight's closing performance here of "Against the Wind." Dr. Maurice L. Goodkind, who ordered the rest, said Mrs. Fiske would be able to resume her stage activities afterwards.

JOHN PHILIP SOUSA.

(TRIBUNE Photo.)

New York, Nov. 6.—[Special.]—John Philip Sousa, composer, is 77 years old today. He received a birthday cake this afternoon at the New Amsterdam theater, the gift of a group of musicians.

Otherwise Mr. Sousa's plans for observing the occasion were not known. It is pretty clear that he will not write a commemorative march. Nothing of the sort.

He made that plain in 1927, when he celebrated his golden jubilee year, and friends tried to prevail upon him to compose a piece about it.

"Ask me," replied the bandmaster, "to write a march on any other theme and I will do it, regardless of what the public may think of it when it sounds forth.

"Whenever my 'imagination was grasped' by an event or person I wrote a march. But I can't write a march on the anniversaries of John Philip Sousa. I can't."

SERAFINA DI LEO MAKES DEBUT TONIGHT IN VERDI'S 'TROVATORE'

When Serafina Di Leo, 19 year old New York miss, makes her debut at the Civic Opera tonight in Verdi's "Il Trovatore," Mme. Giovanni Martinelli, wife of the Metropolitan tenor and discoverer of the youthful diva, will be in the audience.

Mme. Martinelli left New York yesterday afternoon on the Century, and is scheduled to arrive at the La Salle street station at 9:40 this morning. Three years ago Miss Di Leo visited Mme. Martinelli in her New York home to ask for a ticket to a performance of "The Jewess." Asked why she thought she should have a ticket, the young girl replied that she wanted to sing the rôle herself one day.

The result of the conversation was an immediate audition, and four days later Miss Di Leo was on her way to Italy, her musical education being assured by a fund collected by Mme. Martinelli.

Miss Di Leo signed a contract with the Civic Opera this spring following a successful debut at Italy's greatest opera house, La Scala of Milan.

The cast for tonight's performance besides Miss Di Leo as Leonora will be Cyrena Van Gordon as Azucena, Antonio Cortis as Manrico, Augusto Beuf as the Count of Luna, and Virgilio Lazzari as Ferrando.

Cooking School at Climax Over Corn Beef Hash

It's North Siders' Turn Next Week.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Another overflow crowd attended the final south side session yesterday of THE TRIBUNE School of Cookery in the Trianon ballroom, 8201 Cottage Grove avenue. More than 5,000 women applauded as each dish under preparation on the stage was completed, the applause reaching a climax with corned beef hash.

The north side cooking school will open Tuesday afternoon at the Aragon ballroom, 1100 Lawrence avenue.

At 11 a. m. yesterday a large crowd stood patiently at the three entrances. By noon the crowd reached for a half block south of Cottage Grove, and a half block east of 82d street, covering the sidewalks and overflowing into the streets.

The first grand prize, a refrigerator valued at $245, was won by Dan Kendall, 6142 St. Lawrence avenue, whose name was submitted by his wife, Mrs. Gertrude Kendell. Neither was at yesterday's session, and the refrigerator was delivered to their home last night. Informed by telephone they had won the prize, Mrs. Kendall did not reply for a minute or two. "Really?" she said then. "And we don't own a refrigerator, either."

Mr. and Mrs. Kendell and their daughter had all three attended cookery school sessions, going on different days, but none of them was present yesterday afternoon when the grand prize was awarded.

Mrs. S. Gottlob, 4650 Malden street, won the second grand prize, a vacuum cleaner. Mrs. J. Mack, 8526 Marquette avenue, received the third prize, a mechanical device for mixing foods.

Mildred McGuire, 5242 Vernon avenue, received the fourth prize, an electric percolator. The fifth, an electric iron, was received by Mrs. K. Cavanaugh, 7835 Saginaw avenue, and the sixth prize, an electric toaster, was awarded to Mrs. L. Denst, 2916 East 78th street.

Of the six prize winners, Mrs. Denst and Mrs. Mack were the only ones who succeeded in getting in the ballroom yesterday. The other four will receive their prizes in their homes, to which THE TRIBUNE will deliver them.

There were eager students of cooking waiting when at 12:10 o'clock the doors were open, and 4,000 women already gathered there surged in. More were arriving in a steady stream, hurrying from street cars and automobiles as they saw the rush for the doorways. By 12:25 o'clock officials in the ballroom sent down word that the house was filled and the doors were closed.

Of the thousands who arrived after the doors were closed, hundreds refused to leave, remaining to argue good naturedly with policemen detailed to the cooking school and plead to be let in.

"You're just fooling. They couldn't have opened the doors and closed them already," one woman said.

To those outside an announcement was made that the grand prizes would be awarded among those who had attended one session previously and left tickets with names and addresses, and that prizes would be distributed to the prize winners even if they weren't there at the last session.

"But I don't care for the prizes," one stout, middle aged woman said, tears running down her cheeks from beneath her spectacles. "She said yesterday she was going to make corned beef hash, and I wanted to hear that."

"Lady," said the policeman, "I wish I could be of some help."

"What do you know about hash?" she demanded.

"Dear, dear, and to think that I've been working since 6:30 so I could get everything done in the kitchen," said Mrs. Edward Churchill, 48 years old, of 6337 Rhodes avenue.

"My husband kept saying for me to hurry, but instead I got breakfast for the five in my family, then mopped the steps and hall, then baked a mince pie for supper—and it was lovely if I do say so myself—and washed and picked my spinach, so it would be all ready to cook when I came home from the cooking school. And I got my meat for meat balls like she made yesterday."

Another woman, Mrs. Joseph M. O'Connor, 8028 South Paulina street, said that the only reason she didn't get there earlier was that she baked a cake that morning such as she had learned how to bake at THE TRIBUNE School of Cookery on Wednesday. Her children thought it was twice as light as the cake she usually baked, she said.

SOMETHING OUGHT TO BE DONE ABOUT THIS

Gertrude Keeley Terrace Opened for the Ailing

THE approaching winter evenings may be starless, but there always will be moonlight for the patients who wish to speed their recuperation by lounging in the terrace overlooking the city atop Passavant hospital.

The terrace, with its eerie illumination and a modern decorative motif that is to be found nowhere else in the world, was dedicated formally yesterday afternoon as the Gertrude Keeley memorial. It was presented to the hospital by James Keeley, a member of the board, as a tribute to the late Mrs. Keeley.

There was no dedicatory service other than the presence of more than three hundred guests, friends of Mrs. Keeley, and members of the men's and women's boards of the hospital. They made the pilgrimage to the rooftop, a few at a time, and were received by Mr. Keeley and his daughters, Mrs. Graham Aldis, and Mrs. Luther S. Hammond Jr.

There was a constant murmur of surprise as the visitors saw the beauty of the black and silver pavilion, and the glimpse through the glass and silver doors of a green spruce hedge on the outdoor terrace. But their chief pleasure came from the eleven panels that form a side of the pavilion.

"It took eight months to make those," Mr. Keeley explained. "And there aren't any more, anywhere. They were sand blasted to give that etched design in the outer plate glass panels. You see that in all there are 22 sheets of plate glass. There is an inner set of mottled mirrors. The sandblasted design is done on the outside glass, and is reinforced with color on the underside. The gradation in color in the etched areas is due to the varying depth of the sandblasting.

"In the modern manner, therefore, with etching and painting and mirrors for his tools, the designer has created blacks and grays that stand forth sharply from the translucent background.

"At night the blue and white lights hidden there in the cornice above the panels produce a dim, mystic distance, with an almost ethereal moonlight.

"Elisabeth Hoffin of New York, artistic director, planned the decorative theme. She visualized the terrace on a winter night after snow has fallen.

"There will be blue spotlights that will give forth a permanent moonlight on the outside terrace at night. It is not hard to picture the spruce trees with snow upon them silvered by moonlight, to see the manufactured moonlight filtering through the doors of the pavilion, and the soft lighting behind the panels. It will be a delightful place for patients to forget their ills."

The floor is of black marble, cemented with silver; the chairs of black leather and aluminum; the tables of a hard black material and aluminum, with an indirect light hidden in the center. There is a fountain that plays continually. Yesterday there was placed a single bouquet of white sweet peas at the foot of this, one of the floral tributes of Mrs. Keeley's friends.

On a summer afternoon patients may sit outside and glimpse—from the north terrace—a stretch of blue lake, green lawn, vine covered arches, and the towers of the Northwestern university buildings. From the south terrace they will see the towers and spires of the loop buildings.

Others to whom Mr. Keeley gave special credit for creating the terrace, in addition to Miss Hoffin, were Remsoff, who made the panels, and Phillip Maher, who was consulting architect.

A tea was given in honor of the opening by the Woman's Aid society, of which Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman is president. Among those attending the opening were George A. McKinlock, Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, Mrs. Laurance H. Armour, Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, Harold F. McCormick, Mrs. Walter Borden, Mrs. Morris L. Johnston and her daughter, Mrs. Willard N. Boyden; Mrs. Earl Hambleton, Russell Tyson, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, Mrs. Cecil Barnes, Mrs. Samuel T. Chase, Mrs. Frank Wilhelm, Mr. and Mrs. Eames MacVeagh, Mrs. Robert J. Dunham, and Mrs. Lockwood Honore.

Alice M. Dickinson and Louise Clarke Make Debuts

Two more debutantes, Miss Alice May Dickinson and Miss Louise Clarke, were welcomed into society yesterday afternoon at separate teas and receptions. Miss Dickinson, who was presented by her parents, the Francis R. Dickinsons, at their residence on Astor street, wore a blue velvet gown with long sleeves cuffed in chinchilla and carried a bouquet of Talisman roses. Miss Clarke, who was presented by her aunt, Mrs. Charles F. Spalding, at the Casino, was gowned in cream colored satin. She also held an arm bouquet of roses.

Hoover's Camp on Rapidan Being Closed for Winter

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6.—(AP)—President Hoover's most constant vacation haunt—his Rapidan fishing camp in the Virginia mountains—is being boarded up for the winter. The President has been unable to go there for the last three weeks because of public duties. It was said at the White House today he does not plan to visit it again this year. Most of the marine guard of 175 men and 8 officers will be shifted to warmer quarters for the winter. Only a corporal's guard will remain to watch the property. Usually the camp is uninhabitable during cold spells because its water pipes freeze solidly.

conducts the school in cooperation with Mary Meade, TRIBUNE home economics editor, after making puddings, dumplings, and salad, asked her audience, "How many like corned beef hash?" there was prolonged applause.

"All really good corned beef hash has an onion, chopped fine, as a necessary ingredient," Mrs. Chitwood told her class.

The onion wasn't all there was to corned beef hash, however. After the onion, and a cup of boiled potato and 2 cups of corned beef, all chopped, are mixed together in a frying pan, a cup of water and a half of cup of milk are added. That milk is Mrs. Chitwood's own idea. The next step is to add half a cup of bread crumbs. All should be boiled slowly 30 minutes.

It was a gay and responsive audience which heard Mrs. Chitwood's final south side lecture, before her adoption by the north side housewives next week.

"I hate to leave you south side women," the lecturer said after one sudden burst of applause, and she tossed a beet rose, which she had just carved with a paring knife, into the audience.

A program of entertainment and the distribution of the grand prizes of the week, as well as more than 100 large paper bags filled with food articles and ten baskets loaded with foodstuffs, marked the close of the south side classes.

Edward Clissold, assisted at the piano by Cathryne Bennett, led the audience in community singing. Phil Maxwell, as master of ceremonies, introduced Miss Mary Meade, who in turn introduced Mrs. Chitwood following a short talk.

Helen Ross, Betty Olds, Richard Bennett, and Phyllis Kron of the Ned Wayburn dance studios danced. Ted Weems and his glee club sang.

Captain Applejack Lives Again in Every American Youngster

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Did you ever see the play called "Captain Applejack"? I've forgotten it in detail, but I can remember the vivid impression it made—one of the funniest and cleverest of plays.

In it a correct, rather timid young man discovers in some documents in an ancestral library that he is descended from a famous pirate. Upon which he falls asleep and dreams—the dream being the remainder of the play. In it he becomes the famous pirate whose crew cringes at his approach, who fights bloodily for treasure, and rescues the beautiful maiden in distress.

When the play was over the lobby was filled with men moving toward the street with a freer swing and a tinge of the swashbuckler in their gait, swaggering as they hailed their taxis in the rain and telling their ladies to "stir their stumps."

I remember thinking at the time that every man has a Captain Applejack in him—and, since every man is a grown up boy, so, too, every boy is a Captain Applejack at heart.

Since he can't be one in any other way, he needs an outlet in books of adventure, in physical freedom, in noisiness, in slang, in bolsterousness, and certain harmless assumptions of truculence and roughness which give him a little of the feeling that he is living in the "wide open spaces where men are men."

Food Talk.

There are several recipes I shall give today that you will want to tuck away for future reference in the event you don't have time to incorporate them in your menus over the weekend.

The first two come under a vegetable classifications. Baked eggplant is a treat fit for a king, as also are the squash muffins. Did you know that the English elevate their eyebrows at our expression "eggplant?" They refer to this vegetable as the aubergine, and consider us the lowest of the third class for saying eggplant. How country customs and language do differ! But let's not worry about the English, aubergine or eggplant, here's the recipe.

BAKED EGGPLANT.

Select an eggplant with two or three inches of stem, if possible, as the stem makes it more decorative when served. Parboil until tender, but not soft, in boiling salted water. Remove and cut off a slice from the top with a sharp knife, taking care to keep the skin and stem intact. Scrape out the inside of the eggplant and do not break the skin. Mix thoroughly one cup of bread crumbs, two teaspoons of melted butter, one-half teaspoon of salt, 1 cup of cooked meat or fish, with the pulp of the eggplant. Add an egg to this mixture, and a little water to moisten. Fill the eggplant, put on the top, and bake half an hour in a moderate oven [350 degrees Fahrenheit]. Serve upright on a bed of watercress or parsley.

SQUASH MUFFINS.

2-3 cup of cooked squash.
¾ cup milk.
¼ cup of sugar.
1 egg well beaten.
2½ cups of sifted flour.
3 teaspoons of baking powder.
½ teaspoon of salt.
2½ tablespoons of melted butter.

Steam or bake the squash, and rub through a colander. Sift the dry ingredients. Mix the milk and squash together, and add to this mixture the well beaten egg, the melted butter, and then the dry ingredients. Fill well greased muffin tins two-thirds full, and bake in a hot oven [450 degrees Fahrenheit] twenty-five to thirty minutes.

The combination of pork sausage and beef makes the following dish worthy of critical palates.

BEEFSTEAK POCKETS.

2 pounds of round steak [cut 1½ inches thick]
1 pound of pork sausage.
1 cup of soft bread crumbs.
¼ cup of water.
1 tablespoon of finely chopped onion.
2 cups of cooked tomatoes.
1½ tablespoon of salt.
1 small onion.

Cut the steak into three inch squares, and slit a pocket in each with a sharp knife. Blend the sausage, bread crumbs, and chopped onion together with the water. Sprinkle each slit lightly with salt, and stuff with the sausage mixture. Secure the edges with toothpicks. Sear the outer surfaces of the meat in hot fat, placing the whole onion into the pan to brown at the same time. Then add the salt and tomatoes to the pan, and cover closely. Bake in a moderate oven [350 degrees Fahrenheit] for two and one-half hours. Yield: Six servings.

After vegetables and meat—the dessert!

DATE PUDDING.

2 cups of seeded dates [chopped fine].
2 cups of bread crumbs.
1 cup of chopped suet.
1 cup of sugar.
3 eggs.
2 tablespoons of milk.
1 teaspoon of cinnamon.
¼ teaspoon of cloves.

Mix the ingredients together in the order given. Pour into a buttered mold and steam for two hours. Serve with a creamy, or any desired sauce.

The recipe for creamy sauce was given several weeks ago. If you have mislaid it, I shall be glad to forward a copy of it to you.

Junior League Show Opening This Morning

BY THALIA

"THE Strange Adventures of Dr. Dolittle," presented by the Junior league and opening this morning at the Blackstone theater, will most certainly delight its juvenile audiences. It is replete with that charming and fantastic quality that the league producers and actresses convey so successfully, and is full of bright scenes and figures to amuse and entertain the spectators.

Dr. Dolittle is a bemused and learned old gentleman portrayed capably well by Mrs. Richard Gamble, Jr., who gives up being a "people's doctor" to tend to the ailments of the animal kingdom. In company with Jip, a woolly dog (Mrs. J. Calhoun Smith); Polynesia, a brilliant blue satin parrot with gorgeous plumage (Helen Pope); Dab-Dab, the duck (Mrs. Horace H. Holcomb Jr.), and Gub-Gub, a pink flannel pig (Jane Gallup), he goes to Africa to administer to the jungle monkeys at an appeal from the monkey kingdom. He encounters difficulties with the cannibals of Jolliginki on his way to the jungle, and is joined in his pilgrimage by the Jolliginkish crown prince, Bumpo, a lisping and energetic role done engagingly by Mrs. John T. Winterbotham Jr. On the return trip the strange party meets with pirates and makes a sojourn in Spain.

Notable scenes are the cannibal action, the jungle dance, the bull fight scene wherein the kindly doctor turns his hand to a new method of conquering bulls, and the sea journey undertaken. Helen Rend's music accompanying the play; Mrs. Walter Beck's settings, and Mrs. Shreve Edge's gorgeous costumes are other attractions. The audience of crippled children who attended the dress rehearsal yesterday was enchanted. During the intermission they sang "Three Blind Mice" and "Hickory, Dickory Dock" with Mrs. Scott Dow acting.

The Is Society's Busy Day Includes Hunting Trials.

This is a busy day for society! A chronological program of events begins with the opening of "The Strange Adventures of Dr. Dolittle" at 10:30 o'clock at the Blackstone theater. This afternoon the people interested in hunting will be going to the running off of the hunters' trials at the John F. Jelke Jr. farm near Milburn. The trials were to have been held at the annual Onwentsia hunt race meeting on Oct. 10 and were postponed because of the rain. The event is open to the public at a small charge and the proceeds will go to the relief fund.

There will be a large attendance today at the marriage of Miss Rosemary Baur, daughter of Mrs. Jacob Baur, to Bartle Bull, to take place at 4:30 o'clock at St. Chrysostom's, with a reception following at Mrs. Baur's residence at 1511 Astor street.

Miss Paula Uihlein's debut reception, to be given today by her father, Edgar J. Uihlein, at his apartment at 1448 Lake Shore drive is from 4 to 7, so that those who go to the Baur wedding can also attend it.

The Chicago Drama league is sponsoring a lecture by Princess der Ling at the residence of Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick at 3 o'clock as another of today's events.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred T. Carton plan to give a dinner and theater party for Miss Margaret Chapman and Miss Ann Smith, debutantes of the season and daughters, respectively, of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Chapman and Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Smith on the evening of Dec. 30.

ENGAGED

[Malcolm Balfour Photo.]

Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Sheldon Lee of 1225 Sheridan road, Evanston, announce the engagement of their daughter, Margaret Baldwin, to Winston Healy, son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Healy of 1104 Greenwood boulevard, Evanston.

U. of C. President Host to H. G. Wells This Evening.

The dinner President and Mrs. Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago were to have given for H. G. Wells, British novelist, on Monday evening will be this evening instead. The dinner is to be a comparatively small one at the president's house and the guests include Prof. and Mrs. James H. Breasted, Dean and Mrs. Gordon Laing, Thornton Wilder, Russell Doubleday, the New York publisher, and Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Barnes.

Mrs. Louis E. Laflin is giving a dinner this evening at her Lake Forest residence, to be followed by a talk by Faustin Wirkus, the ex-sergeant of the marines who was made King Faustin II., ruler of the tropical island of La Gonave near Haiti, and moving pictures.

There's been a great feeling of uncertainty among society folk this fall about the relation of hard times to the social program. Some people have felt that it was unseemly to give large and formal parties, and as a result the Assemblies and several of the annual dances were canceled. Others believed, and there are more of them coming around to the same point of view, that it would be more salutary for the economic and psychological state of affairs to go ahead with the regular festivities of the winter.

Certainly a great number of people are having their livelihood jeopardized by the cancellation of large parties. Musicians, florists, caterers, stationers, and others who have to do with the mechanics of giving such affairs are seriously affected. Several of the parents of debutantes are proceeding with their original plans on the basis that they are thus benefiting employment, the while they do as much as they can for charity as well. And there are other signs of the resumption of plans held in abeyance because of the concern for doing the right thing. Be assured that this is not because of any fashionable heedlessness of the needs of the unfortunate, but rather from a well considered point of view that it is a better course to take.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—Vice President Curtis will be accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Gann when he leaves tomorrow for Hollywood and Los Angeles, where they will spend but two days.

Mrs. James R. Mann, widow of a representative from the Hyde Park district of Chicago, will give a luncheon tomorrow for the Stratford Shakespearean players and a theater party afterwards.

Julie Forgan to Make Her Debut on December 30.

Mrs. James Berwick Forgan, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Murray Forgan, and Mr. and Mrs. James Berwick Forgan Jr. are to give a debutante dinner-dance for Miss Julie Forgan on Wednesday evening, Dec. 30, preceding the debutante ball Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Graf are to give at the Blackstone for their daughter, Miss Barbara Graf. Mr. and Mrs. Donald Forgan and their daughter, Miss Julie Forgan, are to be in Chicago for ten days during the holiday season.

Mr. and Mrs. Oakleigh Thorne Lewis [Bertha Palmer] who have been occupying the Alfred Dietrich beach cottage at Sandyland near Santa Barbara since their wedding in Bar Harbor, Me., in September have moved to the Day Tuttle residence on Picacho lane in Montecito, and are to be there until the middle of December. They plan to come to Chicago then to be with Mrs. Lewis' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer, for the holiday season.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

WOMAN'S AND MISSES' DRESS.

The fullness of this black sheer velvet is gained by tucks below the perfectly fitted hips. The deep V cut of the front of the bodice ending in softly tied ends contributes to the slender effect. The sleeves are puffed above the elbow in the new manner. The dress will be stunning in black crepe satin with white satin for the vest, collar, and revers.

The pattern, 3361, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 4 yards of 39 inch material with ¾ yard of 35 inch contrasting.

Columbia College Luncheon.

Sorbonne to Honor Prof. W. B. Cannon and Henry F. Osborn

PARIS, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Two distinguished American savants, Prof. Walter Bradford Cannon, physiologist of Harvard university, and Henry Fairfield Osborn, director of the Museum of Natural History of New York, will receive honorary degrees from the University of Paris tomorrow in the famous amphitheater of the Sorbonne.

The only other foreigners to receive similar distinction will be Prof. Nicolas Jorga, Rumanian premier, rector of the University of Bucharest and mentor of the present King Carol, and Prof. Auslaux of the University of Brussels.

The ceremony will be carried out with medieval pomp.

Prof. Cannon is already a corresponding member of the Societe de Biologie de Paris, and of the similar organization in Belgium.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, Nov. 6.—[Special.]—Mrs. Graham Fair Vanderbilt was hostess to a party of ten guests last night at the Club El Patio.

Mr. and Mrs. Noel McVickar have taken an apartment at the Lombardy hotel for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Amos Tuck French, who returned recently from Chester, N. H., have gone to Tuxedo Park.

Mrs. Theodore Frelinghuysen will return from Tuxedo Park to the Plaza for the winter on Nov. 30.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Louis G. Pooler on Wednesday. Mrs. Pooler, formerly Miss Mabel Leigh Holden, is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joshua B. Holden Jr., of Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Herbert Ballantine gave a dinner last evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Laurence V. Benet of Paris, who will sail tomorrow.

"Saturday Review" Is the Great Gift to Budgets

Are a Chic Combination Of Texture and Color

There aren't lovelier colors than these frocks have, and they would be smart peering out from any fur and from the darker cloth coats.

This style is double-breasted with narrow pleating around collar and cuffs. Brown, wine, green, Algerie, skipper blue. Size 14 to 20.

Knitted Frocks, Fourth Floor.

Silk Frock

Uses Color Just as Vionnet Would

The way the color contrast is fagoted in the blouse, and the way the neckline comes down to the side and ties in with the belt —making the shoulders wide and the waist trim.

Black with tile, brown with tile, black and green, brown and green. Sizes 14 to 20.

$14.85

Moderate Price Section, Fourth Floor.

Are Making Great Value History By Their Luxurious Use of Furs

It is a real achievement to offer coats like these at this price, but it is an achievement for which the Moderate Price Section has made its reputation this season. These coats have all the new fashion points. The styles you've been looking for and the furs that you like in big collars and cuffs. You will never believe they could be so low priced.

Persian Lamb, Caracul, Baby Lynx, Beaver, Cross Fox, Skunk, Wolf

Moderate Price Section, Fourth Floor.

"17" Frock Of Silk and Wool

Flaunts Color In Its Gayest Mood

Not only are the full sleeves in silk in contrast to the rest of the frock, which is in woolen, but the colors are contrasted sharply—red and black, Persian green and brown, all Spanish tile, all green. Sizes 11 to 17.

$10.85

"17" Section, Fifth Floor.

Only Here Such Jersey Blouses

With Such Clever Frock Details

$2.95

These blouses match almost any frock in smartness. Note the jacket style at the left with contrasting sleeves and notched lapels. Eggshell and brown, brown and green, brown and tile. Sizes 32 to 40.

At the right, the blouse has a close neck line with turndown collar. It buttons on the shoulder. White, eggshell, tile, Persian green, gold. Sizes 32 to 38.

Blouses, Fourth Floor.

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Notre Dame, Ind., Nov. 6.—Pennsylvania's undefeated and untied Quakers, accompanied by the student band, arrived at Niles, Mich., nine miles from this center of culture and football lore, this morning with the avowed purpose of marring Notre Dame's 1931 season record of 24 victories to-nothing. On this escutcheon only Northwestern's 0 to 0 tie this fall is considered a blot, if that game may be considered a blot.

This avowed purpose is dimmed in prospect by comparative records and the physical conditions of the two elevens. While Coach Anderson and the home guards profess to be worried in the last manner of coaches and home guards, there looks to be nothing in the situation from the local viewpoint to warrant loss of sleep. Notre Dame has several injured stars who will not compete while their mates are striving for the anticipated 25th victory. So has Pennsylvania. Notre Dame, however, has such reserve material available that the injured heroes hardly are mentioned in discussing the pending clash. Not so with the Quakers.

Penn Captain Out.

Absence of Capt. Riblett from the right wing of the Penn forward wall is generally mourned by the visitors. Riblett at the other end also will be missing at the start. To meet Notre Dame's attack good ends are needed. If are good tackles, guards, centers, and back field men, for that matter. Riblett, however, is a genuine loss. Newspaper men with Pennsylvania's team take his absence seriously and think it affects the chances of Penn, which sustained a 60 to 20 trimming from Notre Dame last fall at Philadelphia.

Notre Dame, as a team, will average nearly seven pounds to the man better than the invading Quakers. The margin in the line, where contests are decided in modern football, is nine pounds. The back fields are about equal in poundage, but that is because of Perina, the visitors' full back, with his 204 pounds, which is considerably heavier than any of the Notre Dame backs.

Penn Unbeaten, Untied.

Pennsylvania's clean slate is the result of victories over Swarthmore, Penn State and Marshall, Lehigh, Wisconsin, and Lafayette. Defeat of the Badgers was a distinct surprise. Lafayette last Saturday was taken by the margin of a field goal by Quarter Back Booth. Other squads on the fallen list are not formidable. That record is not particularly impressive, but still Penn is one of the unbeaten and untied eastern teams—at least until tomorrow. Notre Dame has won from Indiana, Penn, Pittsburgh, and Carnegie Tech but lost Northwestern. The Purple contest was played on a slippery field and was not regarded by either eleven as a conclusive test. Pittsburgh was a hardest combat of the series. Pitt is a great eleven. Thus the Irish have met harder opponents than the Quakers.

Pennsylvania's eleven motored over from Niles in the early afternoon for a final secret practice at Notre Dame stadium, where 35,000 persons are expected tomorrow. It was the usual last minute affair, with indications that the basis of attack would be straight by Perina and passes, reception of which will be handicapped by the absence of Riblett from right end. Riblett is one of Penn's most dependable receivers.

Irish Have New Plays.

Notre Dame, as usual, took its final workout on Cartier practice field. To this writer it seemed Notre Dame was polishing several formations which it had not observed before. To a query Coach Anderson replied:

"Of course, we have been scouted all season. We like to think we have something in reserve which has not been seen and which can be tried in a pinch. Perhaps it will click and perhaps it will not."

As far as practice was concerned, no particular formation in which the team was most interested clicked more than five times.

Weather indications are for cloudy skies with slightly warmer temperatures. Advance reservations from parents for visiting alumni are about normal. The kickoff is set for 2 o'clock Central time.

Dear Wake: In discussing various football players, why not give a line or two to Bill McCall of Dartmouth. Albie Booth may be good, but who was it electrified the Yale bowl last Saturday? McCall ran all over the field to score 18 points and help overcome a 23 point Yale lead to gain a 32-32 tie.

MISSOURI WINS 1ST GAME; BEATS DRAKE, 32 TO 20

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Missouri won its first game of the season here tonight, defeating Drake, 32 to 20. Fumbles marred the game, but a 90 yard run by Schiele, Missouri end, and a 65 yard return of a punt by Collings for a touchdown provided plenty of thrills.

Ryan to Describe Purple-Gopher Game Over W-G-N

Quin Ryan will broadcast the Northwestern-Minnesota football game today from Dyche stadium over W-G-N, THE TRIBUNE radio station, starting at 1:50 p. m. Richard Arlen, movie star, will attend the contest with Ryan and will be heard through the microphone before the game starts and during the contest.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 6.—Wisconsin and Illinois will meet on the gridiron for the sixteenth time here tomorrow afternoon in Memorial stadium. The occasion is the university's celebration of Dad's day and 20,000 are expected to see the series with the Badgers resumed. Wisconsin has not played Illinois since 1923.

The game is important to both teams, although Illinois is out of the title chase with three consecutive Big Ten defeats. Wisconsin, winner over Purdue and defeated by Minnesota, has an opportunity to finish in a tie for second place providing it can whip the Illini tomorrow and muster the strength required to down Ohio State next week at Camp Randall. Chicago, the final Wisconsin opponent, will not offer serious opposition to a team which can accomplish the foregoing objectives.

Injuries on Both Teams.

Illinois, with only one conference victory so far in two years, names Wisconsin as the opponent it has the best chance to defeat other than the Maroons. And the players, judging them by the spirit shown in the last two days of practice, sincerely believe Wisconsin will mark the turning point of the season.

Both teams will be handicapped by injuries. Goldenberg is reported lost to the Badger back field, while Walser, Illinois quarter back, also is definitely out. Illinois, however, will have Marriner, end, and Jensen, guard, back in the line. Marriner's return to duty, although he did not practice this week, will give Zuppke three excellent ends. Fred Frink and Ivan Schustek complete the trio. Gordon Bailey also may be called on briefly.

Nuspickel Moved to Tackle.

Jensen's return has moved Nuspickel to tackle. Fred Purma, weight man on the track squad, is expected to alternate with Cliff Hyink at the other tackle.

Illinois' problem, however, is offense. The back field, which will have its most difficult assignment in stopping Wisconsin's forward passes, was rearranged after Walser's injury and now lacks adequate replacements. Berry may start in Walser's quarter back berth, although he will not call the signals. Frink or Marriner is the field general, giving the signals in the huddle.

Tom Wilson, end, has been moved to half back, pairing with Fuzzy Evans. Bob Horsley and Dave Cook are replacements. Edwin Snavely, sophomore, who made a splendid showing against Northwestern, must handle the full back's work. Berry is scheduled to play practically the whole game, either at quarter or half, for he is Illinois' best kicker.

Final Drill at Club.

Illinois took its final drill this afternoon at the Champaign Country club where the team was quartered tonight. The last rehearsal did not compare with the two hours of labor last night on Memorial stadium field, where the first and second elevens were sent at their tasks until dark, and then adjourned to Zuppke's private

CAN THEY CAGE THE WILDCATS?

$232,000 GATE AWAITS HARVARD AND DARTMOUTH

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Copyright: 1931: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Boston, Mass., Nov. 6.—Above the groans and cries of the schoolboy correspondents who do the suffering in print for the injured football players, one optimistic note was sounded this evening as Dartmouth and Harvard waited to proceed with their football rivalry dating from 1882. Mr. Frank Ryan of the Harvard Athletic association, took pleasure in announcing that the show was a sell out which, at $4 a ticket, would mean a gate of $232,000, there being room for 58,000 in Harvard's stadium and in suggesting that the cash collections for the unemployed to be taken up at Harvard's remaining games would surpass the gate receipts for any one game which the Harvard team might have played for this purpose.

The possibility has occurred in this connection that some of the prosperous old Harvards, eager to refute the impression left by Harvard's refusal to play a benefit game, will be tossing robust checks and bills into the baskets as the gentlemanly ushers pass among the patrons.

Relieves General Woe.

Mr. Ryan's cheery information and prediction as to the collection served to relieve somewhat the general unhappiness caused by the schoolboy correspondents with their descriptions of the mangled condition of the Dartmouth team. It is not nice to jest at wounds, but college students sometimes seek to serve their loyalty by enlarging the infirmities of the injured, with or without any suggestion from the grand old man of football on that particular campus. The intent is to mislead and disprepare the enemy and this is known as strategy, or as some of the nonintellectual coaches pronounce the word, stragety. If the opposing coach is not misled by such reports, that is counter strategy, or stragety, as the case may be.

It seems unkind to withhold the fullest sympathy from the injured Dartmouths on the eve of the game,

Maroons' Idea Today Is to Hog-Tie Those Razorbacks

BY FRENCH LANE.

Our Maroons from the University of Chicago are ready to enjoy their first square meal of the season at Stagg field this afternoon and the main dish on the menu will be Razorbacks from the University of Arkansas.

Now if you have never tasted one of those hickory smoked hams, slabs of side meat or shoulders from a genuine razorback from out of the regions of the Ozarks you won't appreciate what a feast the Maroons are going to sit down to, and you won't know why they are smacking their lips in such pleasant anticipation.

Anyway the Maroons battle University of Arkansas' Razorbacks in a football game starting at 2 o'clock. And no one can deny it is one of the "crucial" battles of the year. For haven't the Razorbacks been beaten in their last four starts? Maybe it was their last six or seven starts. And who can remember way back when the Maroons won their last Big Ten conference game?

Maroons Are Coming.

Somebody just looked over our shoulder and said he would swear on a stack of Bibles a mile high that the Maroons beat Indiana back in 1929. Maybe so. But anyway the folks on the Midway last night were sort of rubbing their hands and they had a fiendish look in their eye as if they were confident the old Razorback will be a sad looking fellow when he gropes his way out of Stagg field late this afternoon.

That the Maroons are up and coming, even though they haven't accomplished much this season, was made evident in their battle against Purdue last week. But the Razorbacks made just as much headway, for didn't they refuse to let the Texas Christians beat them by more than 7 to 0? And the Texas Christians are somebody down in the Southwestern Football league. So taking a line on that game, maybe the old Razorback after all will escape without being completely subdivided.

Two Stars Return.

The Razorbacks, just 23 of them, arrived early yesterday morning and they went through a rather lively drill at Stagg field during the afternoon. With only 23 men on hand to battle, Coach Stagg will not have to worry much about the Arkansas reserve strength. The return from the Midway will have twice that many men in uniform himself.

But Fred Thomsen, coach of the Razorbacks, is very well pleased with the way his team stacks up. "We can surely beat the Maroons," he remarked as he put his boys to bed last night. Two of Arkansas' best backs, Phillips and Holmes, who have been on the hospital list for some time, showed up so well in the brief Arkansas drill yesterday that Coach Thomsen decided he would use both the stars against the Maroons at some stage of this afternoon's struggle.

It isn't likely that all the 50,000 seats at Stagg field will be occupied. But quite a lot of folks who like to see a couple of underdogs scrap it out will be on hand either to cheer for the Maroons or to acclaim the Razorbacks.

CUBS BUY HACK, 3D BASEMAN, FOR $50,000, PLAYER

The Cubs' headquarters yesterday announced the purchase of Stanley Hack, sensational third baseman from the Sacramento Pacific Coast league club. The deal had been hanging fire for more than a month, but couldn't be formally closed until Nov. 6, the expiration of the minor leagues' drafting period. The Cubs will pay $50,000 in cash and one player, who will be selected later.

Hack, a bank clerk, who in one season became a star after he had come around begging for a job, batted .362 for the Bees last year.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 6.—The boys from Indiana university are deploring the recent slump in midwest football upsets and have arrived at the conclusion that tomorrow would be a swell day for the resumption of the upset business, the idea being a Hoosier victory over Michigan's powerful and anguished eleven.

Michigan, you know, already has furnished one of the two major surprises in the Big Ten—when the Wolverines led with their chins against Ohio State here on Oct. 17—and has no idea of tolerating any further affronts.

Michigan Can Tie for Title.

Though in the second flight of the Big Ten standing, the possibilities of the schedule afford Michigan a chance again to finish with a tie for the Big Ten championship, but some heavy phases not within the Wolverines' immediate sphere must turn out just right.

To set the Wolverine stage properly, Minnesota must defeat Northwestern tomorrow, and then, after turning back Michigan State a week hence, Michigan must slay Minnesota on Nov. 21.

From this distance, the Michigan hopes seem founded on something akin to betting on a six horse parlay, but hope springs eternal and who are we to utter a word of discouragement to such a fine group of athletes as the boys in Coach Harry Kipke's football class.

Recall Only 1928.

In dwelling on the upset notion, the Hoosiers do not permit their minds to go back any farther than the last meeting with Michigan, in 1928. That year Indiana won, 6 to 0, and the six points were all that Indiana has made against Michigan in 31 years, a span in which the two outfits have clashed a half dozen times.

Maybe you'd like to read the scores:

1900—Michigan, 12; Indiana, 0.
1901—Michigan, 23; Indiana, 0.
1902—Michigan, 60; Indiana, 0.
1903—Michigan, 31; Indiana, 0.
1928—Michigan, 6; Indiana, 0.
1929—Michigan, 0; Indiana, 6.
Total—Michigan, 219; Indiana, 6.

We reported that lone Indiana triumph, but the only things we remember about it were that it made Pat Page, then Indiana coach, very happy, causing him to quit singing the blues momentarily and that there was a fellow named Bennett. We also have a hazy recollection of having seen a party of Hoosier rooters in high spirits on the train that night, but we later learned they had become confused and had gone to Detroit instead of Ann Arbor. They were apprised of the glorious doings when the train pulled through Ann Arbor about midnight, the news causing them to become even more elated.

Nobody's Taking Chances.

The Hoosier team is hiding out tonight over in Ypsilanti and after a light workout this afternoon, Coach Kipke bundled up his troupe and went out to a country club for the night. So, you see, everybody is taking the

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

And now Minnesota's Gophers—the last imposing obstacle in Northwestern's march toward an undisputed Big Ten grid championship.

The Gophers didn't know their own strength until they defeated Wisconsin a week ago. But they know it now, and today will attempt to make it mean something when they match their own clean conference slate against that of the Purple before a 45,000 homecoming throng at Dyche stadium.

The suspicion is that the Purple Wildcats by 2 o'clock this afternoon will be just a bit more than ready to toss back whatever attack or defense the versatile Capt. Clarence Munn and his golden jerseyed buddies set up in front of them.

MacDougall a Big Threat.

It will be a case of a heavy Minnesota line against a lighter Purple wall and a heavy Wildcat back field against a supporting quartet the Gophers can't equal when it becomes a matter of pounds. But there is that fellow Munn the Purple must watch. Then there's that bantam Ken MacDougall, who shocked the Wildcats by running through their hands for 60 yards and a touchdown last fall. And the Purple profess to be annoyed because they aren't sure how they are going to get along with Rentner unable to pass on account of a broken thumb.

With Rentner's attacking ability limited to ball carrying and blocking, the passing will be intrusted to Ollie Olson, the Wildcats' punting full back. If Olson passes well everything should move along satisfactorily, but if he errs it may have a demoralizing effect on his mates. All season they have been sort of tutored on the idea that Rentner is the keyman of their attack when something important is demanded. Of course, it is possible, even probable, that because of Rentner's hand the Purple may pass only as a last resort.

Another complication confronted Hanley yesterday. Quarter Back Potter failed to respond to a side injury so it may be necessary to drop Moore, a half back into the vacancy.

Munn Does Everything.

The need for keeping close watch on Capt. Munn is that once he gets started he does everything except officiate. He can punt with the best of them. Against Wisconsin a week ago he ran the ends, plunged, and was on the receiving end of a forward lateral pass that sent him sprinting some ten yards to the Gophers' second and final touchdown. When not engaged in those things he was up in his guard position smearing the Badgers' attack or making holes for the Gopher ball carriers. They'll be using him as ball carrier again today, but the tricks he revealed last Saturday gave the Purple a chance to perfect a defense against him.

In the conflict with the Badgers Munn was regarded sufficiently skilled to warrant putting Kabat, Wisconsin's prize lineman, against him. To do this Kabat had to move from his customary side of the line. The 210 pound Gopher eclipsed him. When the affair started Kabat spurned the use of a head gear. During the second half he had his blond head properly encased in leather. It will be Evans' privilege to play the Kabat rôle today.

Somers May Start.

In keeping with his scheme which worked out successfully in the two previous games Fritz Crisler, the Gopher coach, probably will start with Somers at quarter. Somers himself is no snail and showed it against Wisconsin. After Crisler has had a chance to diagnose the Purple it will be up to the speedy MacDougall to get in there and call the plays. He'll call on himself for more than a few of them, but if the Purple took a lesson from Wisconsin's defense against the pigmy back they may stop him.

Most Gopher teams of the past could be prepared for because their forte was power and nothing else. This one doesn't have the usual power, unless Munn happens to be pulled back out of the line for a plunge, but it does have speed in Somers, MacDougall, and Ubl. The latter is the Gophers' passing threat.

The Gophers worked out yesterday afternoon on the stadium turf, but not until after the usual officious student managers had shooed the trespassers off the premises. The plays the Gophers rehearsed in secret have been on the blackboards in the Purple training room for a week. Later in the afternoon the Wildcats took just enough work to sketch their manifold

TOP FLIGHT, 14 OTHERS RACE IN FUTURITY TODAY

Filly Favored to Win Rich Pimlico Stake.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—The chances of Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney's undefeated filly, Top Flight, to make new turf history will come tomorrow when she goes to the post in the $50,000 Pimlico Futurity before an expected crowd of 25,000, which will include Vice President Curtis and Gov. Ritchie.

Top Flight is one of 15 juveniles named for this richest prize of the waning eastern season. She has to her credit a total of $162,830, accumulated in six successive stake victories. A triumph tomorrow, and every prediction here tonight is that she will win, would smash the mark set by Domino in 1893, when he won more money than any juvenile.

Race Worth $50,000.

Princess Doreen's mark as the greatest winner of the sex also will fall if Top Flight wins.

The Futurity carries $40,000 in added money, but has exceeded $50,000 in value to the winner for the last six years. It is at a mile and a sixteenth, a route longer than Top Flight ever has run. She is in the race with 119 pounds, and will run coupled in the betting with her stablemate, Mad Frump.

Top Flight will face one of the most formidable fields of the year.

Mrs. L. G. Kaufman's Loma stable silks will be borne by Tick On and On Post, the former winner of the $50,000 Hopeful and a colt that looks like a route goer. The formidable Osculator, owned by W. R. Coe, will start with his stablemate, Pompeius.

Burning Blaze Ineligible.

Burning Blaze is not a Futurity eligible. Osculator was one of the spring's smart youngsters and has come back to the races after a layoff apparently as strong a stretch runner as ever.

Among the more lightly held of the others is Mad Pursuit. Walter J. Salmon's colt, Burgoo King is E. R. Bradley's nominee.

Hal Price Headley is represented by Big Bezu, which may be something of a dark horse as he was a smashing winner in a modest race at Saratoga. Mrs. Payne Whitney will have Semaphore carrying her silks.

32 Survive Third Catholic Youth Trials

Boxers in the lightweight class furnished the outstanding bouts last night as 32 fighters out of a field of 113 survived the third preliminary round in the Catholic Youth organization's amateur boxing tournament at the St. Ignatius gymnasium.

The winners of last night's bouts, together with other qualifiers, will compete in the north district tournament at Loyola university gymnasium next Wednesday night. Another north division meet will be held at De Paul gym next Thursday night.

Among the 135 pound class survivors was John Smith, who knocked out George Hansen in the first round. James Lazar produced the second knockout in the lightweight division by sending Leo Murphy to the canvas in the third round.

Other boxers who qualified in the lightweight class were Frank Ferguson, George Slattery, and John O'Connell. Three qualified in the heavyweight division—George Klopack, Albert Raduli, and E. Bouthington. The boxers who will appear in the Loyola meet next week follow:

112 pound class—A. De Sheperd, D. Molitor, A. Paschke, and W. Buson.
118 pound class—A. Morell, B. Singhner, W. Boyson, and A. Coquire.
126 pound class—H. Joyce, J. Warren, V. Miller, and J. Harbeck.
135 pound class—J. O'Connell, J. Smith, F. Ferguson, G. Slattery, and J. Lazar.
147 pound class—G. Mayer, W. Kilosor, and F. Gutzler.
160 pound class—C. Abel, R. Dalein, J. Connelly, J. Kosaul, W. Dubois, and W. Huppert.
175 pound class—J. Hoffman, B. O'Connell, and F. Selgrat.

LAYTON DEFEATS WHITE, 100 TO 77, IN 22 INNINGS

Johnny Layton, 1931 southern champion, won the opening game of the pocket billiard tournament at Bensinger's Randolph street billiard room yesterday afternoon. He defeated Major White of Chicago, 100 to 77, in 22 innings. His high run was 28, White's 24. In the second game of the afternoon Pasquale Natalie defeated Walter Franklin of Kansas City, 100 to 78, in 15 innings. His high run was 35, Franklin's 40.

Five other players have entered this tournament, which will run for nine days. Four games will be played daily. The other players are Marcel Camp of Detroit, Al Miller of Racine, Wis.; George Nuss of Kansas City, Bennie Allen of Kansas City, and Coy Julian of Springfield, Ill. All games will be at 100 points.

AMATEUR BOUTS IN N. Y. MUST HAVE COMMISSION O. K.

New York, Nov. 6.—[Special.]—According to a decision handed down by the appellate division of the Supreme court of New York today, the Amateur Athletic union in this state cannot hold boxing bouts unless sanctioned by the boxing commission, whose right to control both amateur and professional boxing was confirmed by the court's decision.

Justice John E. McGeehan ruled all such exhibitions charging admission or offering prizes, whether under the A. A. U. auspices or not, are required by law to obtain a license from the state athletic commission.

This decision of Justice McGeehan was questioned by A. A. U. adherents, but was upheld today despite an affidavit of Mayor James J. Walker, who said that it was not the intention of the Walker bill, of which he is the father, to require matches wholly amateur in character to be licensed.

Missouri Polo Squad Overwhelms Illinois, 15-3

Columbia, Mo., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—The University of Missouri polo team defeated the University of Illinois here today, 15 to 3, in a six chukker match. Piling up a 5 to 0 score during the first half, the Tigers used substitutes during the last period in increasing their margin. Bagley scored all of the Illinois points.

Hanover, Indiana Central Play Scoreless Deadlock

Hanover, Ind., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Hanover college and Indiana Central played a scoreless tie here this afternoon. Although Benson of the visitors and Meese, substitute Hanover back, got away for several long runs, neither team threatened seriously at any time.

ARTILLERY VS. BOOSTERS.

A strengthened 124th field artillery eleven will face the Woodlawn Boosters tomorrow afternoon on the indoor gridiron at the new armory, 6200 Cottage Grove avenue.

Pintail Wins Feature on Pimlico Oval

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—Another C. V. Whitney color bearer came home a victor here today when Pin Tail, victor at the recent Laurel meeting, closed with a great rush to capture the feature of the day at Pimlico. Jockey Arthur Robertson brought on the daughter of Pennant and Pantella from a rear guard position to a point in the stretch where she had racing room to go to the front.

There the filly responded with fine courage and easily ran down E. R. Bradley's Busted, the gelding son of Bubbling Over, which was an easy winner earlier in the meeting. The margin at the end of the mile and seventy yards was a length, with Pintail finishing in 1:45. Busted landed second without trouble by two lengths over the Wheatley stable's Slambang, which came from nowhere in the last furlong for third.

Winner Pays 5 to 1.

Pintail was far from being favorite and returned $12.50 for $2. Busted was heavily backed, while Slambang was one of the outsiders and paid $8.90 for show.

The also rans in the race included the fleet Senado, which was purchased for $50,000 last spring by John Barry Ryan, whose Barry Vail stable colors the colt bore today.

Another fleet horse, which led most of the way, stopped so fast that he finished last, when W. R. Coe's Black Majesty ran in the fifth event. The winner was Mrs. H. Fyne's Storm, with Pete Walls riding. Wall's strong finish saved the day by half a length from Frumper, which got second by a nose over Quarter Deck.

Two Doubles for Walls.

Walls scored a double on Thursday, and when he got Storm home first it gave him a double on the afternoon. His first winner was Blue Damsel in the third race. Walls also had the experience of having a horse drop dead almost under him.

In the first race he cantered Pourboire back from the steward's stand after the finish, in which Pourboire was unplaced, although well supported, and just as he dismounted the gelding dropped dead.

406,026 ATTEND MICHIGAN GAMES IN 1930 SEASON

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—Attendance at football games in which Michigan played last year was 406,026 and gross receipts, $684,919.53, the report of Ralph W. Aigler, chairman of the board in control of athletics, showed today. This total is a comparatively small drop from the record total of the previous year, when 449,942 persons saw the games and receipts totaled $836,402.52.

Operating profit for the period covered by the report was listed at $159,140.39. This amount does not include a deduction of $25,000 of advance football receipts of last year used in the operations for the preceding fiscal year and the proceeds of the 1930 Chicago game, donated to charity, which would bring the total to $232,067.75. Plant additions for the year cost $55,000.

GARIBALDI BOUT COMPLETES CARD FOR KRONE SHOW

Gino Garibaldi, young Italian giant, and Jack Washburn of Hollywood were signed yesterday to appear on Promoter Doc Krone's wrestling card at the Coliseum Monday night. The matching of this pair completes arrangements for the show which will feature Rudy Dusek against George Zoharias.

The other three bouts are between wrestlers known to Chicago fandom. Earl McCready, who twice won the national intercollegiate title, will battle Milo Steinborn of Germany. Frank Bronowicz of New York will go against Jim Clinkstock, Oklahoma Indian. Marshall Blackstock of Georgia will meet Fred Grobmier, body scissors star of Iowa.

Mrs. Chill Gets Divorce from Ex-Major Umpire

Cleveland, O., Nov. 6.—(AP)—A decree of divorce was granted today to Mrs. Ethel B. Chill, Bedford, O., from Oliver Chill, former American league umpire. Mrs. Chill said she did not know Chill's present address. They were married in 1909. She said he left her in 1923 and that she has not heard from him since. They have no children.

Central College Eleven Defeats Dubuque, 33-0

Dubuque, Ia., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—Central college defeated the University of Dubuque this afternoon, 33 to 0. Hostetter and Trissling each scored two touchdowns and Verduf one.

Fox River Plan Goes Up Before Next Congress

BY BOB BECKER.

Residents of the Fox river valley now are marshaling their forces to march on congress with a demand that Uncle Sam lend a hand in a reclamation project that will improve the Fox river.

According to E. A. Kepler, secretary of the Fox Valley federation, the organization leading the movement to secure a fixed flow of water in the stream, making it suitable for recreational purposes, Congressman Frank R. Reid of Aurora is preparing the reclamation bill, which will be introduced at the next session of congress.

A meeting of local leaders in the river region is about to be held under the auspices of the federation, when further plans will be formulated to carry on the fight for restoring the stream to some of its former usefulness and beauty.

When THE TRIBUNE canoeing party traveled down the river last summer to check the recreational facilities of the stream it found the Fox obstructed by fourteen dams between Fox lake and Ottawa; no provisions for locks or lifts at these dams so that small boats could get by or over them, and the water so low that one had to walk down the river for several miles at a stretch.

Although the dry summer was partly responsible for the low water condition, the fact remains that the river has no fixed flow from point to point, and even in normal years is not being treated to give the greatest good to the greatest number of people.

Last summer the water was being impounded at certain points to acquire a depth of eight or ten feet. Below these deep water spots canoeists found an almost dry river bed for long distances or else a mass of aquatic vegetation so thick that paddling a canoe or operating a small outboard motorboat was impossible.

According to engineers' advance reports it appears, according to the officers of the federation, that the river can be reclaimed without excessive expenditure, inasmuch as there is no demand that the stream be made navigable for barge transport and commercial navigation.

On the other hand, the Fox, in the heart of Chicagoland, can and should have attention from the angles of recreation, flow control, sanitation and beautification, says the Fox Valley federation, because when improved it will serve the recreational needs of thousands of residents, canoeists, campers, outboard motor users, bathers, and others.

NORTH CENTRAL SNAPS DE KALB'S VICTORIES, 19-6

North Central college defeated De Kalb at Naperville yesterday, 19 to 6. This game was De Kalb's first conference defeat of the season and was the fourth straight Little Nineteen win for North Central.

North Central made 15 first downs, all on runs. De Kalb made six first downs, four of which were on passes.

North Central scored in the first, second and fourth quarters on plunges by Kerth. De Kalb scored in the second on a pass, Mustapha to Vanderbeek.

Match Races Tonight Usher in 6 Day Grind

Three match races will feature the card of bicycle races at the Stadium tonight, and tomorrow night at nine Mayor Cermak will fire the starting gun in the six day grind. The bicycle riders arrived in town yesterday and immediately made for the Stadium to have a workout on the new ten lap saucer. The track was pronounced one of the best ever built by the veteran track builder, Pat Mulvey.

The feature match tonight will bring together Freddie Spencer, thrice American champion, and Franco Georgetti, Italy, in a mile race, the best two in three heats. Spencer is looked upon as America's outstanding rider, while Georgetti is probably the best rider the old world has produced in many a day. There is a keen rivalry between Spencer and Georgetti and the race is sure to be hard fought.

Guerra to Race Letourner.

Learco Guerra, Italy, road champion of the world, will make his first appearance in America tonight, riding in a medley match against Alfred Letourner, the little French star. The first heat of the race will be a mile sprint and the second an Australian pursuit match with the riders starting from opposite sides of the track and racing until one rider catches the other. If a third heat is necessary, the style and distance will be decided by the toss of a coin.

Bobby Walthour, who has won five six day races in Chicago, will meet Avanti Martinetti, Italy, in a mile match, the best two in three heats. This will mark Martinetti's first appearance in Chicago.

Fifteen Teams to Start.

Fifteen teams will start in the six day grind tomorrow night. The opening night racing will be marked by two series of sprints for points, one at 9:30 and the other at 12:30, while the third series will be run Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Women will be admitted free to the races every afternoon.

KELLY CHICAGO CHAIRMAN OF ROCKNE FUND

Edward J. Kelly, president of the south park board, accepted the chairmanship of the Chicago special gift committee of the Knute Rockne Memorial fund yesterday at a luncheon at the Chicago Athletic association. George F. Getz, chairman of the national committee, presided.

Others who attended were Mayor Cermak; James P. Allman, commissioner of police; Harry A. Ash, Avery Brundage, John Cushing, Joshua D'Esposito, Charles Fitzmorris, Judge Henry Horner, Senator Thomas Courtney, Robert M. Crowe D. F. Kelly, Judge John P. McGoorty, P. A. Nash, Judge Marcus Kavanagh, Col. A. A. Sprague, and Father Michael Mulcaire, vice president of the University of Notre Dame.

Trojack Takes Decision from Loraine Udell

Grand Forks, N. D., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Steve Trojack, Winnipeg heavyweight, outpointed Loraine Udell of Aberdeen, S. D., in the six round main event here tonight.

Navy's Goat Now Sports Scarlet Hue of Buckeyes

Columbus, O., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—The Navy's goat turned half Ohio State today when a group of Buckeye undergraduates visited its stall in the veterinary hospital where "Odoriferous" is being bunked for the week-end.

The goat, an Angora, turned from its usual white color to one of scarlet and white when the undergraduates smeared its hindquarters with mercurochrome.

Clayton of Shamrocks Is Hurt in Drill

HAMILTON, Ont., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—The first casualties in the Chicago Shamrocks camp were reported today. Bert Clayton, center, will be out for a couple of days with a bruised rib. Ralph Taylor, defense, suffered a split nose, but will not be kept off the ice.

Tip O'Neill, shifted the other day from center to wing, looks better every day.

Manager Babe Dye is devoting considerable attention to perfection of a defensive system. After half an hour of line work against defense, the Reds were sent against the Grays again in a scrimmage, which ended in a scoreless tie.

NATIONAL HORSE SHOW PRIZES TO EASTERN ENTRIES

New York, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Eastern thoroughbreds at the Forty-sixth National Horse show continued to sweep the prize lists at Madison Square Garden today.

The stables of H. Hollen Crowell of Boston, Hugh Bancroft Jr. of Cohasset, and J. Macy Willets' Cassilis farm of New Marlboro, Mass., dominated today's program. The William C. Cox silks were forced back into third and fourth places in the hackney division by the Cassilis farm's Miss Fredu. With Mr. and Mrs. Willets alternating in the driver's seat, the little imported brown mare first defeated a smart field of harness ponies under 13.2 and then won her second blue ribbon, over ponies not exceeding 14.2. Eastertide, a stablemate, placed second in the event for the midget ponies.

Miss Mary G. Fiers of Oklahoma City won two blue ribbons. Her only rival in the roadster class for pairs was George G. Peak of Winchester, Ill., but Miss Fiers' combination of My Souvenir and Lillian Sydles easily placed first. My Souvenir also won the roadster class for single harness horses, while her teammate finished fourth.

65,000 EXPECTED AT NAVY-OHIO BATTLE TODAY

Buckeyes Favored to Win Homecoming Game.

Columbus, O., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—Ohio State today seemed assured of a sellout for the homecoming game with the Navy tomorrow.

Athletic officials report that 55,000 seats have been sold. The 12,500 general admission seats are expected to be disposed of when they are put on sale before game time.

This, with the promise of excellent football weather, prophesies an attendance of more than 65,000, the seating capacity of the Ohio stadium. The Navy game will mark the first time the stadium has been filled in three years.

Navy Coach Picks Ohio.

Forty-four Middy players paraded into Columbus today and quartered at the Columbus Athletic club. After touring the town in the morning, the Navy teams worked out on the Ohio stadium field.

While watching the Navy players run through limbering up exercises, Coach Edgar Miller expressed little doubt that the Buckeyes would win easily.

"A good Big Ten team this year has it all over anything the east has to offer," Miller said. "The crop of eastern teams this year is about as poor as it ever has been.

Ferrall to Start at End.

The Navy coach, who uses the Notre Dame type of play, has three triple threat men in the back field. They are Bullet Lou Kirn and Joe Tschirgi, half backs, and Campbell, full back.

The Buckeyes, with the exception of Junius Ferrall at left end, will start the lineup that has been used against every team this year. Lineup:

OHIO STATE.		NAVY.
Ferrall	L. E.	Smith
Bell	L. T.	James
Varner	L. G.	Reedy
Smith	C.	Tuttle
Gailus	R. G.	Underwood

MEENAN STAYS IN SCHOOL DESPITE HIS MARRIAGE

The brief marital experience of Kenneth Meenan, Northwestern's sophomore half back, will not result in his expulsion from school and he will take his place in the Wildcat lineup against Minnesota this afternoon. This was revealed late yesterday with announcements by Dean of Men James Armstrong and Athletic Director Kenneth Wilson.

Meenan's secret marriage on Sept. 30 to Helen Major of Evanston was revealed Thursday when the 17 year old bride was granted an annulment. It appeared that the former Oak Park High school star, who is 19 years old, would be lost to the team, since a school rule makes campus marriages, without the knowledge or consent of parents and without notification to school authorities, punishable by expulsion.

"Meenan's marriage does not come under the rule against secret marriages during the school year, as he did not marry a co-ed," said Dean Armstrong. "Our control over such marriages is fixed only when both parties are students."

"Meenan's standing on the football team will not be affected in any way," Athletic Director Wilson commented. "As the girl he married is not a co-ed, the rule against marriage—which states that two students may not be married without the consent of the parents and of the dean, on penalty of expulsion—does not apply. These affairs often happen, and this was just another summer romance."

WALKER SPURNS STRIBLING BOUT; EYES SCHMELING

New York, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Mickey Walker, favorite of Max Schmeling as an opponent for a heavyweight title fight somewhere this winter, is not going to fight W. L. [Tony] Stribling or any other rugged warrior just yet.

An attempt to match Stribling, successful challenger for the title last summer, and Walker, who recently fought a 15 round draw with Jack Sharkey, were abandoned today by Jimmy Johnston, Madison Square Garden promoter. Jack Kearns, Walker's manager, refused to consider the match at this time.

Walker expects to sign for a title fight with Schmeling either in Miami, Fla., Los Angeles, Cal., or Atlantic City, N. J., as soon as the German heavyweight arrives here from his homeland late this month.

OLD TIMERS HOLD REUNION.

JOIN up with that comfort-loving army of men who look to Ingram's every morning for cool and stingless shaves!

For Ingram's is cool—cool—COOL—COOL! It's unique! It's the one shaving cream that was purposely planned to take the bite out of the morning shave and leave a smooth, cool face.

COOL and COMFORTABLE

Ingram's comes in tubes and it comes in jars. It contains three soothing and cooling ingredients which tighten and tone the skin when and while you are shaving. It's like a shaving cream, lotion and skin tonic all in one.

Whether you get Ingram's in the economical jar or the handy tube, you'll get the coolest, smoothest shave you ever had. And you'll join the happy company of men who have settled the question of shaving creams for good!

Be rid of nicks! Be rid of stings! Be rid of nasty scrapes! Stop at the nearest drug store for Ingram's in tube or jar—and celebrate tomorrow your conversion to this cool shaving cream!

LIGHT CENTENARY ELEVEN BATTLES PURDUE TODAY

Southerners Show Speed in Final Drill.

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 6.—[Special.] Centenary's gridiron warriors arrived from the south this afternoon, had a sniff of the chilly, invigorating air, and scampered through a goodly workout in the Ross-Ade stadium with a vim that bids fair to give Purdue's Boilermakers all they can handle tomorrow afternoon.

Although Centenary will be outweighed when it takes the field for its intersectional encounter tomorrow afternoon, the Gentlemen displayed no speed of a track squad in their brief workout, catching forward passes at top speed, and Purdue's aerial defense is apt to be in for a strenuous workout.

Boilermakers Watch Murff.

Coach Norton pronounced the Centenary squad in fine condition and added Gentlemen supporters who accompanied the squad, called attention to the fact that the boys from Shreveport have been consistently successful since they have invaded the north for football battles.

Ralph Murff, half back, and Ben Cousins, ace of the kicking staff, are the two big offensive threats of the visitors, while the wings are amply manned by the co-captains, Lee and Taylor.

Murff Will Do Punting.

Against the Gentlemen, the Boilermakers will present one of the greatest backfield groups in the country, with Bi Elliott, Jim Purvis, Alex Yunevich, Fred Hecker, Roy Horstmann, Ted Petitgoner, and Doxie Moore, all acknowledged to be outstanding ball players in the line, Capt. Miller, center, and Paul Moss, end, who does practically all of the kicking, are defensive stars. Lineup:

CENTENARY.		PURDUE.
Lee	L. E.	Yunevich
Taylor	L. T.	Petitgoner

Dads Will See Wisconsin and Illinois Battle

pile practice room under the stadium where tackling practice topped the session.

Illinois students and guests tonight celebrated in fashion comparable to homecoming two weeks ago. The student pep meeting ended with attendance at a huge bonfire on the vacant lot west of the new gymnasium. "Beat Wisconsin!" was the battle cry of the cheer leaders, who formed the students in a snake dance which proceeded down Wright and Green streets.

Badger Win Means All Time Tie.

If Wisconsin wins tomorrow it will tie Illinois in victories, although Illinois coached teams will continue to have a lead over the Badgers. Since 1918, when Illinois and Wisconsin tied, 18 to 18, Illinois has won seven games. The Badgers have been victorious six times. Most notable of achievements was in 1922 when Illinois won, 6 to 0, preventing Wisconsin from winning the conference championship. The record of games follows:

1918: Illinois, 18; Wisconsin, 18.
1919: Wisconsin, 33; Illinois, 0.
1920: Wisconsin, 57; Illinois, 0.
1921: Illinois, 6; Illinois, 6.
1922: Illinois, 13; Wisconsin, 4.
1923: Illinois, 24; Wisconsin, 9.
1924: Illinois, 17; Wisconsin, 3.
1925: Illinois, 0; Wisconsin, 0.
1926: Illinois, 7; Wisconsin, 0.
1927: Wisconsin, 32; Wisconsin, 0.
1928: Illinois, 14; Illinois, 10.
1929: Illinois, 14; Illinois, 9.
1930: Illinois, 20; Illinois, 0.
1931: Illinois, 2; Wisconsin, 0.
1932: Illinois, 10; Wisconsin, 0.

CRIPPLED SCOUTS ENGAGE IN GRID BATTLE TODAY

A football team of crippled Boy Scouts, asking no odds, will meet another scout troop of normal boys in a game this afternoon in Douglas park. It will not be the first game played by the crippled boys of troops 200 and 201, made up of students from the Chicago School for Crippled Children. They boast a regularly organized football team, a swimming team as yet undefeated by a team of normal children, and a snappy baseball team.

Backed by the Midtown Kiwanis club, of which he is vice president, Rudolph T. Gruener, an attorney, started the work of organizing the crippled troops.

Shurtleff Eleven Beats Southern Teachers, 6 to 0

Carbondale, Ill., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Shurtleff marched down the field in the last five minutes of play to defeat Southern Illinois Teachers in a Little 9 conference football game here today, 6 to 0. Carbondale started a passing attack after the touchdown and was on Shurtleff's 15 yard line when the game ended.

Negro, Pernice Victors in Amateur Bouts

Tony Pernice, 135 pound amateur battler, defeated Richard White in a four round bout last night at the Northwest Lions' club weekly show. In the semi-windup, Paul Steger was awarded a decision over Richard Marquez, Mexico bantamweight.

MURRAY TEACHERS WIN.

Jefferson City, Mo., Nov. 6.—(AP)—The Murray, Ky., Teachers defeated the Cape Girardeau Teachers, 32 to 6, in a football game here tonight.

58,000 to See Dartmouth and Harvard Clash

but if none of the athletes now described are unsound is used in the game there will still be time to commiserate them. If the casualties are as severe as they are said to be, then it would seem no more than fair, sporting and humane to call off an unequal contest, for Harvard's team is the best Harvard team in many years and sound of wind and limb. They are a frolicsome lot this year, who love to stand off and butt one another for pleasure during lulls in the practice, a trait which has made them one of the best blocking teams in the country at this time.

Just One Harvard Ailing.

Only one Harvard player, an end named Esterly, who was sincerely hurt in the Army game three weeks ago is out of the game, and he will not play much, if any, more this season. On the Dartmouth side, Bob Wilkin, a full back, came down with a broken leg in the Yale game and is genuinely out of commission. Capt. Tydickey, an end, also is said to be hurt, and the list goes on to name Fishman, Ronald Morton, Brisler, and Baldwin among the important invalids who can only drag themselves around at best.

But so often have hospital cases hopped out of their blankets, thanks to crude miracles of the trainers with their tape and arnica, to run, kick, and throw with great agility and fury that skepticism is the natural consequence. One may be sincerely sorry for the injured Dartmouth boys in their sufferings, provided, however, that they do not play football tomorrow afternoon.

But whoever plays for Dartmouth, there is no expectation but that Harvard will win by two or three touchdowns, for this Dartmouth team does not conform to the Dartmouth standard, whereas the Harvard youths far excel the standard which Harvard reluctantly accepted for a spell of years. They are undefeated thus far, whereas Dartmouth has been beaten once by Columbia and tied by Yale and, with a full allowance for strategic intent, undoubtedly is below strength just now, owing to the mauling struggle with Yale a week ago.

Snow Falls in Cambridge.

There was snow in the New England hills today and a sprinkling of it in Cambridge late in the afternoon, which did not cover the ground, however. Up here in the Arctic circle where baseball weather does not arrive until along toward June, the season for the sedentary athletes who sit at outdoor spectacles watching the gladiators exercise is briefer than it is mostwheres. The ground has yet to freeze, but with snow sighted already, the Harvard Igloo will be a place to dread by the time of the game with Yale.

This is Dartmouth's first football holiday week-end of the year and a certain degree of well mannered revelry was anticipated with the old grads joining in. Unlike some other football festivals, however, the Harvard-Dartmouth game is a rather intimate affair and closed to those honorary alumni who sometimes embarrass the school of their momentary attachment by heaving pianos, arm chairs, and bath tubs out the hotel windows at night.

Bill Morton, Dartmouth's great punter and passer, and Bill McCall, another useful back on the offense, both confess to excellent health, but the starting full back will be a youth from the No. 3 company named Dave Hedges, always barring strategic surprises.

Dartmouth Brings Squad of 43.

Dartmouth brought down 43 players from Hanover, N. H., including the lame, and the bench has been extended into both end zones to accommodate them.

It may interpret the character of the Harvard captain, Barry Wood, that in five games this year, in which Harvard scored 135 points, he has not once conferred upon himself the honor of carrying the ball across the line. He has scored nine points, all on kicks following touchdowns except one. He scored that one by carrying the ball across the line against the Army when the pass from center for the kick went wild.

The starting lineups, subject to strategic revision, are:

HARVARD.		DARTMOUTH.
Nazro	L. E.	Mackey
Hardy	L. T.	Barber
Gimman	L. G.	Pyles
Hallowell	C	Kimball
Myerson	R. G.	Hoffman
Kopans	R. T.	Durgin
Hageman	R. E.	Donner
Wood [C.]	Q. B.	Morton
Crickard	L. B.	Frigard
Schererschewsky	R. B.	McCall
White	F. B.	Hedges

Last Quarter Pass Wins for Western Teachers, 14-13

Macomb, Ill., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—A touchdown late in the fourth quarter enabled Western Teachers to defeat State Normal, 14 to 13, in a Little 19 game today. Harding, substitute end, grabbed a forward pass that bounced off the finger tips of three other players and raced across the goal line. Windmiller then passed to Harding again for the extra point and the margin by which the home eleven scored its victory.

101,000 Will See Trojans Battle Indians on Coast

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Football leadership of the Pacific coast conference will be at stake tomorrow when Southern California's Trojans and Stanford's Indians line up in their November classic at Los Angeles.

Neither defeated nor tied in conference play, the Trojans will seek to turn back a Stanford eleven that likewise lists no losses, but which has one tie game in its records.

Into Olympic stadium is expected to pour a throng of 101,000, a record turnout for far western football. Several years ago a crowd of approximately 100,000 watched the California-Stanford game at Berkeley, but some 20,000 of these spectators were on the hillside overlooking the bowl.

Winners of four conference contests, the Trojans will take the field favorites to down their old time rivals, although the game will see Stanford parading in full football strength for the first time this season. The Indians have won two games, but were held to a scoreless tie by Washington.

Stanford's 12 to 6 win over the University of California at Los Angeles last Saturday was unimpressive, but the team that played the first half was made up of third and fourth string men.

While Southern California and Stanford are fighting for top place, California's Bears and Washington's Huskies will come together in a traditional encounter at Berkeley.

In other conference games tomorrow Montana and Oregon State, each defeated three times, will meet at Corvallis. Oregon State is expected to write its first conference victory into the records. Washington State will entertain Idaho at Pullman, with the former as favorite.

STRALKO LOST TO LAKE FOREST FOR MONMOUTH GAME

Pete Stralko, Lake Forest captain and quarter back, was injured last night in scrimmage and will not make the trip to Monmouth today. Stralko's leg received a severe sprain, which will keep him on crutches for at least a week. This injury, combined with the dislocation of Hammond's shoulder, cuts the starting backfield strength in half. Hammond was regular left half back and Stralko was a triple threat quarter back around whom the team has been built the last two years.

STOP CHRISTNER, SCHWAKE BOUT; IT'S NO CONTEST

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 6.—(AP)—The scheduled ten round bout between K. O. Christener of Akron, O., and John Schwake, St. Louis heavyweight, was stopped in the sixth round here tonight and declared no contest.

The men had been warned in the fourth round, and when they failed to satisfy the referee in the fifth and a part of the sixth he stopped the bout.

Christener had an edge up to the time the bout ended.

Kansas State Loses Graham for Ames Game

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 6.—(AP)—The veterans of Bo McMillin's Kansas State college football squad, whose prowess has been eclipsed by the excellent play of Ralph Graham, sophomore half back, have a change to reinstall their names in the headlines tomorrow.

When Kansas State meets Iowa State at Ames, Graham will be listening to a radio report or watching a telegraphed account in Manhattan.

Graham was left at home to nurse injuries and to avoid further wounds that might bench him when Kansas State meets Nebraska at Manhattan Nov. 14 in a game that may decide the championship.

Without his sophomore star McMillin has plenty of ammunition to hurl at the Cyclones, who have arisen after a long encampment in last place to win their first two conference games of this season and share the leadership with the undefeated Kansas State and Nebraska teams. The Purple beat Iowa State, 13 to 0, last year.

The 1930 champion and runner-up, Kansas and Oklahoma respectively, meet in the other conference game tomorrow at Norman. Both have yet to win a Big Six game, Kansas having lost two and Oklahoma three. Kansas won from the Sooners, 13 to 0, last year.

Nebraska, meeting the University of Iowa in an interconference tilt at Lincoln, is mindful of its game with Kansas State a week from tomorrow and may not extend its offensive unless it is absolutely necessary. Iowa beat the Huskers, 12 to 7, last year.

Acting Captain Would Like Illini to Win Toss Once

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 6.—Illinois alumni, who have a rabbit's foot or lucky pocket piece which has demonstrated its powers, are requested to present these charms to Gil Berry, acting captain of Illinois' football team.

For eight consecutive Western conference football games Illinois has lost the toss of the referee's coin at the start of the game. Invariably the opponents have chosen the goal with the wind at their backs, and most of the games have been played with a stiff breeze blowing. While each team changes goals at the end of the first and third periods, Capt. Berry believes that Illinois' luck might change if he could get a wind advantage in the first quarter.

Berry points to Olson's punting for Northwestern in the first quarter of the Illinois game last week as an example. Olson forced the Illini into their own territory, when the wind sailed several of his kicks more than 70 yards.

"This wind business," Coach Zuppke interrupted, "probably would delay the inevitable. That's all."

De Paul Seeks Its Fifth Victory at Louisville Today

Thirty De Paul university football players departed from the Union station last night bound for Louisville, Ky., where they will seek their fifth victory of the season against the University of Louisville today.

The Blue Demons have lost only one of six games. They defeated Detroit, Illinois Wesleyan, St. Mary's of Winona, Minn., and Hastings, Neb. The loss was suffered at North Dakota.

Coach Eddie Anderson will start a second string back field against the Colonels. Joe Dea and Eddie O'Brien will perform at halves, with Art McGivern at full back and Frank Hartman at quarter. Hartman is a veteran but was slowed up during the early part of the season by injuries.

Two of De Paul's tackles were not able to make the Louisville trip. They are Hal Cherne and John O'Brien.

Roche and Finn, ends; Sexton and Fitzgerald, tackles; Bosquette and Schuster, guards, and Lanum, center, will compose the starting line.

The Blue Demons defeated Louisville, 12 to 0, at Chicago last year.

Indiana Plans Sharp Rally in Upset Trade

It seems to be the vogue for coaches to be on the lookout for "a strong pass attack," but in this instance the anticiplations of the Wolverines seem to be well founded. There has been nothing wrong with Michigan's defense against rushing, as shown by the fact that neither Princeton nor Illinois was able to make a first down from scrimmage. But on pass defense, the Michiganders haven't been so hot on some occasions.

Gene Opasik, Indiana Harbor boy, who will start at quarter for the Hoosiers tomorrow, has been showing fine talent as a passer and the Wolverines have been coached to watch his arm at all times.

Physically Michigan is better prepared for the contest than the visitors. La Jeunesse is the only casual on the squad, while Coach Hayes is handicapped by three or four cripples, his line having been hit hardest.

The weather, which drove the Michigan squad indoors yesterday, did an aboutface today. Although there was plenty of chill in the air, the outlook for tomorrow is for a perfect November football setting.

Loyola, North Central and Elmhurst Harriers Meet

Loyola university, Elmhurst college, and North Central college of Naperville, Ill., will engage in a triangular cross country race this morning at the Loyola campus. The race will be run over a three and a quarter mile course.

Bears Expect Battle from Portsmouth

The Chicago Bears are prepared for a battle tomorrow when they meet the Portsmouth Spartans at Wrigley field.

The Spartans, coached by Potsy Clark, former Illinois star, must win or slip a notch as the only contender against the undefeated league leading Green Bay Packers. In fact, a loss would mean they will have only a slight chance of gaining a tie with the pace makers. The Bears are in the mood to give the Ohio contingent a rough reception.

Clark to Be Marked Man.

Algie Clark will be one of the targets in tomorrow's game for he is the spark plug of the Spartans. He is looked upon as the biggest field goal kicking threat in the circuit, in addition to being an elusive ball carrier, and an excellent blocker, passer and field general.

The Bears were greatly cheered yesterday when Coach Jones announced that Carl Brumbaugh would be able to play. There was doubt earlier in the week that the quarter back would be sufficiently recovered from bruises suffered in the Packer game.

Red, Too, Is Ready.

Red Grange, who was a mark for the Packers, is in fine fettle and will be in there tomorrow but minus a couple of teeth. Joe Lintzenich, too, will be available and that means the Bears will have their full punting department, for with Joe and Dick Nesbitt the team can match anything in the league in kicking.

The Spartans have two sets of backs, including the powerful Tony Holm, all-American at the University of Alabama in 1929. Tony will play full back. "Father" Lumpkin, a Georgia Tech product, is another.

Tomorrow will be ladies' day, the second of the season and more than 40,000 requests were received for the allotment of 15,000 free seats. Beginning at 12:30 o'clock, the Seneca Athletics will play the Hermosa Park Clippers for the 155 pound championship of the city.

CARDS BUY STEINBACK

Larry Steinback, veteran 220 pound tackle from St. Thomas college, yesterday was purchased by the Chicago Cardinals from the Bears. Steinback will play in the Card line beside another star and former teammate from St. Thomas, Walt Kiesling, 240 pound guard.

Injuries have persisted this season in hovering over the Card tackle candidates. Both Jake Williams and Jess Tinsley, first string left tackles, have been on the hospital list for important games this season, so Coach Ernie Nevers, fearing a shortage of tackle material, called for reinforcements. Realizing also the task confronting the Redbirds at Cleveland Sunday, Nevers wanted added strength in his line. Duke Slater, dean of the Card squad, seems to be the only tackle who has shaken off the injury jinx.

Golden Gloves Boxers on Charity Program Tuesday

Several stars of Golden Gloves tournaments will take part in the eight bout charity show Tuesday night at Rainbo Gardens. Heading the card will be a battle between Billy Elmer, Ohio flyweight, and Leo Rodak, international Golden Gloves champion. Other bouts include Ken Disch and Carman Barth, Ralph Phillips and Billy Burns, Nick Scialaba and George Keenan, and Buddy Moore and Tony Muscarello. All proceeds go to the the North Side Animal Shelter.

Tiger Johnny Cline, who faces Ray Tramblie at White City Monday night, and Matt Adgie, who meets Tony Cancella in the second half of the eight round double windup, arrived in Chicago today. Adgie will finish his training at Brown's gym, while Cline will work at Howard's.

Chesbro, Star Pitcher Years Ago, Is Dead

Conway, Mass., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Happy Jack Chesbro, 56, old time spitball pitcher of the New York Americans, died today of a heart attack on his chicken farm.

Born in North Adams, Chesbro was developed on the sandlots of western Massachusetts and had his first experience in organized baseball with the old Springfield club. He later spent three years with Richmond in the Southern association before joining the Pittsburgh club of the National league.

Chesbro led the National league pitchers in 1901 and 1902 while with Pittsburgh, winning 21 and losing 9 for an average of .700 in 1901, and piling up a percentage of .824 the following year with 28 victories and only 6 defeats.

He won the most games in a season of any year from 1900 to the present in 1904 while with the New York Highlanders, now the Yankees. In that year he won 42 games while losing 13 for a percentage of .759.

Although not the first spitball pitcher, he was regarded by many baseball authorities as the best.

3 SOUTHWESTERN TEAMS FIGHT TO STAY IN RACE

Dallas, Tex., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Baylor, Texas A. & M., and Rice institute tomorrow are faced with the necessity of defeating strong Southwest conference foes or fading from the championship race. Baylor is not expected to whip Texas university, last year's champion, at Austin.

Texas A. & M. will meet Southern Methodist at College Station. The Methodists boast an undefeated record. Rice has another difficult chore in its attempt to down Texas Christian.

PARKER, FENGER CLASH TODAY FOR SECTION TITLE

Three Others Out to Clinch Division Crowns.

CITY LEAGUE.
Parker vs. Fenger at Shewbridge field.
Harrison vs. Crane at Mills stadium.
Tilden vs. Hyde Park at White City.
Schurz vs. Senn at Loyola field.
Lindblom vs. Englewood at Normal park.
Lake View vs. Roosevelt at Logan Square park.
Morgan Park vs. Phillips at White City, 10 a. m.

CATHOLIC LEAGUE.
St. Mel vs. Weber at Mills stadium, 10 a. m.

SUBURBAN LEAGUE.
Morton at Oak Park.
Evanston at Deerfield.

WEST SUBURBAN.
Glenbard at West Chicago.
Riverside at York.
Downers Grove at Maine.

SOUTH SUBURBAN.
Thornton at Bloom.

Parker of the south section and Harrison Tech, west division champion last year, are expected to march to the semi-final games for the Chicago Public High School Football league championship today when they meet their last sectional opponents of the season.

Parker faces the more difficult task, meeting Fenger, with which it is tied for the south section lead. The game will be played at Shewbridge field. Harrison, considered the leading contender for the league title, opposes Crane Tech at Mills stadium. If victories over other west section teams are an indication, Harrison will have little trouble removing Crane from its path.

Tilden, Schurz Near Titles.

Two other games, in the central and north sections, will be watched closely by prep fans. Tilden will attempt to clinch the central title when it meets Hyde Park at White City. Schurz will become north division champion if it beats Senn at Loyola field. Both Tilden and Schurz are expected to breeze in.

Weber is expected to offer little opposition against St. Mel at Mills stadium this morning in the only Catholic league game of the day. St. Mel, which took the lead in the north section race when St. Philip lost to De Paul last week, has scored three victories, but was tied by Loyola and St. George.

Thornton Invades Bloom.

The outstanding game just outside the city limits pits Thornton High school of Harvey against Bloom at Chicago Heights. The contest will decide the South Suburban league championship. In other contests, Oak Park will seek to increase its lead in the Suburban league against Morton at Oak Park field, while Glenbard, West Suburban conference leader, invades West Chicago.

AUSTIN, 27; M'KINLEY, 0.

Austin scored a 27 to 0 victory over McKinley at Mills stadium yesterday in the last west section game for both schools. Bolas made two touchdowns. Lineup:

AUSTIN [27].		M'KINLEY [0].
Wilson	L. E.	Haynes
McKintock	L. T.	Battista

CITY TO HAVE ANOTHER BIG FACTORY AREA

Central Trustees Plan a 480 Acre Tract.

BY AL CHASE.

Chicago is to have another great industrial development as a result of negotiations being concluded yesterday whereby the Central Manufacturing district trustees will develop for the New York Central railroad a tract comprising 480 acres north and west of the intersection of Crawford avenue and West 47th street. This will be the sixth and by far the largest industrial development of the Central Manufacturing district trustees.

This new tract, to be known as the Crawford avenue development, is one of the last remaining important industrial site within the city limits. An added significance is its proximity to the lakes to gulf waterway. The property extends west from Crawford to the belt railway and north from 47th to the old I. & M. canal. Eighty of the total of 480 acres lies east of Crawford avenue and north of 43d street.

Work Under Way.

Work already is under way to improve the property in conformity with the usual Central Manufacturing district standards, including well paved private streets, power lines, sewers, water and gas mains, special lighting and other necessities of modern industrial development.

In addition, it is planned that industries locating in the new development will be served by private switch tracks connecting directly with the Chicago Junction railway. In anticipation of this industrial growth, the railway will build a large classification yard along the eastern boundary of the tract. In this improvement several hundred men already actually are at work.

Crossed by Pershing Road.

The new industrial development also contemplates the improvement of Pershing road as a boulevard 108 feet wide directly through the property.

"It is true that an undertaking of such magnitude might seem doubtful to some, but we feel, however, that we are contributing directly to Chicago's welfare and that in going ahead now we can materially assist in restoring the normal flow of business in the Chicago territory," said Trustee Halsey E. Poronto. "Not only do we see a wonderful future for Chicago, but we see a development for Cook county, which already ranks first among all the other 3,073 counties in the United States in the production of manufactured goods. We are happy in the confidence that we make the new development the finest in all our 25 years of experience in planning and building for industry."

Diamond T Truck Reports October Sales Up 90 Pct.

A sales gain in October of 90 per cent over the corresponding month last year, marking the fifth consecutive month to show an increase, is reported by E. J. Bush, vice president of the Diamond T Motor Car company of Chicago. The record made, he adds, brings this manufacturer's volume for the year within 4 per cent of equaling 1930 during the first ten months.

CORPORATION EARNINGS

ALASKA JUNEAU GOLD.

Reported for October net before depreciation, depletion, and federal taxes of $118,200, compared with $137,600 for the same 1930 month. Gross was $298,500, against $325,600.

For the ten months ended Oct. 10 net before above charges was $1,382,650, against $856,330 for the like period a year ago, while gross totaled $3,227,500, against $2,780,000.

CHAIN AND GENERAL EQUITIES.

Reported for the September quarter net profit of $30,806 after expenses and charges but before loss on securities sold, which amounted to $515,946. For the first nine months of 1931 net income was $94,089 before loss on securities sold of $843,360.

Securities owned at cost amounted to $4,826,795, which exceeded the market value as of Sept. 30 by $1,641,000.

FOOTE-BURT.

Reported net loss for the third quarter of $27,460 after depreciation and accrued taxes, contrasted with net profit of $28,454 in September, 1930, period.

For the nine months of this year there was a net loss of $164,711, as against net profit of $58,889 in the like period a year ago.

HIRAM WALKER.

Reported for the year ended Aug. 31 profit of $1,060,882 after depreciation and contingencies but before federal taxes, compared with $2,787,164 in the preceding fiscal year. After payment of dividends there was a deficit of $1,249,118.

Current assets as of Aug. 31 amounted to $17,309,514 and current liabilities $829,069.

MURRAY CORPORATION.

Reported for the September quarter net loss of $634,288 after taxes and charges, contrasted with net profit of $16,315 in the third quarter of 1930. Net loss for the first nine months of this year was $505,153, as against net profit of $750,258 in the corresponding period last year.

SIMMS PETROLEUM.

Reported for the September quarter net loss of $657,854 after charges, compared with net loss of $154,760 in the corresponding period a year ago. For the first nine months of 1931 there was a net loss of $2,357,508, as against net loss of $195,523 in the same period last year.

UNITED LIGHT AND POWER.

Reported for the twelve months ended Sept. 30 consolidated net income of $2,304,787 after taxes and charges, including depreciation and subsidiary preferred dividends, equivalent after preferred dividends to $1.35 a share on 2,479,914 average combined class A and class B shares outstanding. This compares with $11,228,671, or $2.80 a share, on 3,886,677 shares, in the preceding twelve months.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw was easier today with prices declining 1-32 of a cent to the basis of 3.38c for spots. The demand, however, was still limited to nearby requirements, with sales confirmed of 14,000 bags of Cuban from store at 3.39 and 28,000 bags for prompt shipment at 3.38 to local refiners.

The decline in the spot market and rumors of increasing opposition to restricting the next Cuban crop were responsible for a lower ruling of values in futures, with the market closing 1 to 2 points net lower. Final prices were 2 to 3 points above the lowest of the day. Approximate sales, 38,450 tons, including 5,000 tons in exchanges. Prices follow:

	Prev.
	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	close.
Dec.	1.30	1.30	1.28	1.29	1.32
Jan.	1.27	1.27	1.24	1.27	1.29
March	1.23	1.23	1.20	1.23	1.26

July	1.38	1.38	1.34	1.35	1.38
Sept.	1.42	1.42	1.38	1.40	1.42

In refined prices were reduced 10 points to the basis of 4.50 for fine granulated. According to some reports increased competition with beet sugars was responsible for the reduction, although business was only moderate and limited to nearby requirements.

BANKS IN IOWA.

Bullway banks in Iowa last year were the highest on record, amounting to $6,026,000, compared with $7,866,000 in 1929 and $7,-[illegible]9,000 in 1920, the previous high.

500 MILLION POOL IS READY TO HELP BANKS

Reynolds Reports on First Meeting.

BY O. A. MATHER.

The National Credit corporation, the $500,000,000 bank pool launched a month ago to extend loans to solvent banks with frozen assets, is ready to function. More than $400,000,000 already has been subscribed and a call for payment of 10 per cent of subscriptions was sent out yesterday. Thus, more than $40,000,000 will be made available immediately for use by banks and further funds will be called for as needed.

Actual operations of the credit corporation were begun yesterday following a meeting of the executive committee in New York. A report of the results of the meeting was sent by Eugene M. Reynolds, chairman of the corporation, to the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, Chicago, of which Mr. Reynolds is chairman of the executive committee.

Reports Are Submitted.

"Reports from directors of the various federal reserve districts were submitted and indicated that over 400 million dollars of subscriptions to gold stock of the corporation are already assured from banks throughout the country," Mr. Reynolds wired. "Reasons that are coming in daily from many of the banks that have not yet been definitely heard from are not taken into account in the foregoing figures.

"The amount already subscribed and the indorsement of the plan throughout the country satisfy the committee that the original estimate of 500 million dollars will be exceeded. The committee, accordingly, has instructed the officers of the corporation in their districts to issue an initial call for 10 per cent of the subscriptions to the notes as soon as applications for loans from banks in fully organized associations are filed."

Some Cheerful News.

There were several cheerful items in yesterday's news, aside from the strong tone in the securities and grain markets. Further evidence that foreigners have gotten over their fear of the American financial situation was contained in the report of the New York Federal Reserve bank that gold transactions resulted in a net gain of $1,372,500 in our monetary stock. Exports were only $20,000, while $1,390,500 earmarked for foreign account was released.

The New York Stock exchange reported that the value of all listed shares increased $1,919,611,610 last month and totaled $34,246,649,051 on Nov. 1. The average market value was $12.97 last Saturday, compared with $14.55 on Oct. 1. There were 1,384 issues aggregating 1,318,586,847 shares on Nov. 1.

Sentiment Improves.

Continued improvement in business sentiment, along with scattered evidence of increased industrial and trade activity, was reported by weekly trade reviews.

"More genuine optimism is shown in the trade reports to Bradstreet's from fifty leading centers this week than in some time," says the Bradstreet summary. "It is felt in trade circles," the review adds, "that October was a somewhat better month than September and that November should be better still. The middle west, especially, has been greatly encouraged over the advancing grain prices, with the consequent promise of increased buying power for the farmer.

"Cooler weather in most cities of the country has stimulated buying of heavier lines, so that, with a few exceptions, far less complaint is heard on that score.

"Accompanying the better outlook for retailers and wholesalers are somewhat more promising prospects for growth of the heavier industries."

Wheat Overrides Breaks in Its Plunge Forward

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

There seems to be no stopping the wheat market in its upward course. While there was a break of around 2½c in the early trading yesterday, which carried May wheat down to 63c, or 4c under the high on Thursday, new buying in volume developed on the break and absorbed the surplus in the pit.

Toward the last a wild wave of buying, headed by houses with eastern connections who were aggressive sellers yesterday and by the southwest, swept prices up 2⅝@2¾c from the low and to within a fraction of the highest figures of the season on all deliveries. The close was at the top and at the highest prices at which the various futures have finished so far, with net gains of ⅞@1¼c. December was 66⅝@66¾c, March 70@70¼c, May 71½@71⅝c, and July 72⅛@72¼c at the last.

Fear Damage in Kansas.

A report from the agricultural development department of the Santa Fe railroad claiming that a little more than one-third of the wheat in the western thirty counties in Kansas, which usually produce around one-third of the state's crop, had been planted and that there was a deficit in the subsoil moisture in a majority of the counties in the central third of the state came at a time when many of the local professionals and the pit element were short. As a result the report sent them scurrying to cover, with heavy buying by commission houses hurrying the advance along.

In addition to the prospect of a major crop scare developing in the southwest, where the dry area is estimated at around 9,000,000 acres wheat, or approximately 25 per cent of the total area seeded this fall, the trade made much over the sensational advance which has taken place in the price of silver from the recent low, the market being active and sharply higher yesterday, with the close 38 per cent above the all time record low of Feb. 16.

It was felt that the increase in purchasing power of the orient by the advance would ultimately result in heavy purchases of cash wheat.

Foreign News Bearish.

As is usual when there has been a decline in the wheat prices such as occurred early, the bearish news was more in evidence than of late. London cabled that Russia had made charters for December loading and press reports from Moscow indicated that Russia had no idea of abandoning exports. Liverpool reported hedging sales against purchases of Australian grain, with around 1,250,000 bu bought on Thursday, and more attention was also paid to the favorable outlook for the new Argentine and Australian crops.

An advance in sterling partly offset a decline of 1⅞@2¼d in Liverpool, the actual loss being 1@1⅝c per bu, but the latter market has lost around 2c as compared with Chicago within a week. Winnipeg failed to follow the sharp upturn in Chicago and was ¼c lower at the last, with the December closing at 71c in Canadian currency, which was 9¼ per cent discount as compared with American. Buenos Aires was ⅛c lower to ⅛c higher at the close. A moderate amount of Manitoba wheat was sold for export during the day, but the foreign demand generally was much slower. No. 1 dark Montana was reported to have sold at $1.01 at Seattle during the day, while choice No. 1 amber durum at Minneapolis was quoted as high as $1.02⅜ at the close.

Corn in Strong Close.

Corn was weak early and off around 2½c from Thursday's finish on general selling early, but reversed its trend later with wheat and advanced 2⅝@3⅛c from the early low, with May selling up to 52¼c, equaling the best figure of the season, and the close was at the top, with net gains of ⅞@1¼c, December being 46⅞@47¼c, March 50@50⅛c, May 52@52¼c, and July 53⅞@54c.

Cash houses were on the buying side of December oats early and it gained fractionally on the May, but the spread at the last was the same as on Thursday. Trade was fairly active, with the finish unchanged to ¼c lower, December closing at 27¼c, with May 29⅜c, and July 29¾c.

All deliveries of rye sold at a new high for the season during the day.

WHEAT ON SEATTLE MARKET SELLS FOR MORE THAN DOLLAR

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Wheat sold for more than a dollar a bushel on the grain market in Seattle today for the first time in many months. Montana dark, the highest grade, was taken at $1.01 a bushel.

Nebraska Mills Busy.

Beatrice, Neb., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Black Brothers Mills today sold 25,000 barrels of flour in New York for $110,000. One hundred and fifteen thousand bushels of wheat will be used, the concern said, and the flour will make 7,500,000 loaves of bread. The order was received after months of comparatively quiet business at the mill.

Wheat Traders Less Active.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Market traders, faced with a complicated world wheat situation, did 22 per cent less business in grain futures on American exchanges in the year ended June 30.

The annual report of the grain futures administration to Secretary Hyde showed today that while the trading reached 17,034,201,000 bushels, it was the smallest amount since 1924. The 1930 total was 24,999,650,000 bushels. Trading in wheat was about 50 per cent under the previous year. Trading in corn futures, however, influenced by a short crop, was 50 per cent greater.

Italy Curbs Wheat Imports.

ROME, Nov. 6.—(AP)—A radical reduction in Italy's wheat imports as part of an effort to eliminate the adverse trade balance was reported today to Premier Mussolini. October imports were 272,000 bushels, compared with 8,000,000 bushels a year ago. The four months total, including October, was about 4,000,000 bushels, compared with 70,000,000 bushels last year.

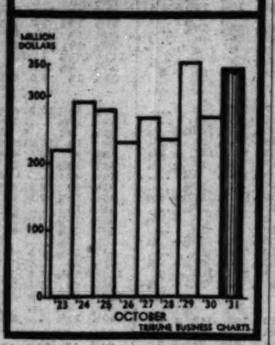
Berlin Grain Market Steady.

BERLIN, Nov. 6.—(AP)—The grain market was steady today, but quiet on lower quotations at the Liverpool opening. News of the break in Chicago came after business hours.

Wheat Unchanged in Paris.

PARIS, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Wheat was quoted today at 164.75 francs per quintal, unchanged in the last three days.

BOND SALES ON THE NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE IN OCTOBER



BAR SILVER REACHES NEW HIGH OF 34C AS SPECULATION GROWS

New York, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Bulls in bar silver were again unusually exuberant in the market today, running the price of the metal 1¼ cents an ounce above yesterday's spot quotations and recording a new high for the year of 34 cents an ounce.

Sales for the day in futures showed a total of 5,175,000 ounces in comparison with the big trading of Thursday, when the total sales recorded were 5,450,000 ounces, and gains ranged to a maximum of 1½ cents. In addition to a reported demand from Shanghai and the orient, the covering of a considerable short interest was generally held responsible for the jump in price. In futures the next October delivery was quoed as high as 37.85 cents.

The London market also established a new high for 1931, the price per ounce of silver advancing to 20 5-16 pence, a rise of three-quarters of a penny over yesterday's quotations.

Trading in silver on the metal exchange is easy, as the rules of the exchange fix a margin requirement of $500 only for each future contract totaling 25,000 ounces. The margin requirements, being around 6 per cent, have thus tempted speculators.

Mexican Money Stronger.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 6.—(AP)—The peso has strengthened considerably this week on the rise in bar silver prices and today the dollar was quoted at from 2.59 to 2.52 pesos. This quotation is 10 to 15 points stronger than a year ago, when Mexico was on the gold basis.

The rise in bar silver is viewed optimistically here by silver producers and it is believed that if the tendency continues several mines that have been shut down will be enabled to resume operations. The rise thus far, however, has not helped producers much, as it has driven the value of the peso up and has kept production costs and the marketing price at about the same relative levels.

October Steel Ingot Output 1,592,376 Tons

New York, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Steel ingot production during October totaled 1,592,376 gross tons, with operations at 27.76 per cent of capacity, the American Iron and Steel Institute reported today. Daily average production for the month amounted to 58,977 tons. These figures compare with total output of 1,547,602 tons. A daily average of 59,523 tons, with operations at 28.02 per cent during September. There was one more working day in October than in September. In October, 1930, output amounted to 2,692,539 gross tons, a daily average of 99,724 tons, with operations at 49.81 per cent.

White Sewing Machine Reports Loss of $440,132

White Sewing Machine corporation and subsidiaries had net loss of $440,132 in the nine months ended Sept. 30. In the same period last year loss was $262,184.

Power Board Seen Veiling Operations in Secrecy

BY SCRUTATOR.

The federal farm board is not the only government commission that enshrouds its business operations in secrecy. This seems to be the general policy of public bodies engaged in business enterprises. The Ontario Hydro-Electric Power commission affords another illustration.

The Hydro organization, which supplies Canada's leading industrial province with power on a public ownership basis, buys some power from Gatineau Power company on the Ottawa river and sells back part of it to Gatineau at less than the $15 per horse power originally paid for it.

The Ontario Hydro's contract, entered into three years ago, calls for 260,000 horse power. A subsequent contract with the same concern calls for an additional 60,000 horse power. Gatineau Power company is a subsidiary of International Paper and Power company.

The amount being "resold" to the vendor corporation varies according to season and reaches a maximum of 45,000 horse power. Hydro officials say that what they sell back to Gatineau is a "surplus." They argue that no matter how little they get for this surplus it is a saving to Hydro.

Will Not Disclose Price.

But the commissioners will not disclose the price at which they are reselling power to its original vendors. Neither will the Gatineau principals at Ottawa say how much they are paying for the Hydro surplus. This power, although paid for, is simply not delivered over the costly new transmission lines stretching from the Ottawa river to Leaside.

"We have a contract for the supply of so much power which we pay for whether we take it or not," says Fred Gaby, chief engineer for the Hydro. "At such times as we do not require it all they repurchase at something less. The one is firm power and the other is interruptible and therefore not so valuable.

"I do not think it necessary in the public interest to state the resale figure."

John R. Cooke, chairman of the Hydro commission, when pressed for the resale figure said "the commission does not deem it in the public interest to publish the details of all their business."

Hydro Commissioner Alfred Maguire likewise declined to make known the figure and the Gatineau company principals at Ottawa when approached in the same connection referred questions back to the Hydro.

Statement by Chairman.

Chairman Cooke recently made this statement concerning sources of the Hydro's purchased power:

"The contracts entered into by the commission since 1926 for purchased power are as follows: 260,000 horse power from the Gatineau Power company; a further contract covering an additional 60,000 horse power, also from the Gatineau; 250,000 horse power from the Beauharnois development being made in Quebec on the St. Lawrence river; 125,000 horse power from the Maclaren development on the Lievre river, also in Quebec; 96,000 horse power from the Quebec portion of the Chats Falls development on the Ottawa river, and for the development of northerly Ontario 100,000 horse power to be produced at the Abitibi canon on the Abitibi river in Ontario.

"The commission will also have 96,600 horse power from its own portion of the development at Chats Falls."

BUCYRUS-ERIE PAYS DIVIDEND ON PREFERRED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 6.—Bucyrus-Erie company, in declaring the regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 a share on its preferred stock, declared a dividend of 20 5-6 cents a share on the convertible preferred, in accordance with its act of incorporation requiring a proper balance between money distributed on various stocks for dividends during 1931. In the previous quarter the 62½ cents regular dividend due on the convertible preferred was omitted.

Cabot Manufacturing company declared a quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share, placing the stock on a $6 annual basis, compared with $8 previously paid.

Directors of the Van Raalte company declared a dividend of $1.75 a share out of surplus on 34,925 shares of first preferred stock. The stock is cumulative and no dividends had been paid since Sept. 1, 1927. As of Sept. 1 this year the accumulations amounted to $28 a share.

Standard of California 3d Quarter Net $6,297,819

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 6.—The Standard Oil company of California reported today net income for the September quarter of $6,297,819 after all charges, equal to 48 cents a share on 12,102,900 shares of no par capital stock. This compares with $10,717,039, or 83 cents a share on 12,845,980 shares, in the third quarter of 1930. Net income for the first nine months totaled $11,941,787 after charges and inventory revaluation, equal to 91 cents a share, against $30,435,563, or $2.37 a share, for the corresponding months of last year.

Marmon Motor Car Co. Reports Loss for Quarter

Marmon Motor Car company reported for the quarter ended Aug. 31 net loss of $320,006, against loss of $580,460 in the preceding quarter and loss of $670,927 in the three months ended Aug. 31, 1930. For the six months ended Aug. 30, 1931, loss amounted to $900,466, as against loss of $816,647 in the same period a year ago.

SECOND CUT IN ACCEPTANCES IS PUT INTO EFFECT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 6.—Yielding to the influences of supply and demand, dealers in the acceptance market put into effect today a second reduction of ⅛ of 1 per cent in the discount rates on that class of credit, following a similar cut made late yesterday.

This brought the rates from 30, 60, and 90 days down to 3¼ bid and 3⅛ asked, while discounts on the longer maturities were proportionately reduced. The new rates were approved by the acceptance council.

With yesterday's cut, this takes one-quarter of 1 per cent off the charges and yields on acceptance credits. Dealers said the action was due to an active demand for bills from both foreign and domestic quarters, while new bills coming into the market were insufficient. The purpose is to invite the making and marketing of additional bills.

Pettibone Mulliken Suit Dismissed by U. S. Judge

Stockholders of the Pettibone Mulliken company were being notified by letter from President C. H. Erb last night that a petition in bankruptcy was dismissed yesterday by Federal Judge Carpenter.

"The petition was filed Oct. 29 by three note holders claiming to own an aggregate of $4,000 in the company's ten year gold notes, none of which are due," Mr. Erb said. "The company filed its answer denying it was insolvent or had committed any acts of bankruptcy. We are greatly pleased, of course that the federal court has not only found the company to be solvent but with unusual promptness has disposed of the entire matter."

Reports Large Advance in Copeland Shipments

Shipments of Copeland commercial refrigerating units increased 59.4 per cent during the fiscal year ending Oct. 31, 1931, over those of the same period in 1930, W. D. McElhinny, vice president of Copeland Products, Inc., Mount Clemens, Mich, announces.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 6.—Something that looked suspiciously like an old-time short squeeze developed in the last hour of trading on the New York Stock exchange this afternoon. Prices went shooting up from 1 to 5 points, the high speed ticker service was set humming at top capacity as buying orders came boiling in from hither and yon and the air was filled with shrieks and pelts as the unwary were caught off guard and forced to stand and deliver.

It was the best show the sleepy old temple of barter and exchange has seen in a long time. Of course, it couldn't have been a real squeeze on shorts—officially not at least. The exchange powers that be are not permitting short sales any more and have not been for many weeks. There have been reports from time to time that the ban was not working as effectively as it might, but so far as the records show, no member has gone so far as to boast outright that such bans are not always what they are cracked up to be. The "short interest," widely supposed to have been built up in the list is the workings of the "other fellow," of course. It always is.

Life in Market.

Be that as it may, the turnabout this afternoon was productive of enough pyrotechnics to show that there is life in the old market after all. It can do things when the occasion is auspicious.

Just what set it off this afternoon is more or less a mystery. Most brokerage houses thought the spurt could be attributed to the fresh upturn in wheat after the sharp break in the forenoon. The new militaristic gestures in the far east, inspiring a belief that raw materials and manufactured products are going to be in heavy demand soon, may have helped to turn the trick.

Definite signs of the passing of the mild money crisis, with lower bill rates and a net gain in gold and rising prices of silver, also provided the bulls with ammunition for use in shelling the short positions.

Early Trade Listless.

Operations during the forenoon had been listless enough. Most stocks were inclined to give ground as the wheat market slumped, while others contented themselves with backing and filling in desultory fashion. Pool operations were credited with advances here and there.

Silver mining issues, as American Smelting and Cerro de Pasco, made the best uniform showing of the day as a whole, reflecting, of course, the growing strength of the metal. The comparative buoyancy of this group, in fact, tended to bolster the tone of the general list, even before the rally in what came along in the late afternoon to restore confidence. The new boom in these shares has served to boost the group rating anywhere from 2 to 15 points and more above

American Cyanamid.

What in your opinion of American Cyanamid B?—R. C. H.

American Cyanamid company was incorporated in 1907. It manufactures mining chemicals, fertilizers, lacquer materials and solvents, pharmaceuticals, insecticides and fumigants.

During early years the company plowed back much of its earnings. About three years ago it entered on a policy of expansion, acquiring additional companies with the aim of diversifying products in order not to be too dependent on any one line. Sufficient time has not yet elapsed to see just what the earning power of the expanded company is under normal conditions.

For the fiscal year ended June 30, 1931, net income was $548,669, or 22 cents per share on the combined class A and class B shares, against net income of $4,618,099, or $1.87 per share on combined class A and B shares. For the 1929 fiscal year net income was $3,328,928, against $1,547,590 for the preceding twelve months.

The decline in earnings in the latest fiscal year may be traced to a number of causes. Reduced selling price for nitrogen products, used mainly for fertilizer, and reduced purchasing power of agriculturists throughout the world were factors. The low price of silver was responsible for reduced activity in silver mining. This cut down sales of cyanamid, used extensively in silver refining. New companies acquired were not fully coordinated.

On June 30, 1931, current assets were $19,040,953, and current liabilities were $2,765,960. Cash and marketable securities alone were about $5,600,000, against $5,700,000 the year before. Working capital was $16,274,993, against $18,095,751 on June 30, 1930. Funded debt was $5,866,800. There were outstanding 2,470,159 combined class A and B shares. The two series are identical, except that the class A has voting power and the class B has not.

The outlook is uncertain. The company is facing increased competition in the fertilizer division from the international cartel of producers of synthetic and natural nitrogen. The government of Chile has arranged to eliminate the export tax on nitrogen if necessary and take a share of the profits. Improvement in the agricultural and silver situations would help. Increased coördination between subsidiaries may eventually be reflected in earnings.

Mercantile Oil and Refining.

I am writing for a poor lady whose husband died a few days ago. Among the papers she found 300 shares of Mercantile Oil and Refining company (Wyo.). Any information will be thankfully appreciated.—R. S.

Mercantile Oil and Refining company's Wyoming charter was forfeited for nonpayment of taxes July 19, 1927. The company is dead.

Top yesterday, $6.35; average, $5.40.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 2,000; hogs, 20,000; sheep, 10,000.

After a slump late Thursday, the hog market turned active again yesterday and prices advanced to the highest point of the week on a 5@15c bulge. Outside support was strong, almost 10,000 head, or about 38 per cent of the fresh receipts, going to eastern points for slaughter.

Local packers showed little interest until they realized the extent of buying by eastern houses when there was a scramble for stock and some large orders were unfilled at the close, the high point of the day. The extreme top was unchanged at $5.00, but it was a common price at the close and 220@300 lb averages sold at that figure. The general average moved up 10c more at $4.75, highest since Friday of last week and 15c above the low spot of the season last Tuesday. Top hogs that day established the low mark of $4.80. Only 2,000 pen holders and inferior grades remained at the close.

Monday Hogs Bid $5.00.

Hogs weighing 210@210 lbs carried bids of $5.00 on the "to arrive" market yesterday, but there were no sellers at that figure. All December and January contracts were bid $4.50 and March hogs were offered at $6.00@6.50, mediums at the top, figure.

Yesterday was "clean up" day in the cattle yards and trading was largely on a "catch as catch can" basis, with a dependable market only for the best grades of steers. The latter were scarce and few lots were eligible to more than $8.00. Eight good yearlings averaging 1,009 lbs sold at $9.25, but prime 1,200@1,300 steers were quoted up to $12.00, the week's top. The latter kinds are closing 25@50c above a week ago.

It has been an extremely erratic market for all but the "upper crust" and some of the plainer kinds are closing barely steady for the week. A big share of supplies on recent sessions consisted of plain quality steers selling below the $6.00 line and on some days the inside price on the bulk of sales had to be lowered to $5.25. Cows and heifers are closing steady to 25c higher for the week, while calves have advanced 25@50c.

Shipping Demand Broad.

Shipping demand for lambs is the broadest since October, 1926, and about 75 per cent of the orders are from country buyers for feeding stock lately. Thursday's shipments from Chicago totaled 16,851, of which 13,302 were feeders. Apparently the extremely low prices paid for feeders, the lowest in many years, have attracted more country orders lately. On yesterday's session almost 1,000 light Dakota feeders in one band sold at $3.50.

The bulk of the supply of fair to good kinds are going at $4.00@4.50 and only selected black face feeders are quoted up to $4.75. Demand for breeding stock is slack, 300 choice 80 lb yearling ewes going at $4.25, while 1,000 similar kinds remained unsold. Slaughter lambs met better action at strong to 25c higher prices yesterday, all interests paying up to $6.25 for natives and fed westerns, while city butchers took some of their selections at $6.40.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 200 cattle, 15,000 hogs, and 1,000 sheep, against 2,217 cattle, 24,315 hogs, and 4,521 sheep the previous Saturday, and 222 cattle, 21,435 hogs, and 1,354 sheep a year ago.

Probable receipts of hogs at Chicago for next Monday are estimated from 42,000 to 54,000. H. Wolfe marked 65,000; J. M. Waters, 58,000; F. M. Sherwood, 56,000; A. G. Wellener, J. Berkery, P. Allen, and G. Brittain, 55,000; E. S. Waterbury and N. R. Denny, 53,000; H. S. Turner, 52,000; G. W. Chandler and William Garrett, 50,000; H. Trullinger, 49,000; O. G. Egan and H. CHICAGO SEAT BRINGS $12,000 AS STOCKS RISE

Lincoln Printing Company Reports Income.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Stocks on the Chicago exchange swung into line with the wheat market yesterday and moved ahead for moderate gains on comparatively active trade. Nearly all classes of securities shared in the improvement but it was the motor accessory stocks which set the pace and it was Bendix Aviation that was the outstanding favorite.

Coincidental with the upturn in prices and expansion in activity came the announcement that a membership in the exchange had sold at $10,000, the best price commanded in nearly three months. The price was an increase of $900 over the previous sale. Last month the seats sold at $7,000, which is the low price for the year.

Bendix Near 20.

The good demand for Bendix lifted the price to within a fraction of 20. The issue enjoyed effective market support. Cord stock was also active and higher on a turnover of some 12,000 shares. The increasing evidence that business generally is beginning to breathe more regularly has helped the outlook for the motor shares and has been reflected in prices. Borg-Warner was less active than either Cord or Bendix and was selling more than a point higher when the day was half finished. Insull shares were higher, as were nearly all miscellaneous issues. Both were trading in any appreciable volume.

Pennsylvania railroad appeared on the Chicago tape for the first time this year as a result of the efforts being made to establish a market in the issue here. Illinois Central was also traded in in light volume.

Lincoln Printing Reports.

Lincoln Printing company issued its earnings statement for the third quarter and the first nine months of the year. Net profit for the first nine months totaled $480,420, as compared with $512,779 in the comparable period last year. After preferred, dividend requirements the net was equivalent to $2.32 a share on 175,000 shares of common stock, as compared with $2.46 for the corresponding 1930 period. Third quarter net was $54,547, or 17 cents a share, against $87,233, or 35 cents, in the September quarter last year.

Washington Flexner, president, said that the fourth quarter promises a continuance of the present rate, thus assuring a substantial addition to surplus for the year. The common stock is now on a $3 annual dividend basis.

Canadian Pacific Reduces West Indies Cruise Fares

Reductions in fares of as much as fifty dollars is announced by Canadian Pacific steamships operating seven West Indies cruises from New York, December to March next. Officials of the company state that inasmuch as West Indies cruises are looked upon as introductions to ocean travel, it should have a stimulating effect on ocean traffic in the near future. The former world cruise liner Empress of Australia and the Bedford, one of the new Duchess ships, are slated to operate on the West Indies route.
